

Widow 109

Chapter 109

The roof of the warehouse was covered with wave tiles. The cheap piece was not expensive, but it was a little slippery. Crystal carefully grabbed Harold's sleeve, for fear that she would slip down accidentally.

Looking at her bashful look, Harold bent down and picked her up, which scared Crystal. "You, you, you, you should be careful. If we fall down, it must be very painful."

Harold asked, "Do you think everyone is as useless as you?"

In Crystal's eyes, the roof was slippery and difficult to walk on, but Harold felt as if he was walking on flat ground. He held Crystal in his arms and went to the middle of the roof before putting her down.

Crystal raised her head subconsciously. "I think I'm a little closer to the moon."

Harold said, "Your feeling isn't wrong. I estimate that the warehouse is four meters high. You're four meters nearer to the moon."

Crystal said, "You don't understand romance."

Harold said, "It's more romantic to jump down from here together and die for love. Do you want to try?"

Crystal, "..."

casually laid the expensive coat that was worth six figures and said, "Sit."

and said, "I've decided to take back what I just said.

"In fact, we can see more home?"

shook her head. "That's stars in the sky were bright, and the moonlight was like water. Crystal's cheeks were soft and white in the clear breeze and bright moon. Her long and thick eyelashes trembled, and she whispered, "I changed the subject. "I do miss Sunshine Village a

Harold was speechless.

at him. "Do you

it." Harold said coldly, "If you say any more sweet potatoes, I'll throw you sweet potatoes, actually had said, "Then I'll teach you how to recognize out her hand and said firmly, asked, "... And about others. I only know bright."

teach me how to recognize the said, "What if you was close to the tip of her nose. He laughed and said, "Do you think I'm a fool who