

Widow 449

Chapter 449

"I've heard people praise you before." Harold's voice was faint. "I thought you were a rare talent in this generation, but now it seems that you're nothing more than this."

Alan wiped his tears and said in a hoarse voice, "It's my fault... It's my fault."

He should have noticed it when he saw the white dress she was wearing.

The dress was the wedding dress he bought for her when he was poor. She wore the dress to attend his wedding and didn't even care about Christy telling her the truth. It showed that she was determined to die, but he didn't notice it.

If he had discovered it earlier... and sent her to the hospital earlier, things might not have gone like this

At this time, the door of the emergency room opened and a doctor came out. Crystal quickly stepped forward and asked, "Doctor... How is it?"

The doctor sighed and shook his head. "... I'm sorry, we failed to bring her back. My condolences." Crystal felt dizzy, and her vision blurred. She fell into Harold's arms.

"Are you a family member of the patient inside?" The doctor glanced at Crystal and said, "When the patient was sent here, the situation was very urgent, and we couldn't contact her family members. She hasn't gone through the hospital process yet. You have to pay the fee and then come to collect the body."

at Alan in disbelief.

"I... paid for the

The doctor was confused.

doctor asked, "Aren't you the family members of the man in the

"What car

The doctor was speechless.

the one who was sent

When I saw you after I came out, I thought that I found the Everyone was speechless.

go

little embarrassed. He coughed and said, "Since you're not, quickly, leaving behind an

a slap. She really

no one will laugh

man died in a car accident. We should care about him.” Crystal pretended to be calm and said, “It’s so pitiful that they touched her head and said, “Well,