Chapter 761

It was already in the afternoon, but there was no light in the room. It was gloomy and depressing.

The young girl walked in with light footsteps. She pulled the curtains open, and the light from the sky shone in. The heavy smell of alcohol in the room also dispersed a little. She held her arms and looked at the man sitting on the carpet. "... Did you drink all night last night?"

"No." Bud's voice was a little hoarse, but his tone was still cold. "What are you doing here?"

"I saw that advertisement screen yesterday and thought that you might..." She raised her eyebrows and said, "Not feel too good, so I came to see you."

In fact, there was no so-called "mother-and-son love" between Bud and his mother. They seemed more like superior and subordinate, but maybe because the moonlight that day was too gentle, he was silent for a while and slowly walked over.

The woman raised her hand to hold his face and seemed to be talking to herself, "You have grown up..."

"Time flies too fast," she said. "I still remember when you were a baby. You wanted me to carry you as soon as you saw me."

All of a sudden, Bud's body stiffened. He didn't know what to say, but maybe he didn't have time to say anything. Soon, the woman's expression froze, and she asked in a soft voice, "... Did you just kill someone before coming back? The smell of blood on your body is so strong."

After a moment of silence, he asked, "Where did you get hurt?"

"It's just a minor injury. You don't have to worry about it." The girl smiled. "As I said, I am smarter than you and know how to hide."

She looked around and said, "Why don't you move back? I can't rest assured if you live here alone."

"There's nothing to worry about."

The girl was silent for a moment and finally said, "I am afraid that you will starve to death."

Crystal looked up. "CoCo, didn't I tell you?" She raised Devil's furry paws. "Come, CoCo. Say hello to Larry."

Instead of paying attention to Larry, Devil rubbed its head against Crystal's leg.

Under Harold's threatening gaze, Larry stopped himself from saying, "You named a majestic snow tiger CoCo?" and showed a fake smile on his face. He walked over and squatted down next to Devil and said, "You're too heartless. Have you forgotten that it was me who fed you meat when Harold didn't take care of you back then? Now that you're close to Crystal, are you pretending that you don't know me anymore?"

Devil faced him with his ass.

Mr. Reynes finally figured something out and said, "So this ugly... not-so-delicate cake is made by you?"

"Yeah." Crystal nodded proudly. "I thought that I could invite you over to eat the cake as we couldn't finish it. So I put a lot of mangos in it. Mangoes that you're allergic to!"

In the business world, Mr. Reynes had always been called a smiling tiger. Although he was smiling and easy to get along with, in fact, he was ruthless. He could easily become friends and could easily make others bankrupt. He was also known to be understanding and considerate. For example, at this moment, he knew exactly what he should say. "I said that when you and Crystal get married, I, as a brother, will definitely give you a big red packet."

Crystal came over and asked, "How much are you going to give?"

Larry wanted to say a check of more than 20,000 dollars perfunctorily, but his good brother sitting opposite him said, "I remember you have a seaside villa."

Larry didn't know what to say. "That's where I'm going to stay after retirement..."

Harold smiled and said, "Why don't you give us the property ownership certificate of this villa? Otherwise, how can you show your generosity, Mr. Reynes?"

Crystal nodded. "That's right"

The northern weather at the end of September suddenly turned cold. Crystal, wrapped in her furry coat, walked slowly on the grass in the backyard with Devil. The evening wind blew her long hair, and there was a strong fragrance of flowers in the air.

"Mr. Reynes, I have a question for you." Crystal turned to Larry and said, "When you first met Harold, what was he like?"

Larry spread out his hands and said, "At that time, we were all very young and know nothing."

Crystal asked, "Knew nothing?"

"It's very strange, isn't it?" Larry asked Crystal. "She clearly hated Harold so much, but when she was imprisoned by Antonio, most of the resistance she made was for Harold."

Therefore, after that, it was as if Antonio had found Leilani's weakness. He did not want a walking corpse, so he tortured Harold, wanting to see the woman he once loved being lively and vicious.

However, Larry did not tell Crystal about this. He just said, "So you should be able to imagine how complicated his feelings were when Madam Grecic died."

Crystal pursed her lips. "He..."

"But it's all in the past," Larry said with a smile, "He's not someone who will sink into the past. It's fine that you know these, but don't tell him that I told you these."

Crystal's eyelashes trembled and she asked a question that was beyond Larry's expectation, "Have you ever come into contact with Madam Grecic? What kind of person do you think she was?"

In the end, Crystal didn't get to blow Harold's hair, because the man quickly dried his hair and lay on the bed. Crystal was scared and moved aside, saying, "You are not allowed to..."

Before she could finish her sentence, Harold had already leaned over and looked at her with his beautiful eyes. There was a hint of joy in his eyes. "Not allowed to do what?"

"..." Crystal was at a loss for words. "Don't... don't act like last night again. The glass is very cold, don't you know?"

Harold kissed the back of her soft, white hand and said, "Then we won't go to the window tonight."
