Chapter 771

"You sound very confident." Sadie smiled, but her whole body tensed up, her waist tightened, and her upper body leaned forward slightly. Her fingers slowly clenched into a fist, and her eyes stared fixedly at 0734. "Now... I am indeed no match for you."

She took a deep breath and said, "But even if I have to die, I won't die in your hands." 0734's eyes were cold, and his slender fingers were gently twisted by him, making a sound that made people's teeth sore. "You can try."

Sadie laughed and seemed to want to say something, but the smile on her lips suddenly became cold. The moment 0734 ran over, she suddenly pushed open the window. When 0734 realized it, blue veins stood out on his forehead. At that moment, his speed was beyond the reach of human eyes. He grabbed at Sadie's neck with absolute strength, but Sadie was faster and more flexible. She lifted her leg and flipped out. She was already hanging outside the window. She said coldly through a layer of glass, "I said that I wouldn't die in your hands."

"..." Looking at her pale fingers clutching the window, 0734 didn't move anymore. He knew that as long as he moved, this crazy woman would let go of her hand and let herself fall down.

Danny hired three caretakers for Sadie. The youngest one was on duty tonight. She heard the sound of the bell in the room. She woke up from her light sleep and shivered.

Sadie was a very easy person to get along with. Generally speaking, she would never trouble others with what she could do. She was gentle and all the doctors and nurses, and caretakers liked her very much. On such a late night, she pressed the bell. There must be something very important.

The caretaker didn't dare to delay. She quickly rubbed her face and went to the ward. As soon as she opened the door, she saw Sadie curled up by the window and coughing violently under the pale moonlight. Her whole body was convulsing, and her face was so pale that she looked like a ghost!

She was shocked and quickly turned on the light to help Sadie up. "Miss Sadie... Miss Sadie, what's wrong with you?!"

The wound on Sadie's neck was still bleeding, and her hospital gown was dyed red. She grabbed the caretaker's hand and said reluctantly, "Don't... don't tell Danny."

Chapter 773

Sadie had a long dream.

Those forgotten memories of many years ago came back to her, and she was like a bystander, quietly looking at her past life.

Occasionally it was a banquet hall filled with light, sometimes it was a dark secret room, sometimes it was a torture room full of blood, and sometimes... Danny could be seen.

No matter how old Danny was, he was still vivid and clear in her memory. Sometimes she looked at him from a distance, and sometimes she looked at him from a close distance. However, the expression on Danny's face was always cold, as if she was not his fiancée, but just a passerby. He looked at her like how he looked at others.

But Sadie was very satisfied.

"..." Sadie woke up from her nightmare, and her body trembled unconsciously-it seemed that there was still a sense of powerlessness that had been crushed by the car accident.

"Sadie?" Someone whispered in her ear, "What's wrong? Did you have a nightmare?"

Sadie slowly opened her eyes. After a while, she got used to the lights in the ward, and a familiar silhouette appeared in front of her.

A few seconds after she opened her eyes, Sadie couldn't see clearly, but she recognized the person in front of her. "Dan... Danny."

"It's me." Danny asked, "Would you like some water?"

Sadie's eyes finally returned to normal. The sky was turning white. It was dawn. Danny was sitting by the bed. There was a faint green underneath his eyes and he looked a little tired.

He brought the warm honey water over and let Sadie take two sips before he said, "The doctor said that your throat will be dry the next two days, but it will soon recover, and the wound on your neck is not very serious.

“16th floor.” Danny calmly described, “By opening the window, you were seeking death.”

Sadie suddenly opened her eyes and clenched her fists under the quilt.” ... You also said that he’s a killer. He wanted to cut my throat. Why did he save me?”

This was the first time that Sadie had spoken to Danny in such a sharp tone since she had been taken out of the hospital by him. She was usually too gentle that it was hard for others to imagine that she could be this sharp when the thorns on her were triggered.

Danny was not angry. He said, “You are protecting him.”

Danny's kiss was as serious and gentle as he normally was.

He licked off the blood on Sadie's lips, separated from her a little, and put his forehead against Sadie's. He panted and asked, "Sadie, in fact, you like me, don't you?"

He said in a hoarse voice while Sadie was looking at him with dull eyes, "You've been calling me by my name in your dream."

Sadie's fingers moved, as if she had regained her soul. "Why... why did you kiss me?"

Danny said, "Because I like it."

Sadie was stunned for a long while before she said, "Do you like... me?"

"I'm not very well-informed. You rushed over late at night and asked someone to postpone the meeting today. It's obvious that this matter is serious, let alone..." He spread out his hands. "It's really difficult for people working in such a big hospital to keep a secret."

Marcus pulled over a chair and sat down in front of his brother's unpleasant gaze. He raised his finger and lifted the mask rope behind his ear, revealing his handsome face. He said, "Miss Sadie, when I came to look for you and took out the photo, I had a faint feeling that someone would kill you."

Danny's gaze sharpened. Marcus said, "It was just a gut feeling. Furthermore, Miss Sadie wasn't very cooperative at that time."

Sadie looked down, only staring at her red and swollen fingers. They were injured after she clutched the window hard yesterday. The doctor had applied the medicine for her, but they wouldn't heal so quickly. At this time, they were still very painful.

"Miss Sadie, you won't be as lucky as you were last night every time." Marcus leaned on the back of the chair, put his ten fingers on his knees, and said slowly, "You just told my brother about your feelings. You're not thinking of dying on one of the nights and letting him become a widower, are you?"

The three or four-year-old Sadie was brought to Sunshine Village by Leilani.

For some reason, Marcus relaxed a little and said, "Do you still remember what you did there?"

"There were a lot of people there at that time. It should be an exploration." Sadie said slowly, "I should have seen Madam Kyla there. So even if I lost my memory, I still felt that Crystal was very familiar because she looked so much like Madam Kyla."

Speaking of this, she traced the image of herself and Chloe with her fingers and said, "It can be seen from the photo that I like Madam Kyla very much. In my memory, she is a very gentle person." Then she glanced at Marcus and said, "Of course, she is different from the gentleness you pretend to be."

Crystal was supposed to sleep until noon, but Harold's phone rang and woke her up.

In the past, this kind of thing had happened before, but Crystal would go back to sleep after that. But this time, when she heard the news of Sadie's injury, all the sleepiness disappeared in an instant. She got up in a hurry to wash up and change clothes.

At this time, the florist store outside was still open. It was Dana who went to the glass greenhouse to cut a handful of tulips and wrapped them with leather paper to make them into a bouquet for her to visit Sadie.

Harold had a very important meeting today, so he couldn't accompany her. At this moment, she suddenly felt a little lucky-Fortunately, Harold couldn't accompany her.

No one would be able to accept such a piece of news.

Crystal was dragged all the way to the corridor by Marcus. The man seemed to have no idea about how tall he was. He walked so fast that Crystal had to catch up with him breathlessly.

Finally, Marcus stopped by the window. The window was open, and the cold wind at the beginning of October blew in, which made Crystal feel a little cold. She quickly put on her coat. She looked sideways and saw that the autumn wind was rolling the fallen leaves. The particularly tall parasol tree outside the window was almost bald. A dry branch was exposed on the top of the tree, and the sun shone through the glass and fell on a pot of rose-tailed sunflower.

The green plant grew very well, and it was lush green. Crystal's gaze landed on it and she did not look at Marcus. "You can leave on your own. Why did you drag me away?"

Marcus pinched her chin and forced her to look at him. He looked down at her and asked, "Do you think that pot of grass is better looking than me?"

Compared with a pot of sunflowers, the famous star was naturally better looking. Because there were all VIP wards on this floor, he did not wear a mask, and his expression was a little unhappy.

Crystal found that since her second brother exposed his ugly face in front of her, he had been too lazy to pretend after that. Crystal often wanted to join his fans' page to expose his true colors. But thinking that Marcus had become so famous over the years, she thought that no one would believe her and would all scold her instead, so Crystal had to give up.
