Chapter 212: Legendary Knight! (3)

It was a severe threat to the faith of the Church.

Therefore, the Church had its eyes on him.

The pope of that generation used his “foundation” to encircle and suppress him.

Ultimately, he could only fake his death and escape. He hid in the castle and slept for a long time, slowly healing his injuries.

It was only now that he had fully recovered.

Just because a junior was dead, it became the fuse to awaken him.

Anderson had lived for so long, so he knew there was a high chance that the Blood Clan member did not remember his teachings and had been discovered by human experts by feeding on human blood.

He did not know if the one who killed her was the Church or some other human powerhouse.

"The Blood River Will is also continuously infiltrating this world with the awakening of the Dark Wave. Sigh, this isn't a good thing."

Anderson knew that a Blood Clan member like him was an anomaly.

Most of the Blood Clan members, especially those belonging to the Primary

Blood Clan, did not have the moral concepts and excellent and evil concepts of humans.

They would take human blood for granted, just like how humans ate beef. They would not feel guilty at all.

Humans were also in their homeland because this was the law of their survival. The humans there were the blood food raised by the Blood Clan. They were pigs.

It was just like how humans in this world raised livestock.

"No matter what, I will try my best to prevent the worst from happening," Anderson muttered.

His figure disappeared into the forest. He wanted to go where the junior died and visit the expert who could kill the Blood Clan member.

He would not mind teaching them a lesson if they were from the Church.

Even a good person like him would be angry if his good intentions were treated like a donkey's liver.

Now that the Blood River Will had infiltrated his body, his power would be more powerful. He felt it was time for the Church to pay the price for its immoral actions two hundred years ago.

Naturally, Levi did not know that a First-generation of the Secondary Blood Clan, a legendary knight, had targeted him.

He was still waiting for the fire paper to burn.

"D*mn it, why aren't you burning? I'm running out of patience."

Levi stayed at home, cultivating Meditation Art and breathing techniques while waiting for the Magi to come and pick him up.

The Meditation Art's proficiency increased daily at a tortoise-like speed, regardless of the weather. Levi was helpless against it.

His breathing technique was still changing day by day, breaking through rapidly.

It was the year 1015 of the Holy Brilliance Calendar, the Moon of the Wheatfield.

Tulip Hill had a bumper harvest. The territory was filled with joy.

During this period, Levi's army also expanded.

After all, to defend such a large territory, the original Black Water Valley troops were not enough.

During this period of cultivation, Levi was also looking for his successor.

This successor had to be loyal to him. When he left the territory and headed to the wizard world, he would continue to manage the place and wealth for Levi. This way, when he returned, he could bring the wealth over.

As far as Levi knew, there were also mortal gathering places in the wizard world. In these human gathering places, gold coins were still the common currency.

When he became a wizard apprentice, he could still use gold coins to buy basic living materials or supplies.

Although some alchemy wizards had mastered the real "alchemy" and could create materials like gold.

However, the cost of such alchemy was extremely high. The price of artificial gold was several times that of natural gold, and it was not universal at all.

Therefore, gold was still the currency some wizard apprentices or mortals used to transact ordinary goods. It was still precious.

This was also why Levi decided to take back Tulip Hill and Stormy Hill.

He needed to support a force in the human world that could provide him with cultivation resources in the wizard world.

Many wizards did this.

Perhaps some prominent merchant association or power was behind it.

There were traces of wizards.

Therefore, Levi could not relinquish the territory, which was part of his wealth and spiritual land.

Unfortunately, he was still young.

It seemed too late to marry a wife and have a child to inherit his territory.

Levi did not have such thoughts, so he still had to find a reliable agent in the human world.

This agent must be loyal to him, and it would be best if he had the strength of a grand knight. Only then would he be able to intimidate ferocious people.

"I'm worried."

Levi was worried.

He could only think of two methods.

One was to use the living dead controlled by the Seal of Hell to replace him and guard the territory.

The advantage was absolute loyalty and sufficient strength.

The downside was that their intelligence was too low, and they could not handle complicated lord matters. Moreover, this living dead probably could not be used in the human world after he entered the wizard world.

The second method was to use the Man-Faced Spider's Kiss to control a grand knight for his use. The advantage was that it was a living person with no problem with intelligence.

The disadvantage was that such a grand knight was threatened by death and might not be loyal enough. Moreover, to maintain this relationship, he had to give the grand knight the antidote every year.

"If only there were a spell that could control real living people. There must be such a spell, but I haven't mastered it yet, nor does that d*mned Tuten." Levi sighed.

If he had that kind of enslavement spell, he could enslave a grand knight for his use and manage his territory.

"Forget it; I'll take it one step at a time. There's still time, anyway. I can pay attention to things in this area during this period."

Levi walked out of the castle. He had been cultivating his breathing techniques during this period, and his strength had improved a little.

However, Levi already had this particular effect, so there was little chance of repeating it.

It had to break through to level 9 to allow his speed to rise to another level.

This time, Levi came out of seclusion mainly because he wanted to walk to Green Bug Territory.

He still did not want to give up on the Scorpion Knight's method of controlling scorpions.

He decided to find a way to see this method before he left the human world and entered the wizard world.

This way, he could have another trump card..
