

Wizard 259

Chapter 259: Flower Knight, Legendary Levi! (4)

Among these sea beasts, the extraordinary ones that occasionally appeared stirred up the wind and waves, and were extremely terrifying.

In the center of the foggy sea, a dark green light flickered bit by bit.

After passing through the fog and arriving at the light, a huge ship that was like an island could be seen slowly stopping in the sea.

This was the Undead Ship.

Its existence was much longer than the Gray Tower.

It was the creation of a powerful dark wizard a long time ago.

The so-called dark wizards were similar to dark wizard organizations.

They were the kind of dark and evil wizards who were wanted by the wizard council because they had seriously violated the Pan-Plane Wizard Council's charter. Basically, they were all extremely evil and did whatever they wanted.

That dark wizard had left behind many legends in this sea area.

He was the Undead Captain Jett, who was feared by everyone.

His ship was called the Black Mary.

Captain Jett was once the most powerful man in this sea area and had reached the realm of a Fourth-Circle Wizard.

Even in the Star Sea, he was considered an absolute expert.

Unfortunately, for some unknown reason, the captain was caught by the Star Tower's law enforcement team after being at large for a long time. He was eventually executed. His ship, which was filled with hell creatures, evil spirits, and undead, was also destroyed and sank into the sea.

The remains of the ship were then found by the current organization, the Undead Ship, and repaired. Although it was dilapidated, it could still be used as a base for the organization.

The Undead Ship was actually docked in this foggy sea area.

On the Undead Ship, green ghost fire that looked like lanterns were flickering everywhere.

These were all undead creatures, Lantern Fire.

Lantern Fires were very weak, and low-level apprentice wizards could deal with them with some cantrips.

However, there were many of them. There were tens of thousands of Lantern Fires everywhere on the thousand-meter-long ship.

They patrolled the ship day and night, and the slightest movement would alert them, and then the Undead Ship would quickly escape.

After becoming a dark wizard organization, they would either run away or hide in dangerous waters that others would not go to.

Other than low-level undead like the Lantern Fire, there were also some undead skeletons, undead knights riding on skeletal warhorses, and even skeleton mages holding staffs on the ship.

At the very top of the cabin, a three-headed beast that was more than twenty meters long and had three heads was sleeping. The middle head had a single horn, and its flesh was rotten, revealing its ghastly white bones.

This was the Three-Headed Hell Lizard. It was powerful and was relatively rare among undead creatures. It looked ordinary, but its strength was close to that of a Second -Circle Wizard.

This was because this giant undead creature was a hybrid of the dragon race.

Although it did not have much dragon race ancestry, it was still mixed blood.

It was not even considered a hybrid like the Earth Dragon Blood. It could not be compared to the descendants of the dragon race who had degenerated to a level that even extraordinary creatures could not compare to.

The three heads of the Three-Headed Hell Lizard possessed three different types of spell abilities. They were innately powerful spell casters, and their bodies were incomparably tough.

Below the Three-Headed Hell Lizard, in the captain's cabin.

Green Ghost Carter prostrated on the ground and looked at the black-robed figure on the throne of bones.

Half of the face of this black-robed wizard was a skeleton, and the other half was rotten flesh. It looked extremely distorted and terrifying.

His chest was also empty. There was no heart.

Black demonic flames burned in his eye sockets.

This was the current captain of the Undead Ship.

Dark Wizard Harland, but people remembered him more by his other nickname: Demon.

This was because his style was too avant- garde and terrifying, giving people a deep impression. However, this was the usual style of many wizards from the School of Death.

It was inevitable that he would be like this when he dealt with hell creatures, undead, and all kinds of death-type spells.

At this moment, Demon Harland's eyes were filled with anger. The demon fire burned out of his head. It was the literal meaning of burning with rage.

"So, not only did you fail to get the Eye Devil's Gaze, but you also caused the death of an official wizard from the Undead Ship, and then you ran back with your tail between your legs? And the one who killed our official wizard was an apprentice wizard of the Gray Tower?" Demon Harland said slowly.

Green Ghost Carter was trembling with fear.

In front of this powerful Second-Circle Wizard, even if he was a veteran First-Circle Wizard, he was nothing.

"Captain, it's all my fault. I made a mistake. I didn't expect that the Gray Tower would actually recruit a legendary knight-level apprentice wizard." Green Ghost Carter frantically kowtowed and confessed.

"Hmph, useless trash!"

The Demon snorted coldly.

Even with a Second-Circle Wizard's state of mind, he was about to explode.

The current official wizards of the Undead ship, not including Demon Harland, were only six.

Now, another had died, leaving only five.

Although their numbers were still greater than the Gray Tower, the problem was that the current Tower Master of the Gray Tower, the crazy old man who had almost replaced all his organs with alchemical prosthetics, was too powerful.

Other than that crazy old man, that damned white snake, the pet of the previous Tower Master, was also extremely strong.

In order to fight against the crazy old man, Harland refused to be outdone. Since he had a modified alchemical body, he shall directly turn himself into a half-human, undead monster.

If he didn't want to be human, he won't be human either!
