Chapter 281: Sacred Dragon Emissary, Favored By The

Night (1)

The ninth floor of the Gray Tower.

Levi quietly read the letter.

The letter was written by Andrew, and it described the current situation of the territory.

Now, everything was fine in the territory, and nothing had happened. Occasionally, there would be some minor conflicts with the neighbors around the territory, but in the end, they would be resolved in secret 'peacefully'. In any case, the debts were all recorded on the head of the 'Bird of Death's Voice'.

Then, the letter also told Levi about some major events in the human world.

The great voyage to find the treasure of Golden Knight Gregor had ended. So far, no one has found anything. It was rumored that the treasure had been obtained by the Fist of the Empire, Emperor Mu.

At the same time, with the help of the Church, the Saintess, the Snow Queen Elsa, became a legendary knight.

Excluding Knight Anderson, who had changed his appearance, she was the only living legendary knight in the world.

Far away from the Emerald Kingdom was the East Pole Empire, which spanned across the entire continent.

The Church of the Dragon God claimed that the world was filthy, full of sins, and a catastrophe was coming.

However, the Pope had received instructions from the supreme King of Ten Thousand Dragons. The 'Sacred Dragon Emissary' had been born in the mortal world. He would spread the glory of the King of Ten Thousand Dragons to every dark land and protect the billions of people of the Ten Thousand Dragons God!

Since then, many churches have also expressed that their saints were about to descend, telling the residents of their countries not to panic.

In Levi's opinion, whether it was true or not, the gods of the astral world seemed to be starting to get restless.

The moment of the plane convergence was approaching, and the forerunner of the Dark Wave had already touched the interests of the seven gods.

And before the arrival of the waves that would get increasingly turbulent, each stronger than the last, the gods had to do something.

However, all of this had nothing to do with Levi, who was in the Gray Tower.

The Wizard World was as peaceful as ever.

Since the gods did not welcome the appearance of wizards in the human world, the wizards would pursue their own truth and path in their own small plots of land.

Not only that, those powerful wizards had already taken the initiative to travel to other planes.

Some of the more skilled and daring wizards even conquered and colonized some of the weaker planes in the Multidimensional Plane.

They killed the natives' masters of the Multidimensional Plane and made themselves the new 'Plane Lords', transforming the plane into their own 'Wizard Demiplane'.

They continued to carry forward the tradition of humans who liked to farm.

From there, the entire plane would become their backyard or training area.

Of course, generally speaking, there were only a few high-level wizards, ninth-circle Grand Wizards, and Legendary Wizards.

After all, under normal circumstances, the Plane Lords were all at the level of the demigods.

If other wizards went to the other plane, they would be nothing more than food.

Expedition wizards would learn more about the local customs and experience more extraordinary systems. From there, they would use them to study spells, learn from others, and even learn from others to control them.

It was because of this spirit that the theoretical knowledge of the Wizard World could be continuously changed and iterated, and the upper limit of wizardry was also slowly increasing.

At the end of the letter, Andrew expressed how much Knight Anderson missed Levi. Knight Anderson had been constantly thinking about Livei's advancement to the legendary level and had been talking about it in Andrew's ears all day long. Andrew suggested that if Levi had time in the future, he should write a letter to Knight Anderson.

Levi smiled.

"This old fellow, when I advance to the legendary level, I'll reply to him. I really don't know what to do with him." Levi was helpless.

He kept the gold coins that Anderson had sent to him. With his territory providing strong logistical support, Levi was not worried about the lack of money at all. His identity as a pharmacist was very costly. Without the support of his territory, it would be difficult to carry on.

Of course, after he became a First-Circle Pharmacist, he would not be able to buy many first-circle potion materials with gold coins.

At that time, the use of gold coins might be reduced.

In addition to the gold coins, Levi also collected the Core of the Undead. These were the high-quality Core of the Undead that Andrew had purchased in the Northern Territory.

The Necromancer World also had Cores of the Undead, and Levi obtained quite a few during the battle with the Undead Ship.

However, its quality was much worse than the Core of the Undead created by the blue frost disaster.

Although Levi could not use the Seal of Hell for the time being, it did not mean that he could not use it in the future.

In theory, as long as Levi's spiritual force was high enough and his strength was strong enough, he could even turn an official wizard into a living dead.

Since the grand knight could use the black gas while they were in the living dead state, then the wizards in the living dead state might also be able to use spells. If that was the case, Levi felt that he could create a wizard version of the 'Seven Generals of the Living-dead Family'.

With Levi's current level, even the seven living dead top-tier grand knights that were painstakingly gathered were nothing in front of a spell from an official wizard.

Therefore, if he wanted the Seal of Hell to help him, he had to change the source of the living dead.

Wizards, transcendent creatures.

They could all become his experimental subjects in the future.

As for the remaining inheritance diagram, there were a total of six.

Levi automatically filtered out the three strength -type breathing technique inheritance diagrams.

Compared to the other types, the power was simply too much.

In the future, whether it was Red Lotus, Giants, or Tuo Shan breaking the limits, he would not have to worry about not having enough breathing techniques..
