Chapter 324: Saint Ape Emperor Mu, Black Snake Levi, Supreme Knight, King of the Century! 6

Compared to the Sun Meditation Art that Levi had bought from the Celestial Circle Shop, Kane's version was much more comprehensive.

There were chapters with contents suitable for apprentice wizards, First-Circle Wizards, and even Second-Circle Wizards. This way, Levi did not have to worry about later-stage training of the Burning Faction Meditation Art anymore.

Besides the books about cantrips he did not care about, Levi immediately noticed a few spell books he had dreamt of possessing for a long time.

They were spell books for the Fireball Technique, Big Fireball Technique, and Five Fireballs Technique.

The first two techniques were both First-Ring Spells but differed in strength.

The last one was a Second-Ring Spell.

If he did not have his living dead to tank most of the impact from the attack, he wouldn't have the confidence to block the five fireballs.

The Burning Faction focused on attacks. If Levi wanted to learn the Burning Faction's spells, he would definitely learn offensive spells.

He could learn defensive spells from the Ocean Faction and the Earth Faction.

It was worth mentioning that Levi had also obtained a crimson scroll. This scroll was similar to the one Kane's son used, but the picture on this scroll was not of a big fireball, but five fireballs.

It was a one-time use scroll consisting of a solidified second-ring spell, which made it a second -circle tool.

It was a Five Fireballs Scroll!

Spell scrolls were often expensive. After all, even apprentice wizards could unleash a second-ring spell with a spell scroll as long as they knew the chant.

They would not need to exhaust any casting materials or spell power to cast it.

This was different from spells that were solidified on Wizard Tools. Users of the Wizard Tools still needed to consume spell power to cast the spells.

If the user lacked spell power, they would fail to do so. Therefore, even if Levi obtained a second-circle Wizard Tool, he could not activate the solidified spells on it.

The production cost of a one-time spell scroll was very high.

Besides the high cost of materials, the main contributor to its high cost was due to the production process, which consumed the creator's spiritual force.

Making one or two was manageable. However, if a creator made too many, it would reduce their spiritual force instead of increasing it. The upper limit of their spiritual force would drop. In other words, a creator sacrificed their own cultivation to make the one-time spell scrolls.

Therefore, official wizards would only create such tools to allow the people they truly cared about to protect themselves.

After sorting the spoils of war from Kane the Fireplay Master, Levi had more than 10,000 Aether Stones.

Levi exclaimed joyfully, "I spent so much money on this trip, but I returned with a profit. I have more funds than I can spend."

However, he realized something after this battle.

With his current strength, although he could deal with a veteran First-Circle Wizard, the latter did not make it easy. There was still a risk of Levi losing.

Therefore, he could not be careless.

This was because these experienced First-Circle Wizards had begun to grasp the Second-Ring Spells. If the latter were forced into a corner, they would forcefully use the Second-Ring Spells, which was a considerable threat to Levi.

Levi muttered, "Before I become an official wizard, I still have to max out some breathing techniques to increase my self-preservation ability."

He continued, "After sparring with Fist of the Empire, I'll have to go into seclusion for some time. Right now, I don't lack anything. I don't lack money. I don't lack Wizard Tools. I don't lack Meditation Arts. I don't lack spells. I have enough of everything except cultivation. I wondered if the Pan-Plane Wizard

Council would find out I killed Kane."

Levi was still a little worried. He felt that if the Pan-Plane Wizard Council sent out mid-level or even high-level wizards to investigate this matter, they could find him with their spell abilities.

As far as Levi knew, among the high-level spells, there was a spell that could even replay what had happened in a region recently. If someone who had mastered this spell was sent to investigate the matter, Levi might be exposed.

Of course, this was highly unlikely. There were very few high-level wizards. They usually held high positions in the Pan-Plane Wizard Council and were busy with their own spell research or traveling between different planes.

The Pan-Plane Wizard Council would not disturb such existences just because of the death of a mere First-Circle Wizard.

It was the same in the cultivation world; a sect would not send out an Apotheosis Patriarch to investigate the cause of death of a Qi Cultivation Stage cultivator.

Therefore, Levi decided not to be so paranoid.

There was no use regretting a deed that was done.

He would have been killed if he didn't kill Kane.

He had already done his best to keep a low profile and be cautious. If he wanted to blame someone, he could only blame Kane's disappointing son for trying to harm him.

After he reached this conclusion, Levi returned to his normal cultivation. In less than half a month, his weakened state after using the Red Lotus Blood ended.

At the same time, Levi had achieved a certain level of understanding of the Sun Meditation Art he had newly obtained.

His current cultivation speed was something he had not even dared to imagine when he first learned the Deep Sea Meditation Art.

[Sun Meditation Art: Level 1 (1/1000)]

Levi's speed of understanding a new Meditation Art increased continuously as the number of Meditation Arts he cultivated increased. His mastery of the Dance of the Fire God affinity talent helped too.

Therefore, talent and proficiency were both crucial.

It would be even better if he had supplements that could assist him in cultivating Meditation Arts.

It was the Year 1021 of the Holy Brilliance Calendar, the Month of Flowers.

It was time for Levi and Fist of the Empire to spar. So far, no one from the Pan-Plane Wizard Council had come to find him, which made Levi feel relieved for now..
