Chapter 344: Legendary Blood Beast, Wings of Black Gas!(4)

Therefore, after the first Tower Master of the Gray Tower, Salman became a Third-Circle Wizard, he directly handed over the inheritance that he had painstakingly built to Wizard Herman, who had just stepped into the second circle not long ago. He went to the Star Sea and passed the assessment of the Star Tower to become a member.

Under the Star Tower's headquarters, there were various organizations that were in charge of the administration of the wizards in the Endless Sea area, judicial management, and other matters.

The sea beast monitoring station was an inconspicuous organization under the Star Tower.

This organization would only appear to be extremely important at special times every few hundred years. That was the sea beast tide that only happened once every five hundred years.

Currently, inside the sea beast monitoring station.

One after another, official wizards were busy. They were the "observers" of the sea beast monitoring station. They were in charge of calculating and calculating the reproduction of sea beasts in various parts of the Endless Sea. The situation this year was not optimistic, so these observers were all frowning.

The chief of the sea beast monitoring station, a Third-Circle Wizard, was listening to the report of the observers with a solemn expression.

"Chief, according to the data from the various monitoring stations, apart from a few sea areas, be it the outer or inner regions, the number of sea beasts has reached the peak of the past two thousand years. The threat level of this sea beast tide is Level 3."

"Level 3?" the stationmaster muttered to himself.

According to the classification of the sea beast monitoring station, the danger level of the sea beast tide was divided into three levels.

Level 1 sea beast tides were basically small-scale battles. Most wizard organizations could safely survive them. Basically, in areas with dense sea beasts, they could be born once every hundred years.

As for the level 2 sea beast tide, it was a little dangerous. If they did not make sufficient preparations, some weak wizard organizations might be destroyed by the Sea Beast Army.

As for level 3, it was basically equivalent to a natural disaster. After the last

Level 3 tide in the Endless Sea, nearly 7% of the wizard organizations had been flattened and turned into dust in history.

There was also a special sea beast tide above level 3. In the history of the Ocean School of Thought, there had only been one such occurrence, and it was also the earliest one. At that time, the wizards of the Ocean School of Thought first stepped into the Realm of Azure Cloud and arrived at the Endless Sea. They found that this place was extremely suitable for their cultivation, so they decided to use this place as the headquarters of the Ocean School of Thought. The arrival of the wizards naturally aroused the dissatisfaction of the natives of the Endless Sea, so the wizards and the sea beasts of the Endless Sea fought for survival space in a long civil war that lasted for a thousand years.

This battle had established the dominance of the wizards in the Endless Sea. The sea creatures and sea beasts of the Endless Sea could only gather in some remote sea areas and the bottomless abysses that covered the Endless Sea. Many sea creatures had even become slaves of the wizards. The slave trade between schools had once prospered, and many sea creatures were sold to other schools at a high price as slaves or experimental subjects. This completed the original capital accumulation for the establishment of the Star Tower. It was only when the Pan-Plane Wizard Council was established to officially ban this slave trade that the situation improved.

In that civilization war, nearly a third of the wizard organizations were destroyed.

However, the destruction contained a new life. After experiencing the waves of sea beasts again and again.

The Pan-Plane Wizard Council was surprised to discover that after every sea beast tide, all the wizard organizations and wizards who survived could improve further. The speed of theoretical change and technological development of the Ocean School of Thought in the wizard world would also suddenly increase for a period of time.

Therefore, after the power of the wizards continued to grow, the Pan-Plane Wizard Council did not mobilize the high-end forces of the entire Wizard

World to completely destroy the sea beasts and the Sea Clan and kill them. Instead, after a long period of exploration, the time of the sea beast tide would be changed to about once every 500 years. It was equivalent to man-made control of the number of sea beasts and sea creatures, forming a "virtuous cycle". This way, not only would it not cause any major blow to the wizard faction in the Endless Sea, but it would also allow the wizards under the protection of the Pan-Plane Wizard Council to be constantly vigilant. They would use pressure as motivation, constantly innovate, change, and become stronger.

Only in this way would the Magi be able to be ready to fight and maintain their courage when facing the invasion of the gods and powerful existences from multiple dimensions in the future.

Under the deliberate cover of the Pan -Plane Wizard Council, most wizards did not know about this hidden history.

Therefore, the station commander, who was familiar with this secret history, said calmly, "Next, we'll borrow a messenger from Owlery to send a message to the wizard organizations in the various regions of the Endless Sea. At the same time, we'll temporarily terminate the flights of the Azure Ships in the various regions. We'll also remind the headquarters that at this critical moment, there might be some dark wizard organizations with ulterior motives and some speculators with ulterior motives trying to disturb the normal order and take the opportunity to cause trouble. The rest will be left to the headquarters to make their own decisions."
