

Wizard 356

Chapter 356: Level 4 Black Devil Blade, Return to Origin, Nine Golden Swords! 3

However, after the rise of the Undead Ship, these three dark wizard organizations gradually became inactive. Under the leadership of the Third-Circle Wizard Morpheus, the leaders of these dark wizard organizations came together to plot some scheme.

As for the Lost Wizard, although he was only an ordinary Second-Circle Wizard, he had mastered the knowledge of powerful arrays. Rumor has it that he had inherited the knowledge of arrays from an ancient array wizard. Array wizards were even rarer than pharmacists and weapon craftsmen. The difficulty and resources required to become an official array wizard were even greater than that of pharmacists.

Relying on arrays, he had escaped the pursuit of the Star Tower's enforcers many times. Once, he had even defeated someone stronger than himself. He killed an enforcer, a senior Second-Circle Wizard, with an array he set up. Therefore, as an extremely rare array wizard, Morpheus also invited him to participate in this operation.

Demon Harland laughed sinisterly and said, "Everyone, I believe Morpheus has informed you, so I, Harland, will not waste any more time. I will lead this operation. To not spread our strength too thin and be defeated by the enemy one by one, I want everyone to work together with me. Our first target is the Gray Tower! After we destroy the Gray Tower, we'll continue to destroy the next faction. However, we are not in a hurry to act yet. We still need to wait for a while. We are in the shadows now, and the advantage is ours. Moreover, we have an alliance with the Sea Clan. We can let those simple-minded fellows of the Sea Clan take the lead and wear down the enemy's strength. When the enemy has run out of ammunition and food, we can swiftly deal them the killing blow!"

In his previous battle with Herman, Demon Harland had been severely injured.

This time, Harland had the advantage of the sea beast tide, Pinoz's array ability, and the help of the other three Second-Circle Wizards!

With such a lineup, Harland was going to win for sure!

On the sea, black clouds loomed over the city, and a storm swept across it.

The terrible weather made the already depressing atmosphere even more demoralizing.

The sea beast tide was fast approaching.

The apprentices and wizards were all prepared.

On the twin towers, some spell runes could vaguely be seen flickering. These spell runes were all connected to form a complex array. A blue barrier could faintly be seen covering the area within a mile of the Gray Tower, forming a semi-circular barrier over it.

Runes flickered on the surface of the barrier, and light flowed around it. It was very mystical.

This was the second-circle array, Blue Ocean Shelter.

It was the most precious legacy left behind by Salman, the first Tower Master. Using Aether Stones as fuel, it drew in the power of the water element from the surroundings to form a powerful protective barrier to resist the enemy's attacks.

This array was part of the twin towers.

Back then, Salman had treated the twin towers as his own, so he had naturally put a lot of effort into protecting them.

It was said that Salman had spent tens of thousands of Aether Stones to hire an array wizard to build this array. It took two Second-Circle Wizards half a year to build it.

Blue Ocean Shelter would only be used when the Gray Tower was in grave danger. This was because the array would consume more than 100 Aether Stones daily. With the Gray Tower's size, it could not hold out for long. If it were to resist attacks and operate at full power, the amount of Aether Stones consumed would increase exponentially.

This array was enough to block most first-ring spell attacks. It could also block second-ring spell attacks, but it could not last long because it would consume too many Aether Stones to do so.

The apprentices looked at the huge array curiously. It was their first time seeing such a scene, and they were in awe.

Inside the White Tower, Marlene also looked at this scene and felt a little emotional. This array was last used during the war between Second-Circle

Wizards of the Gray Tower and the Undead Ship.

If possible, Marlene never wanted to see this array activated again.

She looked around inside the barrier. The mortals on the island had all set up temporary tents within it. They followed the wizards' orders, performing physical labor and building simple fortifications. Although these constructs were probably useless against the sea beasts, it was better than nothing. Some strong mortals or knights also armed themselves and were ready to fight anytime.

The apprentice wizards maintained order within the enchantment, and some people were on the lookout for the arrival of the enemy.

Marko was carefully checking every corner of the array to see if there were any weak spots.

Mr. Tim was explaining to the apprentices about sea beasts.

On the ninth floor of the Gray Tower, Levi opened his eyes. Behind him, a five-meter-tall black shadow appeared. The black shadow's head touched the ceiling.

It was the Nine Swords Asura evil spirit.

The current Nine Swords Asura was more tangible than before. Its figure was also taller, and its three heads were more lifelike. On its six arms, there was an additional ribbon that wrapped around its arms and body. It was like Nezha's Armillary Sash. The ribbon danced around its body.

Levi could feel the Nine Swords Asura was even more powerful now. It could flatten the twin towers with a single strike. This made Levi smile. He muttered, "My Black Devil Blade has reached level 4."

[Levi-I

[Black Devil Blade: Level 4 (235/20000)]

Level 4 was not the limit of the Black Devil Blade.

He could still continue refining it..