

Wizard 397

Chapter 397: Paralysis Ring, Seven Generals Formation, Legendary Black Whale! (4)

"These days, robbers are getting more and more cautious." Levi could not help but laugh.

Levi counted the storage bags of the two of them. The total amount of Aether Stones they had was only about 3,000. As a first-circle dark wizard who robbed and plundered every day, Levi could not help but curse them for being poor.

All that was left were some casting materials and spell books that Levi already had. There were no spells worth learning.

In addition, Levi also obtained two Wizard Tools.

One of them was Terrell's flying Wizard Tool. It was something like a shield with Burning Faction's spell runes solidified on it.

The first-circle Wizard Tool, Fire Shield, could be used for defense or flight. It was similar to Levi's Ring of the Wind Spirit. However, its defensive and flight effects were average. To Levi, who was now a treasure and had Blood Wings, this Wizard Tool was not very useful.

He planned to find an underground black market and sell this useless Wizard Tool for Aether Stones. He had bought a lot of things recently, and even with the Aether Stones he had just seized, he only had less than 10,000. According to Levi's personality, he would not feel safe without more than 10,000 Aether Stones.

The other was Moot's first-circle Wizard Tool, the Trembling Ring.

This was a first-circle spatial ring. The size of the storage space was comparable to the Ring of the Wind Spirit and the Sea Demon Ring. In addition, it was also solidified with a First-Ring Spell—Paralysis Spell.

"Hmm? It's actually this spell..." Levi didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

First-Ring Spell: Paralysis Spell.

It was a famous First-Ring Spell. Its creator was a very interesting ancient wizard, Zumar. This was a long-lost spell because this spell was extremely useless. After casting it, there was a 1% chance that the enemy would enter a so-called "paralysis" state.

After entering the paralysis state, the enemy would be unable to cast any spells or chant any spells for the next second.

As a control-type spell, this effect was indeed impressive. However, the weak point was that no matter how awesome one cultivated this spell in battle or how high one's realm was, there was only a 1% chance of it taking effect. In contrast, the paralysis spell consumed a lot of spell power and took up a wizard's mental power memory space, which was the spell slot. The cooldown time of the spell was a full day.

For most wizards, the cost-performance ratio of this spell was too low. Not to mention one percent, even one-tenth of it would be very difficult to play a role in real combat. It was better to learn a normal first-circle control spell.

Of course, the reason why the paralysis spell was called an interesting spell was because of this paralysis effect. It could not only be used on First-Circle Wizards, but also on second-circles and even Intermediate Wizards. The duration of the paralysis effect would continuously decrease with the advancement of the realm. It was said that only high-level wizards could completely avoid this paralysis effect.

Some people called it the “Luck Technique”, while others called it the “Woe Technique”.

In short, this spell had gradually been lost in the long history. Only a very small number of Wizard Tools that had been passed down from ancient times could solidify this spell.

Obviously, Moot’s ring was an Ancient Wizard Tool.

Levi shook his head. “I’ve always been unlucky when it comes to gaming. Such spells are probably useless to me, but this ring itself is a spatial ring, so I can keep it.”

Levi put the Trembling Ring on his left middle finger. His left thumb and index finger were already wearing the Ring of the Wind Spirit and the Sea Demon

Ring.

“The progress of the Ten-Ringed Knight has reached 30%.”

His goal was to put all ten fingers on the ring-type Wizard Tool.

In the end, Levi turned the two first-circle wizards into living dead as well. The lineup of the Seven Generals of the Living-dead Family formed by the Seal of Hell was fully formed! Playing the Summoning Style meant bullying others with numbers. Who would fight one-on-one?

The Rock Troll couple, Carter and Moot, Kane and Terrell, and the Sea Clan's

Little Octo.

No one below the second circle could withstand seven generals!

Including Levi, there were only four First-Circle Wizards in the Gray Tower, which was one of the top organizations in this sea area.

To a certain extent, Levi's Seven Generals of the Living-dead Family could already defeat many Second-Circle Wizard organizations, not to mention the combat power of those above the second circle.

Apart from that, Levi also had nine first-circle subordinates, including the Poison Fire Bone Snake and Leviathan. All of them were under Levi's command.

"However, the Seal of Hell's current potential is only so-so. Unless there's a chance to break through the limit in the future, controlling seven first-circle living dead is the upper limit. After all, the Seal of Hell is only a seal created by Constantine's ancestors based on the First-Ring Spell—Undead Summoning. Undead Summoning can only summon first-circle creatures at most. If you want to summon creatures above the second circle, you need a corresponding special advanced spell.

Of course, for Levi to be able to use the seals of a mortal aristocratic family to this extent, even the ancestors of Constantine's mortal aristocratic family might not be as powerful.

After solving the problem, Levi continued to cultivate and refine his Swordsman Mantis..