Chapter 435: Unpredictable Human Hearts, CityDestroying Battle, Certification Successful! (6)

Levi came to the inland area of Ocean Current Island. In an underground karst cave group more than ten kilometers away from him, he sensed Doug's aura. In addition, there seemed to be another unfamiliar aura. This aura was stronger than Doug's, giving Levi quite a sense of danger. The owner of the aura seemed to be between the first and second circles, which made him hesitate.

He saved the other party's aura and began to wait patiently.

He sensed the auras of those two from afar. With the perception range of his snake tongue, he was very confident that the other party did not discover him.

The next day, the aura that gave Levi quite a sense of danger finally left, leaving only Doug.

Levi waited for another half a day. After confirming that the person had indeed left, he quickly headed in Doug's direction with a cold expression.

In a deep underground cave, Doug leaned against the ground. His body was covered in the burn marks from the black sun, and his face was pale and in pain.

"Damn Clair! I was so loyal to him, but he abandoned me!" Doug cursed in his heart.

For the past two days, he and the Red Flame Witch had been hiding in this deep underground cave in the inland area to avoid the Star Tower's pursuit. This place was thousands of meters underground, and the rock layers inside had a significant isolation effect on spiritual force. Even the Perception spells of third-circle wizards would find it difficult to penetrate the rock layers since most of the Perception spells were based on spiritual force.

Since Claur, as the leader of the Tower of Flames, had committed a crime, a lackey like Doug naturally couldn't escape responsibility either. It was just that currently, most of the enforcers had gone after Claur, and no one cared about a Small figure like him, which allowed him to escape.

Suddenly, Doug sensed that someone had come to the karst cave.

It was not the Red Flame Witch.

Doug immediately became alert.

A figure flashed and appeared before him in a bloody light at a speed that exceeded his imagination. Doug immediately unleashed the fireball that he had long prepared.

Boom!

The fireball exploded and engulfed the other party.

The fire lit up the dark underground cave-

In the flames, a ferocious black humanoid monster covered in black scales appeared. The monster flicked its tongue and saliva flowed out. It bathed in the flames and shook it off. Then, it came to Doug, strangling the weak wizard and pressing him against the wall.

Crack! Crack!

Accompanied by the sound of bones breaking, Doug's anguished cry echoed in the cave. The bones in his limbs were all shattered, and so were his palms.

Levi's Frost Arm wrapped around Doug's body, freezing the surface of his body with a layer of frost. He then asked coldly, "Why do you want to harm me?"

"Who are you?" Doug asked.

Levi exerted his strength and almost strangled Doug to death.

The scales on his face temporarily dispersed, revealing his face.

"I just wanted to come here to get certified as a pharmacist. Why would you want to harm me? I don't like to be physical. I like to be kind to others and make money nicely. Why? Why force me to make a move?"

Doug was in extreme pain as he said, "Sir Levi... It's a misunderstanding, it was all a misunderstanding... We thought that you were invited by the Lush Forest Witch to go against the Tower of Flames... Don't kill me! I beg you, I can pass my weapon-making inheritance to you. It isn't with me, so if you kill me, don't even think about getting my inheritance! Don't you want to become a weapon craftsman?"

Crack.

Doug's head was crushed by Levi, and the Saint Scorpions quickly enjoyed this rare feast of a first-circle wizard's soul. Levi watched as the Saint Scorpions devoured Doug completely before picking up his storage bag, his heart calm.

In such a chaotic situation, killing Doug would not cause any trouble. No matter what, the other party had wanted to harm him, so he had to kill him. Levi did not hesitate!

He opened Doug's storage bag and took a glance, immediately seeing the book on weapon-making called the Star-Casting Rune Book. It was obvious that it was Doug's weapon-making inheritance.

"You're still lying to me? I'm sorry, I'm lying to you too. I do want to learn weapon-making."

Levi put everything away. By now, Doug had already been eaten by the Saint Scorpions, leaving behind only bones. He used the Fireball Technique to destroy the corpse and picked up a red glove from the ground. This was the first-circle Wizard Tool that Doug had just used to cast his spell.

After doing all this, Levi quickly left.

After leaving the crime scene, he took a long detour and returned to Hot Wind City. He was not in a hurry to leave. He still had to ask the Lush Forest Witch if she could register him as a pharmacist.

Now, Levi had learned from Doug that the Lush Forest Witch had no ill intentions toward him. To put it bluntly, this was a complete misunderstanding. It was just that he was too unlucky and happened to bump into them.

He came to the Lush Forest Tower. The two guards guarding the door were no longer there. They might have died in the battle. At the top of the Lush Forest Tower, the Lush Forest Witch said in a cold voice, "Come on up. I can't let you come here for nothing."

"Thank you, Lady Lola," Levi said happily.

He carefully went to the top. A silver-haired girl was with the Lush Forest Witch. It was the genius girl with double affinity, Sheely, whom Levi had previously traveled with on the ship. The girl was originally going to be given to Claur, but now she was here with Lola.

Apart from them, the other two first-circle pharmacists were also here. They hid in the Lush Forest Tower and escaped the disaster.

"Let's begin. What potion are you refining?" The Lush Forest Witch asked. "My lord, I will refine the first-circle Blood Elf's Wail," Levi said.

"Very well," The Lush Forest Witch said.

The following refining process could be said to be easy. Levi was already a first-circle senior pharmacist, and he had refined this potion many times. The possibility of failure was very low, so he naturally succeeded on the first try.

"Congratulations, first-ring certified pharmacist Levi. After a while, a letter from the Pharmacist Association's headquarters will be sent to the Gray Tower. Do take note to receive it since it contains your pharmacist license. When you go back, please send my regards to little Marlene. I also hope that you will become an outstanding pharmacist," Lola said.

"Thank you, my lord! Thank you so much!" Levi left the Lush Forest Tower respectfully, finally heaving a sigh of relief in his heart. The most important mission of this trip was completed.

Of course, there was also a pleasant surprise, and that was Doug's weapon-making inheritance.

Although Levi had never thought of learning weapon-making, he could not waste it now that it was in his hands.

In the future, he would find time to learn, though its importance was ranked last to him. He was merely going with the flow..
