

Wizard 661

Chapter 661: Five Years, Perfection! (5)

"Yeah, it's time to leave."

"Alright, we'll pack up immediately. Master, where are we going this time?"

"This time... I'm going home." Levi thought of the Black Fire Island. It had been many years since he went back.

After tidying up, Levi tidied up the house and left.

He gave the weapons that he had not sold in his blacksmith shop to some people who needed them and then went to the small tavern.

"It's closed?"

Levi looked at the closed tavern.

Then, he used Intuition to sweep through the entire city.

There was no sign of the lady boss or Little Leah in the entire city.

"Neet, where's the lady boss? I'm waiting for a beer." Levi looked at the old man sitting beside the tavern and asked.

"What did you say?" Neet asked loudly.

"Just bask in the sun. It's none of your business." Levi searched carefully and finally found a faint trace by relying on the smell.

He asked some mortals nearby.

In the end, he learned that someone had seen the lady boss and Leah leaving with a mysterious man in black last night.

Levi found someone to ask for a general direction. It matched the intermittent traces of his Perception.

His expression was calm as he walked forward.

Levi had thought that he could easily catch up to the other party with mortal feet.

But after flying for a while, he still couldn't find Leah with his Perception.

He guessed that the lady boss and Leah had most likely been taken away by the wizard. Otherwise, they wouldn't have run so quickly.

That man in black should be a wizard.

"Maybe Leah's talent was discovered by a passing wizard?" Levi analyzed in his heart.

He decided to look again. If it didn't work out, he'd let it go.

Everyone had their own fortuitous encounters. There was no need for Levi to force Leah to become Ms. Marlene's disciple. After all, she might not be willing to become a wizard.

On the southern side of the Yellow Earth Continent.

This was Black Water Tower's Residence.

This newly formed organization had been thriving in Yellow Earth Continent for the past two years.

He suppressed the Righteous Wizard Alliance formed by the two veteran Third-Circle Wizard organizations, Golden Lion and Wham, alone.

The reason why the Black Water Tower was so powerful was because of its leader.

The Hundred Poison Wizard, Clay.

He was a dark wizard who had made countless righteous wizards tremble in fear in the Yellow Earth Continent over the years.

With the support of the Black Sun Steeple, the Black Water Tower expanded rapidly and soon unified the central region of the Yellow Earth Continent.

This organization had a total of three Third-Circle Wizards, two ordinary Third-Circle Wizards, and one senior Third-Circle Wizard.

On the way to the Black Water Tower.

An Iron-Winged Griffin was soaring in the sky.

The Iron-Winged Griffin was a second-circle transcendent creature. Although it looked like a lion and had four furry claws, in fact, in terms of blood relations, it was closer to a vulture or Dira or prey.

This was a relatively rare second-circle transcendent bird. It had powerful long-distance flying ability and extraordinary combat strength.

Griffins were considered very famous transcendent creatures in the Wizard World. They often appeared in the legends of bards and were as famous as dragons.

Above the Iron-Winged Griffins were Silver-Winged Griffins which were comparable to third-circle creatures and Golden-Winged Griffin Kings which were comparable to fourth-circle creatures.

Many wizards were proud of taming a griffin as a mount. This was a powerful symbol.

On the back of this Iron-Winged Griffin, a handsome dark wizard revealed a happy expression.

He was Lindt, a Third-Circle Wizard.

He used to be a low-profile rogue cultivator, but now he was famous in the Yellow Earth Continent.

This was because he was one of the three Third-Circle Wizards of the Black Water Tower, the right-hand man of the Hundred Poison Wizard.

"I accidentally found a seedling with dual-elemental affinity when I went out this time. Not bad. It'll be useful to nurture it." Lindt was in a good mood.

On the back of the griffin were two figures, one big and one small. It was the lady boss and Leah.

The reason why he took the lady boss away was purely because Lindt had heard that the lady boss was a widow. He also liked her, so he decided to take her back to satisfy his cravings.

"I didn't expect that the legendary wizards would do such a thing and bully the weak." The lady boss's heart was like dead ashes.

Originally, she had wanted Leah to step into the Wizard World, but from the looks of it, if the Wizard World was filled with such scum, she might as well not go.

"You can say whatever you want. I won't be angry. The more you act like this, the more excited I am," Lindt said with a smile.

"You should be glad that if it weren't for me, you and your daughter would have died of old age in the mortal world. How many people want to become wizards?" Lindt pinched the face of the lady boss and teased.

Leah, on the other hand, was still unconscious.

"Shameless." The lady boss could not struggle. She looked at Lindt with disdain.

"Don't judge a wizard by the morality of mortals. What wizards pursue is only knowledge and the unattainable truth. Morality is just an excuse for the weak to get trapped and protect themselves," Lindt said calmly without being angry at all.

The lady boss was in complete despair.

How could she be at ease with Leah joining such a wizard organization?

No wonder there were rumors that wizards were synonymous with evil and selfishness.

From the looks of it, that was indeed the case.

At that moment, a large hand suddenly reached out from the void beside the lady boss and Leah, easily tearing apart the binding force of the water current. The next moment, the lady boss and Leah disappeared from the griffin's back..