Chapter 766: The Greatest in the World! (4)

The Master Dragon covenant took effect, and Levi opened Alice's ring.

The prerequisite for containing an object within Alice's ring was that the contained entity submitted to Levi and agreed to enter willingly. Otherwise, Levi would have to render the entity unconscious before placing it inside.

In such a situation, if the awakened entity possessed too much strength, Alice's ring wouldn't be able to contain it. There was even a risk of the entity destroying the spatial array within Alice's ring. In that case, both the ring and other creatures inside could be swept into the turbulent secondary space.

Levi collected some blood from the Flame-Blood Earthly Dragon Beast and tested it with the Rowling Crystal. The blood contained an astonishing 11% of the Gloomy Lamp Dragon's lineage!

Flame beasts, Flame-Blood Earthly Dragon Beasts, and Flame-Blood Rampage Dragons essentially belonged to the same species. The differences in the concentration of Gloomy Lamp Dragon's blood led to mutations or evolution.

"Unfortunately, no Ancient Beasts were found. Never mind, I shouldn't be too greedy. The bloodline of the third-circle Fire Dragon Clan should be satisfying enough... Anyway, the next cultivation elixir for the Crimson Emperor Dragon is settled."

Levi left the area contentedly.

Monka and his subordinates arrived at the large pit, only to see puddles of blood saturated with the intense Flame-Blood energy.

There was no doubt that this was the lair of the Flame-Blood Earthly Dragon Beast.

"Hurry, collect it all, don't let it go to waste," Monka said, looking at the blood with a tinge of heartache.

In the Holy Brilliance Calendar year 1093, during the Month of Flowers, the 62nd year of the Great Expedition, the Endless Sea.

In the eighth area of the outer sea region, within the Giant Tree Secret Realm, this was the secluded area of the Lush Forest Tower.

It was under the protection of Riemann, a fourth-circle Star Supervisor wizard. Over the past years, the Lush Forest Tower remained stable.

Inside a small herb garden, Marlene was gathering medicinal herbs.

Unbeknownst to her, this elderly person was already over two hundred and seventy years old.

Under normal circumstances, a second-circle wizard would have a lifespan of around three hundred years without special longevity potions or unique constitutions.

Even with considerable costs and the consumption of all available longevity potions, they might only gain an additional fifty years. However, for a low-level wizard like Marlene, this was clearly not practical.

Nevertheless, Marlene didn't seem afraid of growing older.

Mortal beings all face death, and wizards are no exception.

"Granny Marlene, there's new frontline news from the Great Expedition," Winnie said, holding a freshly printed Great Expedition Annual Report.

It was a newspaper specifically dedicated to the Great Expedition.

Winnie, currently a senior first-circle wizard, was not far from advancing to a second-circle wizard due to her exceptional talent.

"Winnie, read it to me," Granny Marlene said, sitting in her rocking chair, gazing into the sky of the secret realm.

"Deep Blue Sage Luther severely wounded the Father of Plagues. After three years of cleanup, the main force of the Plague Legion has been mostly eliminated. Currently, the Myriad Machine Plane has been partially reclaimed, and the battle groups sent there are either continuing to support other planes or returning with the Sky City under Deep Blue Sage Luther's command."

Upon hearing this, a divine glow suddenly appeared on Granny Marlene's face.

"So, is there a chance for Herman to come back?" she asked.

"It's not clear yet. The report doesn't include the list of returning personnel."

"Ah, I hope that old rascal comes back soon... By the way, have there been any updates on Levi lately?" Granny Marlene inquired.

"No, there's no news about Levi. He seems to have gone somewhere. I asked a friend in Riptide City, and he mentioned seeing a death notice that might have had Levi's name on it... but he wasn't sure if it was the same person," Winnie replied in a somber tone.

It definitely can't be... Even if it's a mistake from Riptide City, Levi wouldn't die so easily. I believe in him, and Tower Master won't die either... My old bones are still alive and kicking, so how could Levi, who's young, be dead?" Granny Marlene spoke, her voice getting softer, and her eyes slightly red.

Sixty years of war, a few old friends still survive.

Star Sea, the legendary Sea of Six Towers.

As the core of the Endless Sea, the situation here was relatively stable, with many high-level primordial soul wizards overseeing the region. Ordinary dark wizards dared not easily set foot in these waters.

On a long and narrow island, within a wizard market, a seemingly inconspicuous wizard tool shop operated quietly.

"White Sands Wizard Tool Shop, sold Quasi-Wizard-grade magic wands, First-Circle and Second-Circle Wizard Tools, accepted Wizard Tool customizations, and offered trade-ins for new ones..."

A wizard wearing a black windbreaker arrived, his features sharply defined. He gazed at the wizard tool shop and then stepped inside.

"What kind of Wizard Tool did you need?" Xavier, the owner of the Wizard Tool shop, sensed a customer and came down from the wizard tower, smiling as he inquired.

The man in the windbreaker coughed, his appearance changing, and Xavier's expression shifted slightly.

"Lord Sparrow?"

"That's right."

"I wonder what brought Lord Sparrow here?"

"I'd like to invite you to join the Starfire Wizard Academy as a professor in the Weapon-Making department."

"Lord Sparrow, my strength was modest, and my knowledge of weapon-making was only rudimentary. Taking on a professorship was beyond my capability. The Starfire Wizard Academy has flourished in recent years; surely, you could invite more qualified weapon craftsmen. Why insist on inviting me?"

"Because you were recommended by an old friend."

"Who?"

"Your old friend, Levi."

Month of Flowing Fire, June in the mortal realm.

Peacock Kingdom.

In the past two years, the kingdom had experienced occasional outbreaks of plagues or flu on a small scale, but it quickly disappeared. Each time, it claimed some lives.
