Marcellus handed over a piece of paper. Then, he limped away.

"The Swallow family..."

Andrius opened it and widened his eyes when he read it, muttering softly.

Many thoughts flashed through his mind in an instant. After Duncan was killed, the Swallow family kept a low profile and no longer stirred up trouble.

However, last it was known, many ancient martial forces had begun to work together economically, indicating that they had come together.

Currently, the Swallows took over a water supply company and started causing trouble...

Andrius could not help but be suspicious that the ancient martial families led by the Swallows and many other ancient martial forces had already united and were working together with the Insect Ruler.

Otherwise, why did Carl jump out so eagerly just after Insect Ruler's uprising at the cordillera?

It seemed that Andrius needed to go to Kiyoto to discuss this matter with the emperor.

At those thoughts, Andrius immediately called Dax. "I found out some stuff, so I won't go over yet. I'll talk to you after I'm done."

After hanging up the phone, Andrius went straight to Kiyoto.

At the Forbidden Palace...

"What's the rush, Andrius?" Registus asked in confusion when he saw Andrius rushing over.

"Bad news." Andrius explained the situation and added at the end, "It seems the Swallow family united the ancient martial families and are colluding with the Insect Ruler. Currently, both sides are making a move at the same time. The darkest, ultimate moment might be coming soon."

The ultimate moment!

Registus' expression changed slightly, a hint of worry in his eyes. "The Insect Ruler has been operating in Murrfield for decades and can't be underestimated.

"Now that he's colluding with so many ancient martial families, they're able to work together both inside and outside..."

"If we fail to handle either side, it will lead to the downfall of Florence. This time is truly dangerous."

Andrius' expression and mood were also very heavy. As the Wolf King of Florence, he could not allow something like that to happen. He had to take action.

Registus thought about it and asked, "Did you come to me because you thought of a plan?"

Andrius shook his head at Registus' eager gaze. "No, but to solve this crisis, I think it's best to take the initiative while they haven't completely come together. We'll seize the opportunity."

Andrius' eyes were filled with wisdom.

Registus raised his brows and asked, "What do you mean?"

"First, uproot all the ancient martial families colluding with the Insect Ruler and wipe them out."

"Then, unify the ancient martial world and work with the military to march to Murrfield. We'll completely crush all the Insect Ruler's schemes and plots and purge the filth he has accumulated over the years!

Andrius' voice was not loud, but it was full of righteousness and resoluteness, resonating throughout the heaven and earth.

Furthermore, it carried tremendous weight!

The ancient martial families in Florence were deeply rooted. Uprooting them was not just a matter of talking but required real effort...

Furthermore, the Insect Ruler was a generational hero with great talents and strategies, causing chaos for many years.

Andrius' words meant a decisive battle against both sides!

Just then, an elderly voice came from afar. "No! You must not act against the ancient martial families yet."

At those words, a figure also descended gracefully.

Chapter 1422

It was none other than Old Hagstorm.

"Master!"

"Master!"

Registus and Andrius went up to greet him.

Old Hagstorm nodded in acknowledgment.

Andrius frowned and asked in confusion, "You said not to act against those ancient martial families yet, but what?"

Old Hagstorm took a deep breath, his expression instantly becoming solemn, and said slowly, "Because the Insect Ruler has prepared everything.

"The Demon Emperor is about to emerge!"

The demon emperor...

That was an extraordinary existence, a legendary leader in the world of shamanism!

He was about to be resurrected!
