Chapter 738: Pure Yang Treasure_2

Among them, obtaining the Fire Jade Heart Lotus is relatively easy, requiring only a piece of fire-attribute jade and a red lotus that blooms deep within a volcano.

For the fire-attribute jade, Chen Mobai could figure out a way to trade for a piece of thousand-year warm jade with the Snow-blowing Palace. The volcano red lotus can be found deep within the Treasure Trove, though it requires a considerable number of credits for exchange.

A Rank-3 red lotus needs 200 credits.

However, if Chen Mobai pooled together his credits by the end of the year, he would have enough.

But compared to the Fire Jade Heart Lotus, he was more interested in the Pure Yang Bell, even though the functions of these two magic artifacts were nearly identical.

However, the main material for the Fire Jade Heart Lotus, warm jade, could potentially expose his Turtle Treasure, and the potential for improvement was limited.

In comparison, the Pure Yang Bell offered the possibility of forming a Primordial Yang Set, with far greater potential for future improvement.

However, the materials for the Pure Yang Bell were difficult to gather. Furthermore, because it was to be crafted by a Nascent Soul cultivator, the origins of all the materials had to be clear. The main material for crafting the bell, Rank-3 red copper, was best purchased from the Immortal Sect's side.

Chen Mobai looked up the prices online and found that if he wanted to create the Pure Yang Bell, he would likely need to spend nearly twenty million Good Deed Points purchasing red copper.

Furthermore, Rank-3 red copper was regulated by the Immortal Sect, and as a cultivator at the Foundation Establishment stage, he couldn't buy it yet.

However, if he decided to choose the Pure Yang Bell as the embryo for his magical treasure, perhaps Master Cheng Xuan and Teacher Che Yucheng would help him out?

If all else fails, he could choose Ming Yuhua's method and fabricate a bell-shaped artifact from the "Device Nurturing Sphere", then have the headmaster modify it. That way, he could save a lot on material costs.

With these thoughts, Chen Mobai tentatively set the Pure Yang Bell as his first choice for his magical treasure embryo.

After making the decision, he was suddenly free from his worries.

After thanking Ming Yuhua over a phone call, Chen Mobai once again energetically dived into adjustments to the Faceless Puppet.

Indeed, the peak of the Immortal Sect's Puppetry Technique was extraordinary, as they encountered a variety of problems during the debugging process.

However, Chen Mobai overcame these challenges one by one while in a state of total comprehension. The replacing of components and other related tasks cost another one to two million Good Deed Points, but these costs were all counted on Zhou Tiangong's account.

During this time, Wenren Xuewei was also regularly on a video call with them because the materials for Bionics could only be cultivated and created at the Jumang Daoist Academy.

The items needed for recultivation were all ordered by Chen Mobai and then promptly arranged by her. The materials were then shipped at the fastest speed possible.

They had initially predicted that they would complete it by the end of June, but ultimately, it was dragged out until the end of August.

However, no one complained because they saw the Faceless Puppet become more and more perfect each day.

By the time it was finally complete, the expressionless puppet, standing in the middle of the workshop looking similar to a human figure, drew contented smiles from Chen Mobai, his two companions, and even Wenren Xuewei, who was on the video call.

Zhou Tiangong took out a spirit stone that had been charged by the Immortal Sect, expertly placed it in the puppet’s head, then inputted a Qi Cultivation technique and began the process of Foundation Establishment.

In the cluttered workshop filled with various parts and tools, the Faceless Puppet gradually became transparent. Its meridians, bones, and internal organs slowly emerged.

Under the tense gazes of the four individuals, the number wheel situated in the puppet’s left eye began to slowly rotate, moving from “zero” to “one”.

It then quickly became “nine”, signifying the beginning of the simulated Foundation Establishment process.

Seeing this scene in front of them, the foursome couldn’t help but feel overjoyed, exchanging high fives.

More than half a year’s effort had finally yielded perfect results today.

“The three of you have worked hard.”

Although Wenren Xuewei wasn’t physically there, she empathized with them and gave them a gentle round of applause, smiling warmly at the three through the video call.

“You’ve also worked hard, senior sister.”

Although Wenren Xuewei had only been there three or four times, without her help at Jumang Daoist Academy, the progress of the Faceless Puppet might have been delayed by a year or two.

“Senior sister, you should come and celebrate with us. The day after tomorrow, we’re going to the Immortal Sect’s Certification Department to apply for certification for the Faceless Puppet. As long as we pass, the four of us can get our Rank-3 Puppet Master certificates.”

Chen Mobai invited Wenren Xuewei, who was on the video call. She nodded her agreement. It was such an important occasion; she needed to be there in person.

Afterwards, Chen Mobai filmed a video of the operational Faceless Puppet and sent it to Che Yucheng, attaching a short message.

[Teacher, I’ve done it.]

In his office, Che Yucheng, who was reading a newspaper, glanced at the video on his mobile screen and involuntarily held his breath. A sense of indescribable satisfaction appeared on his aged face.

[Good job, you can graduate now.]

Seeing this message, Chen Mobai couldn’t help but smile, though he remained humble.

[I still have a lot to learn.]

Laughing heartily, Che Yucheng watched the video of the Faceless Puppet operating over and over, and eventually couldn’t resist visiting Chen Mobai’s workshop in person.

“Master Che!”

All three present were students of Che Yucheng, their faces full of reverence when they saw him.

“You’ve all done excellent.”

Touching the Faceless Puppet, which although still lacking some refinement was already functionally complete, a look of delight filled Che Yucheng’s face.

“The professional certification for Rank-3 Puppet Masters has to go through me, as I am the authority on the Faceless Puppet. There’s nothing wrong with yours; you will definitely get the Rank-3 certificates.”
