

World Plot 1361

Chapter 1361: Second Red Star - The Zerg King is Impartial.

Rescue operations are still in progress. There is another crisis in the Hive in the meanwhile. As King Augustus Kaiser was keeping an eye on the Zerg Queen's predicament, a few female zergs unexpectedly approached his chamber and begged for assistance. It appears that without Marquess Conrad Silver watching over them, the nobles, or male zergs, began acting out once more.

Suddenly, King Augustus saw some female zergs kneeling in front of his chamber. Since most of the guards manning the King chambers were females as well, they sympathized with them and pleaded for the Zerg King within.

"Your Majesty, please save us."

"Your majesty, please help us."

"The male Zergs are doing it again. They are bullying us. and telling us that we aren't needed."

"Please listen to our pleas. We plead with his majesty to save us."

Normally, King Augustus Kaiser would not give these issues much thought. He is merely here to find his wife, after all. Unless it was absolutely essential, he would stay out of the world's troubles. However, I believed that he was the one who sent the two wardens away, which is what brought about this predicament. With a sigh, he rose from where he was standing.

He once left his room with an unidentified glass crystal in his hand. The closest royal guard received it from him.

"Follow me. Conrad and Cyril are not around. You and your group shall run errands for me today. Let's first resolve the situation." King Augustus walked with confident strides as he headed to the exit of his palace.

A horde of female zergs was bowing, some even kowtowing, in the front yard of his palace. When these female zergs noticed King Augustus emerging, they were ecstatic. The monarch himself gave them hardly more than a sidelong glance before turning to leave.

"Follow."

With King Augustus Kaiser on the lead, everyone in the Imperial Palace noticed the sudden appearance of King Augustus, who had locked himself up in his chamber. The news about this scene immediately spread to those noble clans as their spy saw that the Zerg King was once again heading to the throne hall.

As expected, not long after, all the noble heads, including the military leaders, were summoned to the hall.

Seated on his throne, King Augustus Kaiser wore an expression of disinterest. The people in front of him were clearly divided into two groups. The male zergs are leading the noble faction, and the female zergs are leading the military. As for the ones that made him come out of his palace, they are right in front of him.

A small group of female zergs who beg him to come out, and a few royal guards stationed near the king are waiting to run errands.

The evening in the royal hall was serene. Nobody is brave enough to breathe heavily without attempting to strike up a discussion. Ultimately, their hearts were instilled with an innate fear after seeing what transpired during the few previous court sessions. Those who attempt to oppose this diminutive monarch will inevitably meet their demise.

"I want one representative from the victim's side and one representative from the male master's side. You have three minutes to give me the people. Failure to fulfill this requirement, both sides shall receive punishment. Let's see, for the punishment, how about being crippled? You won't be able to cultivate the technique I had given.

This will involve everyone, including your families and friends," King Augustus Kaiser said. The people in the hall couldn't help but shiver at such cruel punishment.

Silence descended in the throne hall.

King Augustus' words broke the silence: "Royal Guards, time out the three minutes; if no one steps out, capture all those involved. I don't care if there are male and female zergs. All involved shall be captured. This is a royal decree."

Everyone concerned about this issue had gone into a panic. After all, the male zergs were the ones causing the panic. They are the ones at fault here. The female zergs were agitated as well, but their main concern was with their representative.

The Zerg Queen's deputy is Lieutenant General Yves Nokto. The main crew left him to tend to their troops after Queen Titania departed the hive for a mission. While the queen was away, he was instructed to keep an eye on the hive. After hearing the story, he assumed the representative role of the female zergs in light of the current issue and gathered evidence of abuse from the male zergs.

"I will represent you guys. Leave the rest to me," Lieutenant General Yves said.

The female zergs' side collectively said, "Thank you, Lieutenant General Yves!"

A female zerg who was not from the palace and instead came from the military still didn't hear the news about King Zerg's changes and suddenly asked, "Lieutenant, what should we do if the King sides with the male zergs again? The general is not with us right now?"

When he asked this, the female zergs from the palace all looked at him with a slightly unfriendly expression. It's been a while since they heard another female zerg speak in such a way towards their king.

Lieutenant General Yves patted his subordinates shoulder and said, "He changed. Watch, and you shall understand."

Moving on, he introduced himself as the Zergs' female emissary. The three minutes the King of Zergs had specified were not yet up, so he merely asked him to wait for a little while longer. Finally, in the final half-second of his allotted time, his bored gaze shifted to the side where the male Zergs are located. His expression is blank right now, but it is not a friendly one.

King Augustus said, "Last 30 minutes. If there is no representative from the male zerg side, then..."

Suddenly, at the tip of his left hand index finger, there was a black flame. The tiny black flame flicked onto one of the throne hall's pillars and vanished into thin air. Everyone had seen how the enormous, heavy wooden pillar was burned down by a tiny, black flame. What they had seen had left everyone in disbelief.

Ignoring the terror of those in the hall beside him, King Augustus Kaiser looked to the side where the male zergs were stationed.

"Bring me your representative, or the culprit itself. You do wish to become like that pillar. Only ashes shall be left of you when I am done with you guys."

The male zergs shudder at those scornful looks. The noble who instigated this scene is met with a glare by the male zergs across the room. It would not have ended this way if he had not abused his female zergs with his newly acquired capacity to augment his physical strength. The party forced this haughty noble to appoint zergs as their representative by threatening to kill him.

The nobleman had no choice but to stand alone in front, his whole body trembling.

Pretending not to see the male zergs on the other side was King Augustus Kaiser. He could begin the meeting now that the two sides had picked their representatives. He motioned for the guard to take a position in front of him while holding a crystal ball.

"This is a crystal ball that can detect lies. It would emit electricity to electrocute the one who spoke a lie. You wouldn't die if you lied; it's just a bit painful. Both representatives shall touch the crystal. If you don't... Snort!"

Such a marvelous gadget astounded Lieutenant General Yves. In the military, this is a need. In order to determine whether or not the spies they had apprehended were telling the truth, this thing is the most helpful tool. He wanted to request a copy from the monarch, but it would have to wait after this pretense of deceit.

After some time, two men stood next to the crystal and touched its exterior as they waited for the king to pose questions that they could respond to. Beside the king, a different guard carried a little stack of reports concerning the circumstances. This is just another instance of the hive's common practice of domestic abuse.

King Augustus Kaiser said, "Let's begin. Do the two of you remember the new laws and laws I have removed and changed?"

"Yes, I remember everything," Lieutenant General Yves said.

The noble man answered while sweating, "I also remember your majesty."

Since the two told the truth, none of them had received any punishment. King Augustus turned his attention from the data in front of him to the persons enthroned before him. The two of them, along with everyone else in the hall, were astonished when they met the Zerg King's obsidian gaze. Gazing into their monarch's gaze is akin to gazing into an unending chasm. He is perfect and unreadable.

King Augustus asked, "Do you know the reason why you are called here?"

"Of course, your majesty," Yves replied.

Conversely, the nobleman standing next to him appeared somewhat frustrated and defenseless. He found it hard to believe that his slight abuse of his wife would lead to this kind of issue, and that even the terrifying monarch was made aware of it.

He couldn't understand; he could always do as he wished, as he is a male zerg, but just because the king had a change of heart, everything they were taught and used to had changed.

A lot of the noble male Zergs couldn't accept this change, but they were so afraid of King Zerg's authority that they didn't choose to complain. But doing something behind the king's back, there are so many ways to do it. Though he didn't expect that his wife, whom he had thought he had dominance over, would cause this, he beat him up a bit and spoke some nasty words.

The noble man said, "Yes, esteemed majesty, but don't you think it's a bit strange for your majesty to get involved in the problem of someone's home?"

"Who are you to question me? Hm?" King Augustus Kaiser's voice had a casual tone, yet the man who caused these words to be asked felt that the air he breathes is choking him badly.

Cough! Cough!

Lieutenant General Yves, upon seeing that this stupid fool had overstepped his boundaries and that the king was about to kill the foolish insect, spoke out.

"Your Majesty, please calm down. Married females who lost their pair in death cannot get married again. I hope his Majesty will listen to our pleas."

"Fine. Let's remove that law as well. It's indeed unfair for the female zergs to not get married after being widowed." King Augustus' response to Lieutenant General Yves was neutral. As for the one that pissed him off, his sharp gaze landed on his body. "Speak more nonsense and I will behead you. You want to change the law of the Hive?"

There is a way. Change the one who currently sits on the throne. If you can cause me to abdicate, you should be able to remove the laws I placed and make your own rules. By the way, the moment I abdicate, the cultivation technique I've given away will fade from your mind. You do know it can't be written or recorded, right?"

Even though King Augustus spoke in a casual manner, the individuals in the audience were shocked by what they had just heard. They had no idea that the man who had been before them was the reason they were unable to write down the cultivation method for their mental power they had been taught. Not to mention going back to the period before they did not know it.

The remarks made by King Augustus Kaiser were less of a reminder and more of a menace.

"Let's continue the hearing."

With the female zerg's victory, the domestic abuse case had come to a close. The Zerg King had stood by while the foolish nobleman's wife battered his male master in the same manner that had been done to him for years. The female zerg is free to beat the noble man however she pleases, provided he is still alive. This the punishment for the male zerg and a reward for the female zerg.

Augustus Kaiser penalized the male zergs who breached the law directly and questioned the other female zergs if their circumstances were comparable in order to prevent them from being called in for the same issue. Though he did not kill them, he destroyed their spiritual realm. They gradually deteriorate into common insects with no spiritual power, making them the weakest members of the hive.

There are also some female zergs who wanted to make sure of the situation to get dominance over their male masters, which in the end got busted and received the same punishment as the first case. King Augustus lends strength to the male zerg who was schemed at and beats up his wife. The hive's belief that King Zerg will never show favoritism to either side was cemented by this scene.

Chapter 1362: Second Red Star - Heroine

Back to the Federation Star...

The federation had finally learned of the massacre that had taken place in the village during the execution stage. A general named Barret Warren commanded a small number of human soldiers. Only the human remains, left to rot where they had perished, remained in the nearly empty community.

The human warriors grimace in disgust and wrath at the smell that permeates the entire area—a smell of blood, rotting flesh, and corpses.

Ugh!

"Who the hell did this!? They don't even spare the civilians!" A human soldier exclaimed.

General Barret surveyed the entire scene with his eyes. He saw that the executioners there were so terribly hacked that it was difficult to identify them. Their faces were filled with anguish and terror as their heads were even hung from the execution platform.

Additionally, he saw that the only thing in the vicinity was a pile of ashes, of which more than half had been scattered by the wind, rather than even a single halfling corpse.

Examining the wounds of the executed individuals and deceased civilians reveals that the person who carried out the procedure was well-versed in the intricacies of human anatomy. It may be one of the two: a soldier on duty or a doctor. With every whip and pistol wound, he witnesses no hesitancy. Therefore, he tends more toward the latter.

His expression darkened as he considered the idea that had caused his unfavorable premonition.

General Barret Warren commanded, "Clean up the scene. Just burn the corpses as there wouldn't be anyone taking them away."

"Yes, sir!" The soldiers under his command collectively responded.

He went to the side and reported the strangeness of this massacre at the dead scene to HQ. He informed the Marshals along the way of his results and his conjectures.

"Lord Marshals, this is a scene of revenge. Maybe a few more soldiers from the side of Cid Warlock were still alive. When they saw the execution happening, they lost their temper and massacred all humans in the village. There should be more than one. I just don't know where they have gone," General Barret said.

[This possibility might be correct. If they didn't leave, they would definitely go there.]

"Where, Sir?" General Barret asked.

[There's a military station near that area. This region is the nearest to the end boundaries of the human race's space territory. Cid Warlock and Private Lucas were imprisoned there. Check on them. If there are intruders, if they cannot be caught, kill on sight!]

"Yes, Sir!" General Barret responded.

General Barret halted his forces when the call finished and gave them the command just to set fire to the entire community in order to expedite cleanup. At first, the soldiers were apprehensive because they wanted to bury the remains properly, but they had to obey their superior's orders. The small town on this borderland was destroyed by fire that day.

General Barret was about to leave when he suddenly received a call from his sister, Silvana Warren, an S+ Guide.

[Brother, you promised me, you would find Cid for me.]

"I will find him. Don't worry, Silvy," General Barret said.

Cid Warlock's childhood sweetheart and buddy is Silvana Warren. They had gotten engaged. She was aware that Cid Warlock was a halfling, of course, but she chose to ignore this information. She has an obsession with him, especially after seeing Cid Warlock's stunning blue butterfly wings.

Somewhere in a certain spaceship...

A girl with long brown hair tied in a high ponytail on her back and dressed in a military suit stood in front of the livestream depicting her brother's condition in the village. She did not give a damn about the horrific carnage that took place in the village, since, in her opinion, they deserved it.

"You want to capture my Cid just because of that massacre in that small village? Those old men above think too much of themselves. They are already old and rotting but still want to rule the human race. Don't they know how beautiful a halfling butterfly zerg is? No matter what, Cid is mine."

It is Silvana Warren, this woman. Despite being a guide, she enjoys fighting. She is the Warren Clan's lone mutant. You may think of her as a sentry in the body of a guide. She likes beauty, and butterflies are the most delicate of all the species, which is why her infatuation with Cid Warlock borders on madness.

Human Star's Borderlands, Rainforest.

At the riverside, Queen Titania is playing with Lili, Lieutenant Solan's daughter. He was fishing with his other female zerg warriors. They relished the tranquility of the setting. Lili was not terrified of the people or Queen Titania. Even though most monsters possessed colored hair and eyes when in their human form, one couldn't deny how gorgeous they were in this form.

In the eyes of the little girl, Lili, a beautiful silver-eyed Titania is like a fairy.

Lili asked, "Fairy Queen, Lili knows you are not humans. Do you eat human children?"

"Hm? Of course not. The Queen doesn't eat humans. It's you humans who spread the news that our insect race eats meat. Most of us are herbivores. Especially for his highness, he likes eating flowers and not meat." A female zerg who was listening beside them spoke up.

Queen Titania glances at Lili with an expressionless yet gentle gaze. It's because of this that Lili wasn't afraid of the Zerg Queen. Someone with such gentle eyes wouldn't be a bad person. The Zerg Queen slightly pinched the flat cheeks of Lili due to malnourishment. She felt sad that such a little one had to suffer just because of their mixed bloodline.

"Little one, this queen doesn't eat children. I like children like you. I hope you little ones will live as peacefully as you could before growing up," Queen Titania said.

Lili suddenly hugs the Zerg Queen and says, "Fairy Queen is very kind. You don't look at me like others as if I'm disgusting. You guys don't throw rocks at me. You aren't like those adult humans and little humans. They are bad. They killed mommy~ Wuwuwu~"

Queen Titania felt sorry for the little one and hugged her back while gently patting her back in comfort. With a soothing voice, the Zerg Queen whispered, "Don't cry. It's not your fault. Your mommy just returned to the sky. You can always see her sparkling at night watching over you."

"Sniff! Really?" Lili asked.

Queen Titania tried to smile. It was only a bit, but it made her gorgeous face even more exquisite. "That's right. Your mommy will always watch over you. She loves Lili the most, after all."

Lili had never heard such a toned voice since her mother died. That kind human grandma, who sometimes gave her candies, was also killed. That big brother who brought her out to play was also captured. In the end, even she and her mother were caught. That day, when her mother was crying in fear, she asked her to hide within those piles of sleeping bodies.

Among the pile were the kind grandma and big brother, whom she knew. She didn't know that those people were already dead. Her mother said to hide with them, so she did. She waited for her mother to pick her up but she remembers her saying, don't come out. She was already feverish from suffocation due to lack of air and the disgusting scent of blood that assaulted her nose.

She felt sick and ended up becoming sick. In her delirious state, she heard her daddy's voice and reached out to call for her daddy.

The little girl fainted from crying, and the female zergs all panicked. Only when Queen Titania assured them that the little girl was okay did they finally calm down. Almost all female zergs in the hive yearn for children.

A child is a treasure they wanted the most in their lives, but in the past, the standing of the females in the Hive was so low that having children would depend on their male master.

In addition to how hard it is for them to conceive and the endless war between the human race and the insect race, the hive barely had cubs.

"General, will the little one wake up for lunch?"

"Just save some for her. I heard human children like to take a nap in the afternoon. You can almost make something sweet. They love those kinds of things," Queen Titania said.

His subordinates gladly put together lunch and a treat for the child. Since Lili resembles the cub in their visions, they genuinely enjoy her presence. Lili has to be cared for since she is too delicate for these maternal figures. They desire to do things to please her as a result.

However, Queen Titania intervened, returned everything to her spatial ring, and embraced the sleeping Lili before they could be content. They all spread their wings and stealthily soar through the air. The Zerg Queen saw a party of humans walking into the rainforest.

From the sky, Queen Titania and her subordinates saw a group of at least fifty human soldiers entering the rainforest. They saw them pass by the space they were staying in just now. One of the female zergs actually forgot to extinguish the bonfire.

"Forgive me, General. I was just worried about Lili and forgot about the fire."

"Don't worry. It wasn't a problem. I want you guys to sneak in and assassinate them silently. Don't wake Lili up," Queen Titania ordered.

His soldiers saluted, "Yes, your highness!" In their stealth mode, these female zergs sneaked into the group of humans secretly.

On the other hand, the humans on the ground look around while on guard. They noticed that the bonfire in the middle of the forest was fresh, and there were traces where the tent was erected just now.

"General, there are traces of people living here. The bonfire is fresh and the footprints are also clear. They must still be around."

"But there are no traces beyond this area; even the trees had no trails of someone climbing up. Did they disappear on the spot?"

"G-Ghost?"

"Ghost your ass! Don't scare yourself for nothing!"

General Barret thought so as well, but aside from this campsite, they saw no traces of footprints running out of this area. It could only mean that the people just here had disappeared on the spot or flew. Humans are incapable of flying unless they use a tool. There are only two races capable of flying: the insect race and the bird tribe from the beast race.

Both races aren't supposed to appear in this place, as this is the human star owned by the human race.

This human general made an impossible guess, which he himself doesn't believe. Among the two races he thought of, the Beast Race wouldn't come over in their place as they are under a treaty with them. Plus, they don't need to hide if they notice them coming, as they can be considered allies at least.

Then that leaves the insect race, but the footprints are mostly humanoid, and in the hive, only a high-class zerg can possess such a form.

Just the thought of a high-level zerg with complete human form, he only thought of the royal class zergs. General Barret's face turned pale upon this realization. He realized the danger they were in.

"Scatter! They sneaked into our group!" General Barret exclaimed.

As if answering his warnings, pained groans were heard in the middle of the group. The Female Zerg soldiers started killing in the middle while hiding in the crowd.

A dying man questioned, "W-Why... did you...!?"

"It wasn't me!!!" said the terrified soldier who witnessed his comrade's sudden death.

"Watch out! Spread out! Don't crowd; they can hide within the group. Scatter and meet me in the military barracks of this region. Stay in three or five. Dispersed!" General Barret commanded.

Throughout the rainforest, the human soldiers dispersed and fled in all directions. Additionally, General Barret fled since his gut told him it was unsafe to stay there. As anticipated, he sees a man with two enormous white butterfly wings on his back and a sleeping child in his arms when a strong figure suddenly comes into his field of vision, standing above a tree.

Those inhumane, silver eyes cast a harsh, cold gaze on him.

General Barret trembled upon meeting the eyes of the Zerg Queen.

"Z-Zerg Queen," he mumbles in fear.

Chapter 1363: Second Red Star - Silvana Warren

Queen Titania realized that after he had exposed himself, the humans would probably target him rather than go looking for Cid Warlock and the others. He purposefully did this to ensure the safety of people who had broken into the military installation covertly. Instead, it was him who found himself in a difficult circumstance.

The Zerg Queen's female zerg subordinates swooped next to him, concerned-looking. They were aware that the Queen had decided to turn into bait in order to give the humans who had broken away from them more time. They were unhappy about this since, in their opinion, the Zerg Queen's life is more important than any of their own. The lesser entities do not require a sacrifice.

"Your Highness, we shouldn't have shown your presence. Now these annoying humans will all come over just for you!"

"Let's leave. Putting the Queen in danger is something that shouldn't be allowed."

"General, we don't have many soldiers with us. We could protect your back if we are surrounded by humans. It would be quite hard to escape."

"You guys will stay in the spaceship and fly towards the place where the rest have infiltrated. I will buy you some time to take off. No need to wait for me. I can fly faster than that spaceship we have with us," Queen Titania said as he gently passed the sleeping child in his embrace to one of his subordinates.

"Your Highness, I can be the bait instead. Please enter the spaceship."

"You don't fly faster than I am. You will only get caught. Just follow my orders!" Queen Titania stated.

The female Zerg soldiers bowed their heads at hearing their superior's severe tone, and they were forced to obey their Zerg queen's orders. With the young girl, they made their way back to the spacecraft.

Lili has 25% human ancestry. She received diluted human blood from her parents and inherited the majority of their zerg bloodline. She was able to maintain her human shape because of his quarter-human blood. The majority of mixed-blood zergs were humanoid. After a certain point, those pure bloods changed into a humanoid shape.

A pure-blood Zerg and a mixed-breed Zerg would resemble humans more just by looking alike, with the exception of their differing eye and hair hues. Their strength or mental capacity makes a difference. As well some body parts that isn't something humans would possessed.

The Zerg Queen did not panic as she watched the spaceship glide over the rainforest and return from no camouflage as it raised to stealth mode and flew away. He vanished into thin air, searching for the human general who had just discovered him. His wings were very noticeable, so he did not utilize them. At a speed that might be regarded as human, he strolled through the jungle.

Somewhere in the rainforest...

While meeting in the wilderness, General Barrett and a few of his soldiers lost over half of their initial number. Barret is particularly taken aback because he did not anticipate seeing a Zerg Royalty in the human star. As he informed the higher-ups about the existence of the Zerg Queen, he was shaking.

If those elderly folks had heard about the zerg queen, they would undoubtedly have reacted in a manner similar to his own.

"Impossible. How can he be here!? If he feels like it, he can destroy at least half of this planet. I thought that the Queen of Zergs could not live in the Hive!?" General Barret said. "I must inform the Marshals immediately."

However, Barret felt a strange presence behind him before he could use his interface to contact his supervisor. All of the troops who had been with them were dead on the ground when he turned around. He alone was still alive. Such a scene so horrified him that when his subordinates died, he did not even sense the presence of anyone or hear any sound.

"Who the hell...!?"

A cold voice was heard coming near his ears, talking as if a devil's whisper: "I did it."

General Barret spun around quickly, but all he could see was a haze that gradually lifted. He was terrified because he knew that the person who had killed his people covertly was still in his vicinity. Something invaded his head, destroying him before he could reach his terminal. His head's terminal was damaged, yet he did not lose consciousness like the others did.

He too would have perished here if no one had come to his aid in time.

Resurfacing from the mists of the forest, Queen Titania cast a disinterested glance down at the people below. He turns to go as though he never did such a thing. A few minutes after the Zerg Queen departed, a second spacecraft came to a standstill just over General Barret's abandoned position. Silvana Warren descended from that spaceship and saw the scene of death in front of her eyes.

She was saddened and enraged to see her brother among the bodies.

Silvana screamed, "Who the hell did this!?"

"My lady, the General, is still alive, but he must be put on a healing pod as soon as possible. Also, we found his terminal destroyed, and I've tried to retrieve the last thing that was done with it. It seems the General was about to send an emergency report to the headquarters."

"What do you mean?" Silvana Warren asked.

"It seems that the Zerg Queen is here in this region!"

"Immediately report this news to the headquarters. They mustn't escape!" Silvana Warren said. She suddenly mumbles, "Zerg Queen, you wouldn't be forgiven for harming this princess's brother."

At the military station...

The laboratory was eventually located by Lieutenant Solan and Female Zerg Soldier Nier, but only because they saw heavy gray smoke emanating from this building. Nier had to fend off an attack before they could enter the building, but he handled it really well. After all, Cid Warlock, a S+ Sentinel with SS potential, was the one who attacked him just now.

Since Female Zerg Soldier Nier was only capable of an A+, it was not shocking that he was struggling.

Nier asked, "Who the hell is it!? Show yourself!"

Cid Warlock, with huge blue morpho butterfly wings on his back, appeared from the corner of the building. His face looked dignified as he appeared before the female zerg, Nier. At this moment, Cid Warlock's eyes turned sapphire.

The former Major asked, "Why is a female zerg on the planet owned by humans?"

"My lord, please calm down. This lieutenant can explain everything." Lieutenant Solan stood in the middle of his leader and Nier, an acquaintance who was willing to help them with this rescue mission.

Unexpectedly, the Female Zerg Soldier, Nier, fell on one knee. He saluted before Cid Warlock treated him like royalty.

"First Lieutenant Nier greets his highness. As the bearer of the Blue Morpho Butterfly Royal Tribe's bloodline, this little one comes to pick his highness up!"

Solan had anticipated this scene, but actually experiencing it is a different matter. This is the first time he has ever seen the haughty and conceited female zerg bow down to anyone outside the Zerg Royalty. Perhaps Nier, a Zerg soldier, treated Cid Warlock like a king because he was descended from royalty.

Cid Warlock frowned. "I am a mixed blood with human bloodline. You still want to call me his highness?"

"In Hive, Royal Bloodline is above everyone. Even if they are a halfling, those who didn't have the blood of royalty can only serve those who have. I served the Apollo Butterfly Bloodline from the Zerg Empress side and now served the Zerg Queen, Titania Ambrosia. Under the orders of my queen, this one came to escort you on the way to the hive." The Female Zerg Soldier Nier responded.

Cid Warlock said, "I might want the throne in your hive. Are you still going to bring me over?"

"Within the royal family, only the strongest can become king. If his highness can defeat King Augustus, why not? But please remember that the current King Augustus is even stronger than the current Zerg Queen," Nier said. "In the end, only the strongest can mutate into a monarch butterfly bloodline."

Cid Warlock studied the face of the female zerg before him, and sure enough, Nier did not display any contempt for him, a halfling. Many halflings reside among the purebloods on the Zerg Planet after spending time in the hive on their mission. If prejudice exists, it would only manifest itself in the differences in status between male and female zerg.

"If I become the Zerg King in the future, I will give the female Zerg a standing equal to that of the male ones and halflings," Cid Warlock said. "Stand up."

Nier did as he was told and stood up from the ground and said, "The discrimination between the two genders in the Hive has been resolved. King Augustus removed all the laws that are biased and replaced them with laws of equal treatment. Also, he had spread that cultivation technique that enhanced spiritual qi and resolved bad gene bloodlines. I'm sure his highness heard about it."

"Is it real?" Lieutenant Solan asked in surprise.

The combined might of two races would never be sufficient for halflings like them. Despite being more powerful sentries than pure blood sentries, some of them awoke as feeble Quantum creatures, while the other halflings had none at all. Perhaps if they could figure out how to stop being mixed blood, they could become stronger than pure blood.

The Female Zerg Soldier Nier snorted, "There is no need for me to lie towards his highness."

"That technique is indeed real, but I don't know about its effects as I wasn't chosen to practice it before. Let's continue the talk later. For now, it's time to leave. Have you found Lucas?" Cid Warlock asked as he moved his gaze from Nier to Solan.

Lieutenant Solan replied, "Kian and Roan must have found him. Let's leave first. I'm suddenly having a bad feeling."

"Is it your intuition? If it is, then it's real. Let's go," Cid Warlock said.

Along with the other survivors they had rescued in the dungeon, they ran across Roan, Kian, and Lucas as they were leaving the station. Unexpectedly, though, Silvana Warren's brigade soldiers had surrounded them. While her brother brought only thirty to fifty soldiers, she brought nearly the entire brigade.

Silvana sat on a chair prepared for her, and she looked at Cid Warlock, who had just arrived. With her brother's troops, they were able to surround the whole station and prevent anyone from escaping, and they successfully bumped into Roan and the rest when they were about to leave. Now that even Cid Warlock had arrived, the heroine showed a joyous smile.

Silvana Warren wanted to run towards Cid Warlock and hug him, but she was stopped by her subordinates.

"My lady, you can't hug a criminal!"

"Please watch over your reputation. You might get what you want when the people from the headquarters arrive and get my lady's reward."

"My Cid, when the higher-ups arrive, I will plead for your sake. Just come with me when that time comes, okay?" Silvana Warren said while smiling. She obviously doesn't care about anyone aside from the protagonist.

Cid Warlock asked, "What about my subordinates? You aren't going to plead for them? Most of my subordinates have died; you even helped me stop the massacre of the Halflings when I was in a coma. Also, you didn't stop them from taking me over for an experiment. Don't tell me you don't even know about that."

Silvana Warren thought for a while, and with an innocent expression, she retorted, "They promised me they wouldn't harm your wings and even said they would allow me to marry you afterwards. So I didn't stop them, as for the other halflings, most of them didn't have beautiful features and were mostly disgusting. Do they even need to exist?"

This woman appears to be mentally ill. She detests unattractive things and only enjoys beautiful things. The majority of halflings do not have beautiful looks at birth and become even uglier in disproportion to their physical selves. To claim that it is ugly is not a lie. Imagine witnessing a halfling, a halfling, half-human, half-grasshopper zerg.

He had human-like grasshopper legs, a trait passed down from his Zerg lineage with an upper human body. It is an odd kind of physique. This is how most halflings with poorer Zerg genetics come to be. The hatred of halflings is partly due to this physical defect.

Chapter 1364: Second Red Star - Successful Escape

The hidden spaceship owned by Queen Titania had arrived at the location faster than Silvana Warren's entourage. They waited for Nier and the others to emerge while maintaining the mode's invisibility. Who would have thought that the enemy would have arrived before they were all out and that the rescue squad would squander too much time? For this reason, they found themselves encircled.

The human general Barret Warren's group was destroyed by Queen Titania, but it was ultimately in vain since Silvana Warren's troops managed to capture the rescue crew. She also mentioned that the Zerg Queen was present in this area. Queen Titania is now occupied, preventing Silvana Warren from being assisted by the reinforcement.

In order to prevent the group under the command of the protagonist from being outnumbered, the Zerg Queen had been destroying the majority of spaceships that arrived in this area.

With his enormous white butterfly wings, Queen Titania's magnificent figure floats in the space, preventing spaceships far bigger than himself and a multitude of shattered and fractured spaceship debris hovering in the galaxy. As Titania, the Zerg Queen, blocked most of the way, those at the military post had no idea how many individuals were coming after them.

Nier seems unhappy at witnessing so many human soldiers. He was still okay with Cid Warlock and the others, as they are halflings and half of their blood is like his, but these human soldiers are different. They are pure-blood humans, which the zergs hate the most. He almost couldn't hold back and jumped at the arrogant bitch acting before them.

Thankfully, Cid Warlock noticed and tugged on Lieutenant Solan's shirt as he stood before Nier. Solan held back Nier, as he knew that the hatred of the Zergs towards humans is similar to the human's hatred towards the zergs. They can never see each other in the eyes and would kill each other on the spot.

The Zerg Race occasionally hesitated to kill this unfortunate mixed blood being used by the damn humans, which is another reason why the Federation would primarily deploy Halflings to fight on the front lines.

Solan whispered, "Nier, calm down. There are too many on the side. There are also survivors on this side. Don't make a move yet."

"Damn humans. I should... Hm?" Nier looked around as he heard a sound only understood by the insect race. It's a certain frequency that only bugs can hear.

Nier received a message that the current situation with the Zerg Queen and the spaceship they prepared for the halflings were ready in this very same location. The zerg race possessed a specially designed starship that can turn invisible to humans but immediately identifiable to them. It is a material that the insect race can readily perceive and is exclusive to the hive.

Glancing around, he saw the spaceship in its invisibility mode right away in the corner.

He wrote them about this circumstance while holding Lieutenant Solan's hand. Though initially shocked, the latter maintained his composure. His hand was writing something on the back of their commander, Cid Warlock, while he feigned to listen intently to Silvana Warren's conversation. Cid Warlock, who learned they had an escape route, chose to employ a code that only his staff knew.

Not even his fiancée, Silvana Warren, was aware of it.

Cid Warlock said, "Silvana, I can't leave with you."

"Why is it? You can bring your people this time, but I can only plead for your sake." Silvana Warren responded.

Cid Warlock shook his head and said, "I only have this many people under me. Most of them were killed in my last mission, and the federation killed the families of my subordinates. I cannot forgive them anymore. Moreover, it's not right for you to speak up for me."

"Silvana, let's back off from each other's lives. As I cannot live on this planet any longer, let me go."

"No, you can't! You are mine! I won't allow you to leave my side!" Silvana Warren exclaimed.

As Cid Warlock and Silvana Warren conversed, a few human troops desired to approach the criminals cautiously in order to apprehend them more quickly. Kian and Roan looked at Solan, who gave them a small tip of the head as they realized what their lord had said in secret. The two told the survivors in private to relocate with them. The group moved covertly to the area's right corner.

[Leave. Right. Back off.] This is the message they got from the secret code their commander had spoken just now. They understood that they had a way to leave, asking them to move at the right down corner of the area and gather.

Since these halflings opted to go in that route, the soldiers on the human side saw them as hopeless. However, this is really the only way they can get out of here.

Under Solan's cover, Nier went into stealth mode and crept into the spaceship's position, leaving a sign for Solan and the others to find that indicates where the spaceship's coordinates is.

Silvana Warren also observed the change in location of the individuals behind Cid Warlock. Their paths are blocked by tall walls, and beyond them stand her men, whom she has ordered to surround the entire area.

"Haha~ are you people planning something else? That area is a dead end, and beyond that wall are my people. My Cid, why don't you just give up?" Silvana Warren said, chuckling upon seeing people like a rat that was trapped in the end.

Cid Warlock looked at her with a helpless expression. He took a step back and joined the rest of his people in the corner. He looked at her like a stupid b*tch. In reality, he has disliked this woman since she was young.

She used to bully him and insult him for being an orphan, but with the backing of the Warren family, the last Warlock descendant, him, survived from the claws of the old men in the Federation.

"Silvana, I don't like you, but I don't hate you either. Though it is impossible for me to love you, in the end it was thanks to this affection of yours that your family is willing to protect me. But I am not willing to give you my wings. I hope we don't see each other again," Cid Warlock said.

Silvana Warren was a little taken aback by Cid Warlock's remarks. Given that Cid does not appear to have a way out of his current predicament, she appeared to be even more caustic. She just realized everything when a pillar of light descended upon the Cid Warlock group. This is a spatial light that sucked in people in a spaceship.

This only meant that there is one in the sky above the group of Cid Warlock.

"Spatial Light!? This! Capture them! Don't let them escape!" Silvana Warren was just about to drag away Cid Warlock from the pillar of light when someone kicked her away.

She saw a man with dignified features, but the lime-hued hair and green eyes of this person show he wasn't human. It was the female Zerg soldier, Nier.

"Your Highness, step back. I will stop her."

Although Silvana is a mutant guide, her physique is just as tough as a Sentry's, and Nier's physical attributes are at least A+. However, Silvana Warren is superior to Nier as a guide; if Nier attempted to battle such a strong guide, she would suffer psychological harm. Ultimately, female zergs possess a powerful physical form but struggle with mental control.

Thus, he can only kick her away from them.

As most of the humans in the area discover that Nier is neither a human or a halfling, but rather a pure blood zerg capable of turning entirely human, Silvana Warren becomes furious at the scene and yells at him. Perhaps the Zerg Queen's strength is not greater than that of this elite zerg.

"What are you!? That vibrant hair and eye colors! Are you a zerg!?" Silvana Warren shouted.

Unfortunately, Nier isn't interested in her. Instead, he saluted Cid Warlock.

"Your highness, we shall take our leave. Don't go out of the spatial light," Nier said.

Cid Warlock just nodded his head and looked at Silvana Warren and the other humans, glaring at them. They heard what the high-level zerg called him. 'His Highness' in the hive only the royal tribe is called by this title.

"Cid Warlock, as expected, you are the soy of the Zerg Race!"

"You caused that massacre. You killed humans! And even destroyed the laboratory."

"Traitor! You were never on our side from the beginning."

"You were the ones who betrayed us first!" The former major retorted.

Cid Warlock gives them a chilly glare before this instantly vanishes. The starship, whose invisibility mode faded when it acquired all the halflings that survived, was finally pulled inside by the spatial light. The little spacecraft took off, leaving Silvana Warren and her troop with nothing to do but watch.

Anger was imprinted on Silvana's face as she glared at the sky, where the small spaceship disappeared.

Silvana Warren said, "Find them! Cid Warlock mustn't escape!"

"Yes, my lady!"

Meanwhile, inside the space ship owned by the zergs...

Nier looked around and didn't see the Zerg Queen. He was about to report what happened at the military station, but his superior wasn't around at all.

"Where's the general?"

"He was blocking reinforcement from the human race for you. If not for the general, you would all be caught again."

"His highness was blocking the humans at the sea, but some big ones arrived. They might have changed location. I've sent a message that you guys have been successfully rescued."

"Also, Lili's father, your daughter is still asleep. Humans had appeared in the rainforest, and we had no other choice but to leave there."

The other subordinates of the Zerg Queen responded to Nier and the others.

Lieutenant Solan asked worriedly, "Did something happen to Lili?"

"No, she was just sleepy. The queen put her to sleep because enemies had started to gather in this region and he needed to fight for the sake of buying time for you people," a female zerg soldier said. He glances at the other halflings, watching them from a distance with vigilance on their faces.

"What do you plan with those people with you? It wouldn't have mattered if it were only Lili added to your group of five. The destination of this spaceship is Hive. Are you bringing them all over?"

Solan, Kian, and Roan turned to face their leader, Cid Warlock, at the sound of this query. The female zergs stood watch over the humans in the group because not all of the survivors were halflings like them. After all, the Zerg Race harbored a deep hatred for humanity.

Cid Warlock asked, "Can't humans live in the hive like halflings?"

"Your Highness, it's not impossible, but the hatred of zergs towards humans is very strong. It wouldn't be enough to only have the Zerg Queen's permission. You need to at least have the Zerg King's Royal Decree for them to be able to step foot in the hive," Nier explained.

Cid Warlock mumbles, "A Royal Decree? It seems that the authority of the Zerg King is higher than the Zerg Queen."

"The authority of the Zerg Queen falls on the military, while the Zerg King's authority falls on every zerg in existence. His decree is absolute," Nier added.

Cid Warlock asked, "Is it possible to land on some other habitable planet before going back to the Hive?"

"Yes, but we need the Queen's permission for that. This spaceship is his after all."

Cid Warlock said, "Then I would like to meet your Queen."

The Zerg Queen has the power to command these female zergs, but the former major sensed that they might be paying attention to him. His status alone would not make zergs who serve another leader obey him, even though he may be a royal descendent of the Royal Zerg Tribe.

It is not a bad idea for him to establish a footing in the Hive, as all he has left is this half lineage and he can not go back to the humans. Meeting the Zerg Queen was the first step he decided to take.

Chapter 1365: Second Red Star - Cid Warlock officially meeting the Zerg Queen.

Meanwhile, somewhere in space above the Federation Star...

Mechas and starships surrounding Titania, the Zerg Queen. Despite the fact that his opponents were all around him, he appeared calm and bored. This aim, in his opinion, was insufficient to allow him to fully express his abilities. He had not heard from those in the Federation Star yet, which is the only reason he was not killing them straight.

His subordinates had finally sent him a message, and he discovered they had arrived not far from him. In order to stop them from pursuing their group, he made the decision to blow up every spaceship owned by humans in the area. Shaking his wings like a butterfly, he shattered ice over the battlefield.

It tore apart everything in its path as it soared toward the stores held by humanity, some of the engines even blew up.

Queen Titania remained serene and collected as he saw the explosion and devastation in front of his face, as though he had not witnessed the deaths of many creatures. He flew and went into the spacecraft, waiting for him a long way off. His butterfly wings vanished from sight as soon as he boarded the ship.

The presence of royal-level zergs is too much for those with sensitive senses like sentinels and guides. Especially since Titania just unfolded his wings, his SS+ aura was out for everyone to feel. It's too suffocating and chilling. Ordinary people who are less sensitive wouldn't feel much about it.

Ugh!

Observing the weaklings in the crowd, Titania tried to keep his aura as contained as he could. At least enough to keep these people's breathing unaffected. As soon as he sat down, he saw Cid Warlock coming. He had Solan, Kian, and Roan trailing behind. Lucas, on the other hand, is sleeping and recovering from severe injuries sustained during the days of torture.

Nier and her fellow aides are positioned behind Queen Titania. For now, the starship was operating on autopilot. The autopilot was adequate to get them back to the hive, because the destination had been set and no one was pursuing them.

Cid Warlock found a chair ready to sit in. It was positioned in a lower seat than Titania, but still across from the Zerg Queen. They were also given a tea set. The tea was served by Nier. Prior to Cid Warlock, a potential royal descendent, he served the queen.

Queen Titania looked at his tea and didn't meet the halfling's eyes. He wanted to ignore him, but their standing is similar, so he chose not to.

"Speak. I am willing to listen as for helping you; don't expect too much," Queen Titania said. "The only reason I save you is because of your special bloodline and nothing more. Plus, even though your zerg bloodline is an advantage, your other bloodline is also a disadvantage. Who didn't know that the one who ambushed the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress years ago was someone from the Warlock Family?"

These direct and cutting remarks eliminated any chance of a coalition. After all, it is clear from the Zerg Queen's demeanor that he has no interest whatsoever. The Queen of Zergs speaks painfully, but his words are accurate. Cid Warlock never disclosed his zerg lineage when on a mission in the hive for the same reason.

I had learned a great deal about the taboos and the culture of the insect race after years of living in the hive. There is no truth to the rumors that they consume human flesh. Never once, not even on the black market, had he discovered even a scrap of human flesh in the hive. Those who are detected doing so, after all, will face public execution as a punishment.

It can be said that aside from some insect parts on their bodies, these zergs are not different from humans. They are more strict when it comes to laws and would hardly break them as the punishment was cruel and merciless.

"Is that also the reason why you aren't going to aid me?" Cid Warlock asked.

Queen Titania responded, "No. I have my own principles and... I will only do what I want in my life. Even Augustus doesn't ask me to support him with the throne. In his case, he was just too bored to sit there. If you want to replace him, you must have the heart to accept our race without hatred.

After all, as a King, your responsibility is to protect the whole race."

Titania Ambrosia squinted his eyes at him and said, "The current you can't do it. You can't accept the Zerg Race wholly nor can forgive the Human Race. I think it would be better if you created your own place. A world only for the halflings."

Cid Warlock fell into deep thought upon hearing this suggestion. If he had enough power and land, he would definitely do so. But compared to a small territory, a whole planet is better, right? This is why he wanted to become the Zerg King.

"I wanted to be a king, though. I would be able to protect my people more that way," Cid Warlock said.

Queen Titania said, "Just try defeating Augustus or... just ask him to give you the throne. If you prove yourself enough, he would definitely listen. That one is not interested in the throne. The only reason he is seated there is because he is looking for someone."

"Prove. How do I prove myself to him?" Cid Warlock asked.

Queen Titania answered, "Show enough strength, authority, and wits that you won't fall under those old things once you become a king. As long as you show that you have the traits of a king, he will definitely not ignore you."

"The Queen seems to know the Zerg King well," Cid Warlock said.

Queen Titania said, "I do not. Before, I could still guess what's in his mind, but not now. He had changed a lot."

The Zerg Queen suddenly changed the topic of their conversation and said, "The pure human on your side can't stay in the Hive. Even if I allow you to, those who hate humans would definitely try to kill them. We can't stop all attempts. I will give you a small fertile planet not far from the Hive. You can let your people live there for a while or live there yourself.

But you must come back with me to the Imperial Palace to meet the Zerg King."

"Will he even meet me? Doesn't he look down on humans?" Cid Warlock asked.

Queen Titania said, "You don't need to worry about that. That man looks down on everything in this world. He wouldn't care about humans and zergs unless necessary. With his unparalleled strength, those old men couldn't even hold on to him. He is merciless toward those he hates and goes against him. Just be careful with your words and you shall be alright.

Anyway, you will understand if you talk to him. Your first meeting was a bit... tragic."

Cid Warlock remembered that moment when a dainty-looking Zerg King flicked him across the forehead. Even though he is even shorter than he is, that one flick from him was sufficient to send him to heaven. He shuddered to think of such a past event.

"I'm even surprised that my head didn't explode at that time. He must have held back quite a bit for me not to die on the spot."

At this moment, Cid Warlock recalled his other subordinates. He was also unconscious when the Zerg Queen caught up with him.

"Your Highness, I hope you don't mind me asking. Did all my subordinates die that day?" Cid Warlock asked.

Kian, Roan, and Solan listened expectantly. That day, they had seen their comrades killed. One could not deny the remorse and sorrow in their hearts, even though they knew they could not hold the other person accountable because they were enemies. They may assist by holding themselves accountable for the deaths of their people.

Queen Titania was as merciless as before. "They are all dead. Aside from the three behind you, the rest are gone. The humans and half-beasts are definitely dead. As for the half-zergs, they were spared even though they are considered dead. You can pick them up at the mines.

Unlike you humans, we hardly kill those who possess our bloodline."

"Nier, change the route to the resource planet where you sent those halflings. The ownership of that planet will be given to him. Don't worry about the rest. I will report it to the King myself. I'm a bit tired. You can talk on your own." Queen Titania left and headed to his personal room in this spaceship.

He no longer wanted to further get involved with this royal descendant, as he felt uncomfortable doing so.

Those who had been breathing silently while holding their breath felt their muscles relax when the Zerg Queen had fled. There was very little tension in the region now. Furthermore, the Zerg Queen's other servants chose to resume their job instead of engaging with the halflings, in contrast to Nier.

Solan and the rest, meanwhile, were encircling Nier. Their brothers had survived, and they wanted to know more about their brothers' circumstances. Over 50% of the people who survived had been spared. Humans and half-beasts made up the other half that was slain.

"Nier, is it true? Some of our brothers are still alive?" Solan asked.

Nier nods his head. At that time, he couldn't understand why the Queen spared those halflings. Though he also felt sorry for them being used by humans, they had longed to betray them and choose humans over the zerg race. So they can only be punished by death.

However, the queen gave the command to spare the halflings with the zerg ancestry and sent them to a resource planet where they would mine metal ore in his order. He believed at the time that the Queen had spared these men with half of their ancestry because he only needed a few mining slaves.

The nobility in the Imperial Palace sent them away as slaves without objecting to the queen's actions, and they appeared to be content with it.

It is suddenly clear to him why the Zerg Queen did what he did. He had hypothesized all along that Cid Warlock's other lineage came from the Royal Zerg Tribe. Even yet, he was unsure of how Queen Titania found out.

However, Nier would have understood everything if he had been in the King's Chamber during Cid Warlock's attempt to kill the Zerg King and had heard King Augustus' remark. The Zerg King had noted Cid Warlock's being mixed that day. That day, Queen Titania heard something like this and speculate all possibilities thanks to this remark.

So when the Zerg Queen saw the Blue Morpho Butterfly Wings on Cid Warlock's back, he was surprised, not because of his bloodline but because King Augustus knew about it before everyone could guess.

"Hm. They were mining metal ores, provided with a place to sleep, food, and rest. Even though their mental power and physical strength were sealed, they are still alive," Nier said.

Upon hearing this, not only Cid Warlock was delighted, but even Solan, Kian, and Roan shed tears. They thought that only four of them remained as Cid's subordinates. Who would have thought that some of them were still alive?

"This is also good. They are not dead," Solan said as he tried to hold back his tears.

Kian is not better than him, as his face was wet with tears while he was smiling. "Hm. A half is better than just four. I'm sorry for the other brothers, but I'm still happy about this news."

"With them, we won't need to work hard to gather more people. We can still sneak into the Federation and say those halfings are stuck on that cruel planet." Roan was a bit calm, but one could see the redness of his eyes.

"It's not too late. I can still make it. Our own place to live without suffering and hatred. A place for us to live like normal people without people looking down on us or disgust towards our mixed bloodline. A world just for us alone," Cid Warlock said.

Chapter 1366: Second Red Star - Back to the Hive

Hive, the main planet of the Zerg Race...

At last, the group reached the Imperial Palace with Queen Titania. Along with the remaining survivors and the Female Zerg Soldier Nier, they were dumped by Kian and Roan at the resource planet that Titania had entrusted to Cid Warlock. They made their scheduled return to the hive after leaving the others there. To their surprise, a long line of female zergs would greet them.

These female zergs waited all day in line to summon the Zerg King, dressing in their finest attire. Nobody knows why King Augustus called all the female zergs into the Imperial Palace, but the first ones to arrive claimed to have been given the chance to interact with the emperor and even have a brief opportunity to hold his hand. After that, they were sent out right away with a present.

Since the Zerg Queen abandoned him all by himself in the palace, there are rumors that the Zerg King is hunting for a concubine.

That being said, Queen Titania, Cid Warlock, and their entourage were greeted upon their arrival by a lengthy queue of female zergs inside the palace. Normally a silent queen, Queen Titania became icily serious upon seeing this scene. He nearly burst into flames the moment he learned what Augustus was doing.

Queen Titania mumbled, "Where is the king right now?"

The little palace servant trembled under the sudden coldness in the area. This unexpected drop in temperature is obviously caused by the queen.

"His Majesty is at the throne hall!!"

The invisible little moon and the two wardens protecting them at the distance felt the Zerg Queen's hidden anger. They couldn't help but sweat at the future scene of these two conflicts because of this event.

System Yue commented, [Uwaa~ would the Sovereign Lord get beaten up if Queen Titania happens to be Lord Hei's incarnation in this world?]

Colonel Cyril said, "Hm. I wonder if there is a washboard in this world?"

"I'll help look for it. I have a feeling that Master will need it badly in the future. Let's go. We can do our report after they quarrel," Marquess Conrad said as he pulled away his lover.

System Yue said, [Ah! Wait for me. Have you seen A'Yang? I haven't seen him much lately.]

Marquess Conrad said, "Isn't he on mission? He will return when he finishes his tasks."

The warden couple took their leave, while System Yue chose to stay. He can only follow after Queen Titania as he barges in the Throne Hall to confront King Augustus. Cid Warlock and Solan, who didn't know where to go next, had no choice but to chase after the Zerg Queen. They all ended up going to the Throne Hall.

At the Hive's Throne Hall

The scene where a row of attractively dressed female zergs are standing in front of the Zerg King, who is sitting on his throne, staring at him with seductive eyes. Regretfully, the sovereign was occupied with his duties. He concentrated on each female zerg's response.

Many times in this hall, there was a collective averting of eyes reaction and a frigid touch as their hand was gripped with simple touch and he stared into the eyes of the female zergs.

As they accompanied their king on the throne, the palace attendants next to the Zerg King had already switched places twice. Even they were unable to comprehend the significance of this action, yet the benefits are numerous. That is why nobody voiced complaints about this peculiar circumstance.

When Queen Titania came, King Augustus seemed pale due to sleep deprivation and an unhappy disposition. Every time he held and gazed at a female zerg, Titania saw with disappointment that most of these female zergs would quickly avert their eyes upon encountering the Zerg King's obsidian eyes.

King Augustus mumbles, "It's not you either. How long do I need to do this?"

"Eh? Did you say something, your majesty?" The Female Zerg in front of the King asked.

King Augustus didn't lose his temper and immediately let go of the man's hand. He gestured for the guards to send the people away for today and tell them to come back in three days. He was too tired to do this sh*t for days. Only when the people left the throne hall did King Augustus pin his temples as if annoyed by something. Silence descended in the hall.

Until the Zerg King noticed Queen Titania and the other people behind him.

"Hm. You're back, Titania. Have you finished your business outside?" He also noticed the presence of someone familiar, but he isn't the type to remember people whom he killed. At least in his eyes, he taught that man who tried to assassinate him. As for whether he is alive or not,. He doesn't care anymore.

"You brought some new faces with you. Hm? That one besides you feels familiar. Where have I seen this face?" King Augustus asked, looking confused as he only felt Cid Warlock look similar to something he couldn't remember.

Queen Titania said, "It's the little one who tried to kill you that day."

"Oh? Hm! You're still alive? That's amazing! Maybe my strength was out of balance that day; you guys forced me out during my meditation after all," King Augustus said. Then he said something that took everyone off guard.

"Are you here for the throne? I don't mind. Give me 3 human general heads or one of the human marshals, and I will give you the title of crowned prince."

Cid Warlock was particularly stunned, as was everyone else in the hall except from Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril, who stood behind the Zerg King. The Queen's estimation appears to be accurate. My zerg royal ancestry was well known to Augustus Kaiser, the Zerg King. If it were not for that, he would not be being so friendly and saying such absurd things.

Queen Titania exclaimed, "What nonsense are you talking about? You want to abdicate and give him your throne!"

"Not right away. After all, he needs to make a name for himself. At the same time, forsake the name of the Warlock Clan," King Augustus said, but when he spoke of the last sentence, he looked down on Cid Warlock from his throne. He looked serious, and his aura was heavy, almost making those before him kneel in front of him.

Cid Warlock hesitated. The Warlock family name is something he inherited from his other father. He couldn't just throw it away, but that doesn't mean that he couldn't kill humans or hate them. He completely lost faith in the human race after his parents were forced to their deaths and his people were almost exterminated.

Snort!

The tense aura that befalls then fades with this snort. King Augustus looks disappointed with how Cid Warlock hesitated just now.

"Such reluctance. You won't be able to sit on this throne as long as you have that. The Zerg Race's hate from humans originates from them killing their cubs. Don't you know that a female zerg can only give birth once or twice in their life. Many of these children died when the humans attacked the hive the first time?" King Augustus said.

Lieutenant Solan spoke up from the side of human knowledge he knows, "Didn't the insect race eat the humans first and start the war between two races?"

"Nonsense! The ones who did the killing first were the humans. You mistaken our race for those hateful heretics that practice Cannibalism," Colonel Cyril said. At least that's what the memories of his current vessel possessed.

Cid Warlock asked, "These heretic zergs you are talking about—how are they different from ordinary zergs?"

"They possessed an insatiable bloodthirst and a murderous aura. The most obvious feature of theirs is a pair of dull gray, lifeless eyes. That feature is unique only to those zergs who ate their own kind," Queen Titania replied.

"So it was them!?" The two halflings exclaimed together.

Cid Warlock and Lieutenant Solan remembered those Zergs from the conflict who had repeatedly ambushed them on the battlefield. Because of how similar those monsters appear, people have always assumed that they are members of the insect race. Who would have guessed that they were despised by their fellow insects and considered heretics?

Queen Titania said, "As expected, you guys met them before. Those trashes like to act like members of the Zerg Race and put all the blame on the Hive. They were thrown out, so they put all their anger on us. I should have exterminated them all!"

"Corrupted ones aren't easy to see through unless they are fully tainted. This cannot be blamed on you. Either way, you should make some preparations. After this week, I shall introduce you as a member of the Royal Family. You have to expose your wings at that time," King Augustus said to Cid Warlock.
"Conrad, Cyril, teach them the cultivation technique.

You guys can leave."

"Yes, your Majesty," Marquess Conrad responded as they were tasked with leaving the hall with Cid Warlock and former Lieutenant Solan.

After the rest left the hall, the only ones that remained were King Augustus Kaiser and Queen Ambrosia. There's a bit of awkwardness between the two at first; the first one to break the silence was the Zerg Queen.

Queen Titania asked with hesitation in her words. "Are you... are you still looking for the traces of your wife?"

"Yes, of course," King Augustus responded.

"Have you found any traces yet?" Queen Titania carefully asked.

Sigh~

King Augustus said, "I've been looking in the hive these days. If I can't find him in the hive, I will have to leave. But it would take a while before that useless brat completely sided with our race. But tell him that he can be officially crowned once he gives me what I asked for before."

"I will take a rest. Now that I've returned, I might go to the military for a while. I had the feeling that the humans would attack the hive," Queen Titania said.

King Augustus said, "I've guessed. That's why I gave that mission to that brat. You can train him yourself if you feel unsatisfied with him. In the first place, I can only come out of this place when the whole hive is in danger. Don't push yourself too much."

Queen Titania said, "Hm. I brought him here with me. Did you not think of me scheming against you? What if I feel like overthrowing you?" Moreover, how could you change so much like this?

The current King Augustus had once again grown up. He was no longer that petite teenager when the Zerg Queen left. At least now he has some features of manliness on him, though his body hasn't completely matured yet like Marquess Conrad. Queen Titania understood something when Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril appeared behind them.

Obviously, those two were in stealth the whole time, and I was with them even in the Federation Star.

Feeling upset, Queen Titania questioned, "Did you send Marquess Silver and Cyril to chase after us when we leave the hive?"

"Yes." King Augustus responded without hesitation, making the Zerg Queen feel more upset.

Queen Titania asked, "Did you do that because you don't trust me?"

"No. I only sent them out to guard you. You've only brought five soldiers with you. If you get ambushed like what happened to the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress in the past, the Hive will be in turmoil," King Augustus explained.

Queen Titania asked, "Is that all?"

"That... is all," King Augustus Kaiser said, as he hadn't even noticed he hesitated just now. The reason for his hesitation was because his eyes and the queen's eyes had met. This caused a misunderstanding between the two to take place.

The Zerg Queen avoided the king's eyes. No one knows if Queen Titania's reaction is similar to those of the Female Zergs before or because he was upset in his heart and felt a sudden disappointment that made his heart hurt.

Queen Titania said, "That's all from me. Please excuse me. I shall take my leave."

The sudden formal farewell stunned King Augustus, and he didn't even realize the misunderstanding the Zerg Queen had suffered from. But ever since this day, Queen Titania has started avoiding meeting the Zerg King unless necessary, and his stay in the military has gotten longer and longer.

Chapter 1367: Second Red Star - Queen Titania Fainted

The Zerg King and the Zerg Queen parted ways because of a misunderstanding. The former thought the latter never cared about him when he saw the queen off when he left the hive but was ignored.

Moreover, when Queen Titania averted his eyes when he met King Augustus' eye, it just now made the queen similar to the reactions of the other female Zergs—pushing King Augustus into depression and hiding disappointment in his heart.

Seeing his eyes avoided, King Augustus disappointedly mumbles as he watches Queen Titania walk away, "So is it not him either?"

The two wardens, who suddenly reappeared from behind, and System Yue, who longed, to fly away to chase after Queen Titania was forced to be muted. They watched the whole scene and felt that there was something wrong that happened in the middle of the conversation.

Colonel Cyril said, "Lord Ye, why don't you try again? I had a feeling that instead of saying he avoided it instinctively, the queen moved away his gaze in disappointment."

"You also think he is Jing'er's incarnation like Yue?" King Augustus asked.

Colonel Cyril nods his head while Marquess Conrad adds, "Queen Titania is soft towards children. In the Human Star, he spared even the lives of human children, even though he is a Zerg."

"He also protects cubs so closely and smiles once at them," Cyril Bailey said.

King Augustus thought for a bit. He believes the words of his wardens, as they would never lie to him. They signed a soul contract to serve him and his wife forever.

The Zerg King mumbles, "Why is he disappointed?"

"Master, maybe because he returned home and saw you gathering female zergs in the Imperial Palace. He was pissed when he saw such a long line reaching the gates of the Imperial Palace," Marquess Conrad Silver said.

Colonel Cyril Bailey asked, "Does the Lord want to try something else to check whether the Zerg Queen is my master's incarnation?" He is suggesting doing something more intimate, like a hug or something.

King Augustus mumbles, "If I'm wrong, Jing'er will beat me up. Sigh~ let me think about it for a while. Tell me what happened."

"Yes. The Human Race started executing all halflings in existence. They did a public execution when we arrived on the human star. Those halflings witnessed their wives and families killed and dead. Only a quarter-human halfling girl survives. This girl is the daughter of that man who stood behind Cid Warlock," Marquess Conrad Silver reported.

Colonel Cyril Bailey said, "Cid Warlock and the halflings were betrayed by the humans and were used as experimental subjects. Though Cid Warlock didn't die, he is indeed treated better than the others. The humans seem to hate them for their mixed bloodline."

"Also, because of the daughter of Solan, Queen Titania chose to interfere personally and blocked the main force that the headquarters sent as reinforcement to capture Cid Warlock. It must be because he felt that the little girl was pitiful and couldn't lose his father as well. We were surprised as well. His main element is ice."

"Apollo Butterfly Tribe is an ice elemental Butterfly Race. They inherited them from the former Zerg Empress Bloodline. So it seems that after that successful escape, the humans knew that Cid Warlock had gone to the hive. Tell him to clean up this mess on his own. His title will only be given once he gives me at least one general's human head. Look after the hive.

I will try to destroy the curse on this body. It might take a long time to do so. I want to try destroying the curse on this body. It might take a long time to do so." King Augustus said as he stood up, preparing to leave.

Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril didn't stop him, as they knew that he might be upset or something. They just bid him farewell with a bow. They watch as King Augustus disappears on the spot as he teleports back to his palace.

On the other hand, Queen Titania thought that the interest King Augustus showed him before was fake. Even the event where he sent him off to the top of the Imperial Palace was simply a facade to keep their relationship as king and queen. The existence of the unknown wife of the Zerg King had already made him keep a distance.

This is also the reason why he held back reacting when he saw him send him off that day.

In the Queen's Palace, Titania Ambrosia sent his people away, saying he wanted to be alone for a while. He sat on his bed, dazed. He couldn't forget what King Augustus had said just now. A nonchalant with a bit of hesitation said to him, 'That is all.'

Pfft... hahaha~

Mad with laughter, Queen Titania's laughter was tinged with disappointment and melancholy.

"That is all, ha? As they say, the more you expect, the more you get hurt in the end. I will no longer expect anything from him. After all, he has a wife and I am nothing."

System Yue watched as the brilliance within those silver eyes turned dull and lifeless. This is the eyes of someone who has closed off his heart to anyone. He couldn't help but tremble at the resemblance of these eyes to those pairs of silver eyes of Lord Hei before he met Sovereign God Ye. No expecting, no emotions; everything is hidden behind a fake smile, which gives people chills and fear.

[I am definitely not wrong! This is Lord Hei's incarnation. I should tell Milord.]

But before he teleported, someone grabbed him in the space that was only for him. A familiar voice resounds in his mind.

"Where are you going, Little one?"

It's Chaos. The same person disappeared in the last world after confronting Lord Hei, who woke up for the first time.

System Yue panicked when he saw those monochromatic silver and black irises paired with phoenix-shaped eyes like Hei Anjing.

[L-L-Lord Chaos!? W-Why?]

Chaos hummed as if watching an entertaining play: "You can't tell him that this one is a soul fragment. I will lose all the fun. Come with me for a bit. Hehe~"

He glances down at Queen Titania's expressionless, soulless face. This looks a lot like him when he perished tragically all those years ago in the Void by himself. Because he was spared by that bastard, he was unable to confront him with all of his fury and kill him with his own hands. However, this does not mean that he stops feeling the bitterness of being left behind. His spirit is scarred by this.

He will never truly understand what serenity is like until he exacts his revenge.

Chaos smiled and said, "Should I slowly return his memories? Let's begin with the painful ones first."

System Yue looked worried and asked, [Lord Chaos, is it fun watching yourself in pain? Isn't Lord Hei's incarnation also a part of you?]

The smile on Chaos' face disappeared and silence descended in the area.

"If possible, I also don't want to do such a thing, but... I'm already broken. When he had chosen to kill himself that day, we were never sane anymore. The pain and hatred intensify every time we see Xia. That's why I don't know how the main body chooses to remain by his side. He is the one torturing him.

Worse than I am," Chaos said. "If you're so interested, why don't you stay inside that little one's body? I've returned his memories, and the most painful ones were the ones that returned first. See the source of our hatred for yourself."

Chaos threw System Yue into Queen Titania's body and merged with him, temporarily taking the Zerg Queen as his host. Together with him is an orb of memories that Lord Chaos had thrown together with him. This orb broke into pieces as soon as it went inside Queen Titania's soul. The Zerg Queen had fainted in reality.

"That's right. See it for yourself. How much suffering those long millennia are? How painful it is to live in the darkness alone and how we had gone mad in the end. In the first place, I am not the craziest one of us all. It's the main soul who is the most broken.

That's why we allowed him to reincarnate as soon as possible. You don't understand him that well."

Chaos mumbles as he once again disappears after watching Queen Titania groan on the bed, suffering from some unknown great pain he would have never expected to happen to him. When a palace servant came to check on the queen, he saw him on the bed, groaning while covered in cold sweat. He had intense pain imprinted on his face.

"Your Highness? Your Highness!" The palace servant turned pale at this scene and started shouting for help. "Ahh! My Queen!!! Someone... Someone summoned the imperial doctor!

The Queen... Something happened to the queen!"

The situation with the Queen had almost flipped the whole Imperial Palace. Even King Augustus, who was supposed to be in seclusion, panicked when he heard the news. At the King's Palace, King Augustus ran out of his room the moment he heard what happened to Queen Titania. He was taking a bath when he heard the commotion.

He hadn't completely worn his clothes yet when he immediately teleported to the Queen's Palace, which was not full of Imperial doctors and healers.

When the Zerg King appeared, everyone was shocked and terrified. They never expected that even King Augustus would be informed about this situation with the Queen. Especially when they saw the ugly expression on the king's face, full of worry and panic. They never expected this to happen.

When they saw the king pull away the doctor and sit beside Queen Titania, an unknown bright aura came out of the king's hand and covered the queen with it.

Only the Imperial Healers knew what it was—a light element at the highest level. That golden glow is a holy light that can heal anything in this world. King Augustus forcefully used his divinity to heal and check on the Queen. This was the scene that Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril witnessed when they arrived.

Marquess Conrad said, "Milord, no! Don't use divinity! Your curse!"

Cough!

King Augustus coughed a mouthful of blood, which startled everyone in the scene. All the doctors, healers, even the servants, and the royal guard in the area were shocked.

"Your Majesty!"

The Zerg King waves his hand to stop them from approaching. He nonchalantly wipes the blood on his mouth with his robes and continues to heal the Queen. But King Augustus' frown just turned deeper as he observed the situation. Queen Titania wasn't injured in any way, not physically or spiritually. But the pain on his face cannot be fake.

When King Augustus lifted his divine aura, his expression turned even uglier. He noticed Zhi Yue's soul in Queen Titania's spiritual domain in a comatose state, but his presence was enough to say that Titania's soul was being protected by him. He wanted to ask Zhi Yue, but it meant he needed to wake him up personally by entering Queen Titania's soul.

King Augustus said, "Only one doctor and one healer remain. Conrad and Cyril stay. The rest, go out for this King!"

The sudden exertion of the powerful aura terrified all those inside the room except the wardens who chose to guard the door and threw those people who didn't react right away. As for the doctor and the healer to remain, the most powerful one stayed as ordered. They are one of the oldest zergs in the hive and the ones with the most experience when it comes to situations like this one.

Tension descends in the area. Only when the Imperial Doctor approached and asked the Zerg King about his plan, which he guessed, did he send people away.

Imperial Old Doctor Ruth asked, "Your Majesty, are you going to try entering the Spiritual Domain of the Queen? It's dangerous. You aren't a real couple. The Queen will definitely reject you. Please think twice!"

"If your soul is injured, you will be greatly weakened. Your Majesty, let's not try it or let others try," the Imperial Old Healer Kane said.

King Augustus exclaimed in anger. "Only I am allowed to approach the Queen's soul domain! No one else is allowed. You two just focused on the changes in our bodies and did your job."

"Yes!" Doctor Ruth and Healer Kane had no choice, but to agree to this command.

When Augustus Kaiser held Queen Titania's cold hand just now, King Augustus felt that familiar feeling when he held Jing'er's hand. His wife's body temperature had always been lower than others. It's an initiated thing and something he was born with.

Moreover, seeing Titania's pale face while groaning in pain made his heart feel discomfiting, and an uncontrollable panic in his soul made him realize something. Maybe Zhi Yue was correct from the start—that Queen Titania is indeed his wife's incarnation. If so, there is only one way to check whether it is real or not.

Lifting himself to his feet, King Augustus bent over Queen Titania's bed. The Zerg King's move stunned Doctor Ruth and Healer Kane, causing them to gasp involuntarily. Colonel Cyril gave them a wary look, and they covered their mouths. Augustus Kaiser lets his lips dance with Titania's while he looks at her expressionless face.

As soon as he sensed the link between their spirits, those previously frigid eyes began to melt. He was both surprised and happy.

Nobody expected to see such kindness and affection from their king, but those two crimson eyes melted with it. Augustus only had to kiss once to know exactly what he wanted. A grin emerged from the corner of his mouth, and he now looked at Titania as though she were the center of the universe.

"It is indeed you, my most beloved." King Augustus whispered in happiness.

But his smile immediately faded when he recalled what happened in the throne hall just now. King Augustus suddenly regrets all the words said in the throne hall. Maybe he should have believed Yue. After all, that brat had accompanied his wife longer as a soul. There is no way he would make a mistake if he said that someone was Jing'er's incarnation.

King Augustus said, "Conrad, I don't know what will happen. If something happens to me, take authority. Let Cid Warlock lead if he rebels or someone rebels. Kill them all! Cyril, the same thing if any of the Female Zergs rebel."

"As you wish, Your Majesty!" The two kneel in acceptance of their mission.

Chapter 1368: Second Red Star - Soul Domain

King Augustus wanted to wake up Queen Titania, as his state was obviously not right. So he decided to enter his soul domain with just his spiritual form. It's okay for couples to enter each other's domain, but it will be almost impossible for strangers to let their souls roam, as any damage done in this place would reflect on the soul of the owner of the domain.

At this moment, Queen Titania had already closed off her heart before this happened. Adding to the fact that King Augustus and Queen Titania treated each other as just acquaintances, it would most likely be impossible for each other to enter their soul domain. Even so, King Augustus still wants to try doing so. The backlash of rejection of someone's soul domain is an injury to the soul.

That's why Imperial Doctor Ruth and Imperial Healer Kane were against their king entering the soul domain of someone as powerful as Queen Titania.

King Augustus once again leans down and allows his forehead to meet the Queen's forehead. With their heads bumped together, Augustus Kaiser spread his spiritual qi towards the soul domain of Titania Ambrosia. Unexpectedly, he met a strong rejection that denied his entrance to the latter's mindscape. The Zerg King immediately sat out and puked blood.

This time, even the corners of his eyes, ears, and nose were bleeding.

Cough.

"Your Majesty!"

"Stand back! I'm okay," King Augustus said.

Bleeding on his orifices shocked the healer and doctor in the room. Even so, he looked like he was smiling, despite the rejection.

King Augustus mumbles, "To think it's an immediate rejection, are you that angry with me, wife?"

He glanced at Cyril Bailey and said, "Cyril, make some soul-refilling pill. I'm going to try it until I successfully do it. As for the others, send them out. Call them afterward."

Cyril Bailey went to the corner of the room and brought out a furnace. Most gods in Vearth know how to concoct a pill; it is just that those who are truly talented at it are limited to a few. One of them was the God of Judgement, who was the Dad of his wife, Jing'er. This is also the reason why Hei Anjing's knowledge of medicine and pills is top-notch because he was taught when he was young.

Warden Yun Ming is his wife's direct subordinate, and everything he knows is also taught to him. Though his abilities for this kind of thing aren't as heavenly-defying as those of his wife, it's enough to say that it's a master class.

That's why he asked Cyril Bailey to make a soul-replenishing pill for him, as he knew that it would be hard for him to enter Queen Titania's soul domain regarding their current relationship.

The rejection of the Queen is normal; he is in a not-so-good state, adding to the fact that his current situation is weird. His queen's current situation is also weird as if someone had intentionally caused it. He can only have the answers to these questions once System Yue wakes up from his wife's soul domain.

Upon the second try, King Augustus once again bled from the corner of his eyes, yet he kept his eyes closed as if concentrating on something while ignoring the pain of his soul being ripped apart.

Meanwhile, Queen Titania and System Yue fell into another timeline after entering the world of memories. The two of them woke up in a world full of darkness. Despite the darkness in the area, they could still see each other and themselves clearly.

Queen Titania didn't look surprised to see a small floating moon, as he felt he had opened his eyes in such a realistic dream. The only difference is that he woke up in a different body. Even though he couldn't see himself, Titania was sure that this wasn't his real body. He was still calm in such a situation and stared at the hovering moon around him.

He heard a voice coming from the small moon: [Why does it look so familiar? Isn't this Lord Hei's real body?]

When the Zerg Queen learned that this silly moon that dared to approach him knew this body, he immediately decided to catch the stupid moon. Zhi Yue was grabbed by Queen Titania in Hunluan's body.

Zhi Yue, who was caught, said, [...???...] When he saw that Queen Titania was looking at him, he trembled.

He thought that, like before, Queen Titania could not see him at all. But for some reason, in this dream world where space and time were blurred, his existence was exposed. The silly little moon's light blinked like it was confused.

Queen Titania said, "I know you can speak and understand me? Tell me what I want and I will not squeeze you to death."

The light in the little moon blinks faster than before, obviously showing it's panicked, as he hears a young man's voice, which seems about to cry, lingering near his ears.

[Wuwuwu~ Please don't squeeze me.]

Seeing that annoying cry of the stupid moon, Queen Titania becomes softhearted. He had let him go.

Sigh~

Unexpectedly, the little moon didn't escape like he expected and instead flew closer to him, as if he were afraid of this place as well. Queen Titania realized that maybe this little thing wasn't here in the first place but was dragged in like him.

"Don't cry. So noisy. Little one, do you know where we are?"

[Sniff! I only know this is the Abyss (Void). The world of darkness.]

"Abyss?" Queen Titania frowned.

That word is something he heard for the first time but for some unknown reason, it doesn't seem to be the first time either. Moreover, he couldn't feel fear surrounded by such darkness; instead, there was an unexplainable and uncomfortable feeling coming from within him.

Queen Titania asked again, "How did you come in here?"

[Me? I was thrown here with your memories of someone. He is someone who possesses the same eye color as you do.] System Yue said.

He didn't mention the existence of Chaos to Queen Titania, as this incarnation had no memories of Lord Hei. He wouldn't know the identity of Chaos even if he explained it to him.

Queen Titania thought deeply about who might be that man who possessed the same eyes as him. Since he couldn't think of anyone, he realized something weird. Why would this weird thing get thrown here with him? The answer is simple. He had always been with him but for some reason, he didn't notice him at all.

Just as he was about to ask this silly man about it, his head suddenly ached. The kind of pain as if someone is squeezing your head. Even for someone with a high tolerance of pain like Queen Titania, he couldn't help but groan. Amid his blurry sight, some kind of scene appeared in his mind.

He saw a handsome man completely different from the Male Zergs he had seen all his life. A manly, handsome man possessed a dangerous aura. Queen Titania can hardly move her gaze away, especially at that beautiful pair of crimson vertical irises that look inhuman.

The Zerg Queen heard the man talking to him.

{Hm, I need to come out of the Abyss to help my brother create a world. It shouldn't take long, but can you take my place and become the Ruler of the Abyss while I'm at it? I will be back soon. I promise you, Snow.}

Queen Titania was confused until he couldn't control his mouth and replied to the person in front of him.

"Okay, I will wait for you. Come back soon, Xia. I will always be waiting for you here."

A warm kiss fell on his forehead, and he noticed that the handsome man in front of him had given him a peck on his forehead, making him blush uncontrollably. This is the first time Titania has felt what warmth is. It's addictive and gives him happiness. Titania can only watch the man's back fade before her eyes. Even if he reached out his hands, he couldn't reach anything.

He had a sudden emptiness in his heart.

All of a sudden, the time moved so fast before his eyes that the emptiness in his heart was replaced with intense rage and hatred. The warmth within his heart slowly fades as only coldness remains in his hollow soul. Queen Titania's silver eyes slowly get tainted with darkness after his soul is broken. The feeling of abandonment after being forgotten.

The jealousy towards those people who were able to stand beside that man's side but never treasure it.

Argh! AHHHHHHH!

Only the last positive emotion remained in the heart of the Incomplete God, which was love. Aside from this, there is only hatred, anger, envy, jealousy, and murderous intent. As if all the darkness in the world converged within the heart, protecting the last light within his life. To protect it, Queen Titania made the same choice Snow did back then.

System Yue, who watched the whole scene, was shocked. He watched Titania happily send the Lord of Void out, watched as the God of Void forgot about him, and watched him look over the scene of the Lord of Void's life outside the abyss.

Watching the man who forgot about him, who forgot about his promise to return and even forgot about his existence, who sacrificed himself so that he could escape from the Void.

Like the rumors said, the Abyss is made up of negativity. Ordinary gods can stay here; only those born with Yin Nature can, but the other gods would become 'Fallen' by staying here. Tainted with darkness, they can only go crazy slowly but surely. Until all of their emotions and feelings are gone, the pain will be with them until the end.

Zhi Yue didn't need to feel the pain, so he knew what kind of agony Queen Titania had undergone. He watched as the stronger broke down until he looked like a broken puppet with no feelings or emotions. To protect the love he just gained, he chose to kill himself in the end.

[It was only now that I understood why Lord Chaos hates Milord so much. Even so, the reason why Milord had forgotten about Lord Hei in the first was because the God of End had sealed his memories. Since he couldn't remember and hated the Void, of course, he wouldn't return there.]

[Now I don't know which of them is wrong, or maybe they were both wrong. If only the God of End didn't do that, wouldn't Milord and Lord Hei be together for so long now? Only he is to blame.]

When this scene of death was over, Zhi Yue and Titania woke up in a different place. It's a world full of white fog and water. Not far from them is a tree with silver leaves. The two couldn't help but walk towards the center, where the tree was. For System Yue, this place is similar, as this is the Soul Domain of Lord Hei. This is also Titania's Spiritual Domain.

Queen Titania mumbles, "This place is... My soul domain."

[What!?]

Upon hearing this, Zhi Yue was sure that this person was Lord Hei's Incarnation. Having the same Soul Domain is impossible, as it is something born from one's soul. With tears pouring out of nowhere from the small moon, the Zerg Queen was bewildered by the crying moon.

[It's you. It's definitely you. You are Lord Hei's Incarnation. Also, Lord Ye's wife!]

Queen Titania frowned when he heard what the silly moon said: "I am no one's wife!"

System Yue said, [That's not true. I can't be wronged. This soul domain is the proof. You are Lord Hei's incarnation, a soul fragment that was reincarnated in this world. We descend to this world to find you. I, A'Yang, Lord Ye, Warden Lou, and Warden Yun all came just to find you.]

Queen Titania for some reason, wanted to throw away this annoying little moon, "Who the hell are those? I don't know any of them."

System Yue explained properly. [You've met them before! Lord Ye is the current King Augustus; Warden Lou and Warden Yun are the couple of Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril. [A'Yang is like me, but he is the sun.]

"Stupid Moon, why don't you let him take a seat first? Not only does he not understand what you are saying, his memories aren't completely back yet," Chaos, who appeared under the silver leaf tree, said.

Lord Chaos appeared in this domain as well. He prepared a table of dessert and milk tea for them. As for why he can enter Queen Titania's soul domain, it is simply because they are one person and share the same place.

[Lord Chaos!]

System Yue happily flies towards Chaos, unlike his vigilance from before. He felt close to this person, who is also a part of Lord Hei, though he was a bit rebellious. In the end, all of them had a connection to Lord Hei and were closer to each other than the others.

Queen Titania decides this man is not dangerous, as he can feel his aura coming from him even though he can't explain why. He joined them at the table, despite his confusion

"Who are you? Why can you enter my soul domain?" The Zerg Queen asked

Lord Chaos smiled mischievously and said, "I am your soulmate."

Pfft! Choke. Cough. Cough. Ha-haha

System Yue, who was drinking his milk tea, splurged what he was sipping just now and choked on the spot. The milk tea wasn't spilled, as it was frozen in the air and thrown out somewhere. But Queen Titania knew that this man was lying based on that silly moon's reaction. Even though they haven't spent too much time together, he has already regarded that thing as something that couldn't lie.

Lord Chaos frowned. "That's disgusting, Yue!"

[S-Sorry. Lord Chaos' joke didn't seem funny, and I choked, almost dying on the spot.] System Yue said. [Who would say you are the soul mate of your own self? Are you a narcissist, Lord Chaos?]

The stupid moon who couldn't control his mouth was slapped away by Lord Chaos. No one would be happy to be called a narcissist, especially if they aren't one themselves.

Lord Chaos said, "Who the hell are you calling a narcissist?! Stupid brat!"

On the other hand, Queen Titania was shocked by what he heard. He looked at the man before him in disbelief.

"You... you are me?" The Zerg Queen asked with incredulity painted on his face.

Chapter 1369: 19.28 Second Red Star - Never get involved when the Couple's Fight.

Queen Titania was astounded by what he had just heard. Despite having experienced several reincarnations in his star, he had never before encountered the man in front of him. However, it appears that both the guy and the small moon are claiming that they are the same individual. What does he mean when he says his memories are returning, and why does he not know anything?

He is unaware that he is memoryless.

Seeing the confusion imprinted on the Zerg Queen's face, Chaos understands why he is reacting like this. In the first place, he only knows himself, as Titania said. All of the memories of the soul fragments were sealed at birth, and only when the God of Void descended would the seal be broken.

He comes to this world ahead of time to take away the memories, as he feels that a corrupted piece of Tun Shizhe appeared in this world.

If that corrupted piece learned that Titania was the reincarnation of the God of Destruction and Chaos, he would definitely eat him. The corrupted World Eater Fragment only had one thing in mind: to devour anything in this world. Though they are weaker than the original World Eater, being about to eat lesser gods is still possible, but eating the world is not Titania's memories of the main body were erased by Chaos in order to shield him from that depraved god. The corrupted being was defeated by the God of Void, as was to be expected, but who would have guessed that it was only a clone and that the original body was still hiding somewhere in this world?

Under the protection of the God of Void, Titania wouldn't be in much danger, so he decided to return the Zerg Queen's memories. But thinking of his dislike towards the God of Void, he chose not to return it right away. He wanted to make it hard for him.

Chaos smirked and looked at Queen Titania, "You know that the current Zerg King is looking for his wife's incarnation in this world, right?"

"Does that have something to do with me?" Queen Titania retorted.

Chaos responded, "Of course!" He pointed at Titania Ambrosia and said, "He was looking for you. You are his wife's incarnation. In the first place, you and I are merely soul fragments that gained sentience. Once we die, our soul will merge with the main soul. This death had to be in the presence of the soul in King Augustus' body. He is the guide that can bring us back to our original body."

Queen Titania could hardly believe the man's words. He wanted to deny that he was someone's reincarnation. After all, he is the Queen. The Queen of the whole Zerg Race

"I am the Queen. I am not someone's reincarnation."

"Regardless of whether you deny it or not, it would not matter much after all; you had already experienced one of our past lives," Chaos said.

The Zerg Queen thought back to that terrible place, that excruciating loneliness, the agony of having his soul torn apart, and the resolve to keep his one remaining feelings of love safe in the midst of his despair and insanity. There was a certain relief in his existence when he died in that environment. It made him feel at ease.

But now that he is back to consciousness, he is experiencing not just peace but also a profound loneliness that renders his emotions lifeless and boring.

Queen Titania said, "Are you saying that in that black world we had truly stayed there for an unknown number of years, with just this silly moon by our side?"

"No. I only threw in that moon so you wouldn't go crazy. The us in that timeline was like a prisoner of the abyss. All alone, without anyone by our side. Only he exists alone in that desolated realm. Forgotten by everyone and abandoned by the person he loves the most.

He had gone crazy in the end," Chaos said.

Queen Titania quietly listened. He can sympathize with these words, as he himself has experienced them. If there wasn't a small moon accompanying him, he would have definitely gone crazy in that void. When he thought all of that suffering was because of that man who had forgotten him, he felt hatred in his heart. It was uncontrollable and immensely uncomfortable.

Just as he was about to speak up, the three of them heard a loud sound of something breaking. The glass-like barrier Chaos placed within this soul domain to prevent the God of Void from entering was forcibly broken from the outside.

BANG! CRACKLES~

The sound of cracking glass reverberates across the domain, causing System Yue, Queen Titania, and Chaos to stare up above their heads as pieces of glass-like objects drop from above. Then a man's figure descended from above them. Chaos sprung up, shocked and incredulous at what he saw. His piercing eyes were filled with worry mixed with hatred.

Chaos shouted at the newly arrived person, "Are you crazy!? That's a barrier that can only be destroyed with the use of divinity. With your cursed body, you aren't supposed to be able to wield any divine qi. Forcing it means injuring your own soul!"

"Don't worry. I won't die that easily," the God of Void said.

King Augustus arrived, but in front of Queen Titania, the Zerg King's appearance vanished, and the man from that traumatic recollection emerged. That is the exact same guy who said he would return but never did. the person who left him behind in that terrible place. He glares at the God of Void, feeling a sudden surge of wrath in his heart.

"Chaos, you're making things hard for me again. I already asked you to kill me in the last world, but you hesitated. I can't do it again as Jing'er will be very angry," the God of Void said.

Chaos snorted and said, "I lost interest in that. So, I will just make others do it for me." He turned his head and smirked when he saw Queen Titania's expression. "That's right. Titania will do it for me."

Unexpectedly, the Zerg Queen, who lost himself to hatred, looked at the God of Void, full of anger and dislike.

"Who allowed you to enter my soul domain!?" Queen Titania bellowed.

Shards of ice started flying towards the God of Void. Chaos grabbed the stunned little moon and flew away, as the ice shards were also flying towards them. Right now, Titania was like Chaos when he first met Ye Xiajie. Full of hatred and will attack the God of Void indiscriminately. This was the scene he wanted to see.

Watching the God of Void and Queen Titania fight from the distance, Chaos watches with a smile. But System Yue thought otherwise.

Chaos said, "That's right. Fight until one falls! Haha~"

System Yue spoke up, [But Lord Chaos, have you forgotten where we are? This is the Soul Domain of Lord Hei, so if something here is broken, all three of you will be affected.]

Lord Chaos stiffened when he heard System Yue's words. He actually forgot, as he was having fun laughing at the God of Void being chased after by Queen Titania. He felt a bit embarrassed when Zhi Yue pointed this fact out.

Cough

Feeling embarrassed, Lord Chaos changed the subject abruptly. "I didn't forget. I will send them out now. Also tell that bastard that your partner, that little sun, was stolen by Tun Shizhe from the last world. He was staying in the Human World as one of the Marshals, the youngest one.

So he definitely knows what your plans are." Lord Chaos waves his hand, sending the fighting couple below back to their bodies.

System Yue panicked when he heard that his partner was caught. [Is A'Yang alright?]

"Don't worry. He wouldn't destroy it. Well, it's impossible to destroy it after all. It's life was connected to the God of Void, it won't die unless they all die, like you won't die unless the main soul or us all die. You've signed a soul contract with us after all," Lord Chaos said.

System Yue felt relief when he heard about that. He knew that Zhi Yang wouldn't be in danger, at least for now. He would still report it to the Sovereign, though.

Lord Chaos said, "By the way, tell him that Titania's memories will slowly return. When that time comes, his original strength would also come back. So tell him to break that curse in his vessel as soon as possible. He has two enemies on this world: the human race led by Tun Shizhe and the Fallen Heretics led by the corrupted fragments of the World Eater. I won't be helping, so do your best."

Zhi Yue was likewise expelled from the soul realm and made a comeback to the material world. He opened his eyes to see Queen Titania and King Augustus engaged in combat once more, but this time using their bodies. The pair engaged in combat leaped out of the Queen's Palace, and proceeded to fight outside.

System Yue and the two wardens can only watch from the bottom, as they sent people away from the scene, but a lot of people saw this scene and news about the Zerg Queen and Zerg King not getting along spread in the hive.

Colonel Cyril asked, "Yue, what happened between them? They suddenly started fighting as soon as they opened their eyes. You should have witnessed how the queen unhesitatingly punched the Zerg King as soon as he woke up and how the latter blocked it even before opening his eyes."

[Well, it's Lord Chaos again. He returned to Queen Titania his memories, but started from the traumatic ones which caused Queen Zerg to hate Milord. It would still take time before his whole memories return.] System Yue told them what happened and about the involvement of Lord Chaos.

Marquess Conrad said, "Then this would last for a while."

"Let's just leave them be. Those nobles with schemes in their heads all day would definitely try to start something with this," Colonel Cyril said.

System Yue said, [Lord Chaos said that even though Queen Titania doesn't remember everything yet, it would slowly return in the future. Those nobles are just seeking death for themselves if they make a move. The current Zerg Queen cannot be held back by anyone anymore.]

Lord Chaos this person is like an enigma. He would appear everywhere and would mess with the God of Void at every opportunity he got. It wasn't surprising that he got involved in this world again. They are more worried about the Human Race and the heretics, which was led by the enemies of their Milord.

This fight lasts for so long that even Cid Warlock comes over to watch. The news about the Zerg Queen and Zerg King fighting above the city had spread to everywhere in the hive, even beyond. He thought it was a bad situation until he saw Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril watching their masters fight with a relaxed posture and melon-eating standing.

Cid Warlock looked confused and asked, "Lord Silver, this is..."

"Don't worry. They would stop when hungry. It's almost lunch, so they should be stopping soon," Marquess Conrad Silver said.

Cid Warlock asked, "It isn't serious?"

"No. Just a normal couple quarrel. Don't get involved. You'd end up miserably if you did. Look." Colonel Cyril gestured for him to look behind him.

A few nobles from the anti-king faction gathered to act like they were siding with the Queen.

"Your Highness Queen, if his Majesty had done something bad, you should get angry."

"That's right. Even if his majesty is the king, wronging His Highness the Queen is not right."

King Augustus and Queen Titania paused their sparring and looked down at the bugs of the noble class gathering under them. Both their eyes were cold, as if looking at something insignificant.

"Oh, it seems you want to say something about this king. Don't mince your words, or it would be hard to understand," King Augustus said.

"Your Highness, please stop your tyranny! His Highness the Queen also couldn't hold back and fought back."

"That's right. We are backing the Queen. A new candidate for the throne must be chosen as the King and Queen could no longer get along!"

"The top of the food chain in the Hive must not waver at all. Or else the leaders can only be replaced. Since His Highness could no longer bear your majesty, it's time to change the..."

Whooshed!

A sharp ice shard cut the cheeks of the noble zerg who was speaking just now. Queen Titania's terrifying gaze now fell on the nobles, making them shiver.

"Change the King? Replace the Leaders? Who gave you weaklings the right to speak up!? Aside from this bastard who was capable of fighting against me, the strongest bug in the Hive, you want to pick someone to change him? Do you still have your brains? Fuck off!

Me fighting him is for personal reasons. You schemers are not in place to speak. Cool your heads there!"

Queen Titania froze all the noble zergs who tried to use him to pull down the zerg king. Everyone was dumbfounded but understood that the fight between the two is not so serious that the hive will fall in chaos but due to personal reasons. Maybe they are just having a lover's quarrel.

King Augustus was chuckling in the corner but shut up when Queen Titania looked at him coldly.

"What are you laughing at?"

"Nothing. I just felt you love me so much." King Augustus smiled as he said these words.

"Who the hell loves you!?" Queen Titania shouted.

It stunned the Queen for a moment, but he once again flared in rage and started attacking the King, who dodged his ice shards with no problems.

Meanwhile, in the corner, Cid Warlock, who witnessed the scene, was dumbfounded and turned around, only to see Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril holding popcorn and watching the scene.

"For real?" Cid Warlock asked as if he couldn't believe that this fight was truly just a lover's quarrel.

Colonel Cyril said, "It's real. All those who interfered ended up like that."

"Eh?"

"Look around you. There are more of them," Marquess Conrad said while feeding his lover.

Following instructions, Cid Warlock gazed around them. They observed some soldiers moving around carrying frozen people and attempting to thaw the ice in order to save them. Some of the nobility Cid Warlock met at the court sessions are contained inside those ices.

"Ah! There's a new block here."

"Okay. Lift it over here. Let's melt them before sunset!"

Cid Warlock was left dumbfounded. Everyone was so used to it that they ignored the fighting couple in the sky and focused on saving those who tried to stop them.

Chapter 1370 Second Red Star - Crown Prince Candidate

Even after they had dropped from the skies, the Zerg King and Zerg Queen were still exchanging icy barbs. Since the two did not even utilize their wings in combat, it is obvious that none of them gave it their all. Zergs are not out for a kill until their wings are out. That is why, aside from those who wanted to plot something, nobody genuinely desired to put an end to their two rulers' feud.

The Queen ultimately decided to freeze the majority of these guys.

Almost everyone was startled when the Zerg King let the Zerg Queen relocate into his palace after the destruction of the Queen's Palace, with the exception of Marquess Silver and Colonel Cyril, who had anticipated it since they discovered that Queen Titania was actually Lord Hei's incarnation. Find your next adventure on empire

King Augustus would never permit Queen Titania to dwell anywhere else now that he is positive he is his wife's incarnation. Thus, the King Palace would be noisy every day whenever the couple fought.

This continued for a week until the Zerg King learned that the human race planned to invade the Hive. King Augustus called everyone to a dawn court the following morning. The heads of the armed forces as well as the nobility were called. In the throne hall now, a second throne is set aside next to his own. Queen Titania was seated next to King Augustus on this throne.

Colonel Cyril stands behind Queen Titania, and Marquess Conrad stands behind King Augustus. It was already common knowledge that these two were obedient aides to King Augustus and that they would always stand by him. What shocked them even more was that Queen Titania, a zerg woman, was permitted to sit on her own throne next to the monarch.

Following the demise of the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress, this has never occurred before.

Cid Warlock, Solan, Lucas, Kian, and Roan are among those in attendance during the court meeting. Everyone was shocked to see the halflings they had met earlier when the Queen brought them here, but they were more than happy to have them around because of the Human Race's urgent need to wage war against the Zerg Race once more.

King Augustus started saying, "Everyone is here. I have a few announcements. First, Titania Ambrosia's Authority will be equal to this King. He will be a Regent Queen. Anyone who disrespects him will be published by law as he, himself, is like me. Remember, disrespecting the Queen means death."

Silence descended in the hall. On the other hand, Queen Titania looked uninterested as he looked down on everyone before his eyes with a bored expression. Everyone was stunned, but no one dared to reject the King's words and waited for him to continue talking.

King Augustus said, "Second, the candidate for the Crown Prince position had been decided."

At this announcement, everyone in the hall was surprised. They started whispering to one another.

Marquess Conrad said, "Be quiet!"

Everyone shut their mouths when they heard Marquess Conrad speak out. This is obviously because the Zerg King was annoyed that they cut off his words. Silence once again spread in the hall.

King Augustus gestured for Cid Warlock to come. "You come over."

The nobility zergs and the soldiers appeared unhappy as Cid Warlock, the halfling, stood in front of them. They failed to see what this young man had to offer to be named Crown Prince. With this title, he will succeed King Augustus in the event of his death or abdication.

Everyone in the Hive can see that King Augustus had lost interest in the throne. If he had chosen the appropriate heir, he would have abdicated long ago. Only members of the three Royal Zerg Tribes are eligible to hold the thrones in the Hive. Almost gone is the Blue Morpho Butterfly Royal Tribe. It was stated that the current king was the last of his lineage.

The Monarch Butterfly Bloodline was exterminated long ago with the passing of the Zerg Emperor, and the Apollo Butterfly Royal Tribe solely selects the Queen.

King Augustus introduces the candidate for the Crown Prince position.

"His name is Cid Warlock. He is half-human and half-Zerg."

No one in the hall cared whether he was a half-human; in the first place, there are lots of halfings in the hive, and most of them are powerful. The female halfings work for the military, while the male halfings either work for the palace or are adopted by a noble tribe to be heirs. In the hive, strength matters first, and bloodline is only second.

Unfortunately, there aren't other Zerg tribes stronger than the current royal tribes.

King Augustus said, "As for the bloodline of his Zerg, you will understand why I chose him after you see his wings. Kid, show them your wings."

Cid Warlock did as he was told and unfolded his large blue wings with black linings. As soon as his wings were spread, almost everyone in the hall was dumbfounded, except for those who already knew, like the queen and the two wardens in the area.

Gasp!

"The Blue Morpho Butterfly Bloodline!"

"A Royal Blood! He is from the former royal family!?"

"Impossible! Isn't the current king the last of his kind?"

"No. The lost prince, don't you remember? The late royal family lost a royal prince before. Don't tell me! Is he his descendant?"

Solan and the other halflings who were with Cid Warlock were ecstatic about the disturbance in the hall. It appears from the responses of those in their immediate vicinity that their leader held a prominent position inside the Hive. The halflings who are with them appear to be more influential in the future.

When Marquess Conrad noticed that the Zerg King was frowning at the ruckus, he quickly ordered everyone in the hall to hush. However, before he could say anything more, the other individual, irritated by the commotion, began to exert more pressure from his seat.

It is Queen Titania. "Noisy. The meeting is getting longer, and the main subject, which is war, hasn't been tackled yet. Continue your nonsense for later."

Everyone turned silent under this coercion. Only when the hall had once again turned noiseless was the suppressing aura of the Zerg Queen taken back.

With a glance from the Zerg Queen, King Augustus continued his words. "Before Cid Warlock gains the title of crown prince, he must defeat three human generals or a marshal and bring back their heads as proof."

"Are you willing to accept this trial, Cid Warlock?" King Augustus asked.

Cid Warlock kneeled on one knee and accepted his trial. "This one accepts the trial."

"The one who will lead the war is the Queen. All authorities on the battlefield shall be under his command. I will stay and protect the hive. I will only come out if something unexpected happens," King Augustus said.

Queen Titania glanced at his side and said, "Just stay here. Don't steal my fun."

"Sure. Have fun. I will leave the rest to you," King Augustus said as he once again excused his presence and secluded himself in his palace.

This time, he wanted to break the curse for sure. In the past few days, he has always been fighting with the Zerg Queen. There is also the incident of the queen falling unconscious. So many things happened that prevented him from breaking the curse on this body.

Look at Marquess Conrad. His physical body had been refined to the level of his soul. He is now manly and handsome, making lots of female zergs' eyes sparkle in his presence. Thankfully, there is Cyril Bailey always by his side, or Marquess Conrad would always be surrounded by female zergs.

Instead of bidding the Zerg King farewell, the Zerg Queen rolled his eyes at him. His animosity for this individual is genuine, despite the fact that he knew this man was not his enemy. Furthermore, Chaos keeps his word. Yes, the memories were slowly coming back to him, but lately they had only been unpleasant ones, clouding his perception of the God of Void day by day.

Because of this, every morning, as Queen Titania awakens from his memory nightmare, there is a brawl in the King's Palace.

The atmosphere in the throne hall darkened once King Augustus left. Unlike the Zerg King, who vanished instantly, Marquess Conrad remained in the hall and stood behind the Zerg Queen. In the event that the Zerg King is not there, they are to obey the Zerg Queen's commands.

Queen Titania said, "All female zerg soldiers will come out with me. Half will follow the lead of Cid Warlock and the other half to the front with me. The male zerg soldiers will be at the rear. Don't forget to support the female zergs on time. Failure to do so will be death on the spot. Just think of the result of losing; the humans are here to exterminate our race.

Once we lost your riches and wealth, families and cubs as well as your home and our planet. They will destroy everything, kill everyone, and loot everything. If you don't want that to happen, silent to my commands."

"Yes, your highness!"

Everyone reacted to the Zerg Queen's comments this time. If they do not defend their home planet in the midst of the impending disaster, then who will? The female zergs have a strong physical strength but lack mental power and control over their spiritual qi. For them, spiritual attacks are more effective against them.

The meeting was adjourned when it was explained which formations would be utilized and what supplies they would require for the fight. A few people were still in the hall when everyone went to work on their assignments. Only Cid Warlock and his halfling subordinates were left among them.

Queen Titania looked at Cid Warlock and said, "I will let three human generals go to your side. As for whether you succeed or not, it depends on yourself. I won't be able to lend you help when the battle begins. Also, I believe you should learn the abilities of your bloodline. Each tribe has their own special abilities. The Apollo Butterfly Tribe is ice control.

As for your Blue Morpho Butterfly, it's an illusion or debuff. I don't know which you have inherited."

"How will I be able to check?" Cid Warlock asked.

Queen Titania glances at Marquess Conrad beside him, obviously asking him to take on the role of teaching the brat. As expected, Marquess Conrad stepped out while wearing fighting gloves in his hand.

Marquess Conrad said, "The only way to check is through fighting. During life and death situations, your bloodline's special skill shall awaken. Grit your teeth, brats!" Marquess Conrad said as he suddenly appeared before Cid Warlock and swing his arm for a punch.

Since male zergs are physically weaker than sentinels, Cid Warlock did not take the hit seriously. With the intention of softly blocking it, he raised one arm. Who would have imagined that a massive, hefty weight would descend on his arm at the exact time of impact? This ex-sentinel had to raise his other arm to deflect Marquess Conrad's one blow to the face. He took off again, heading for the door.

BOOM!

"BOSS!"

Solan, Lucas, and Kian were shocked and turned vigilant towards the male zerg in front of them. Only Roan, who is a doctor, ran towards Cid Warlock, who hit the door of the hall to check on him. When they turned around, they saw Marquess Conrad twisting his right wrist as if warming up.

Colonel Cyril said for the brats to hear. "Don't treat my husband the same as those weak male zergs outside. Unlike them, he had already fixed the error in his genes and acquired the normal physical body of a male zerg of olden times."

"The former Zerg Emperor is said to possess a body harder than diamonds, and male zergs of that time never possessed weakness. They possess a body stronger than those you call sentinels. The male zerg in front of you is the strongest after the Zerg King. So fight for real or you will die~" Queen Titania said as he watched the scene before him like entertainment.

Marquess Conrad looked at them with disdain while clutching his hands as if trying to control his strength.

"I will make sure your Zerg bloodlines awaken enough to gain your original regeneration ability."

The Chief Warden's physical might isn't his only weapon. As a war god, he possesses a vast array of combat experience, both in one-on-one and one-on-many situations. He gave all the halflings in the hall such a hard time that the bruises and injuries caused their bloodlines to awaken.

A few hours later, Marquess Conrad took off his bloodstained gloves and tossed them to a servant as he left. A heap of battered halflings can be seen behind him; they were beaten despite baring their zerg parts during the fight. As one approaches, they can observe how quickly their bruises and wounds are healing.

Marquess Conrad said, "Training starts at 6 am in the morning. Location: First Training Grounds in this Imperial Palace. If you are late, there will be punishment."

After Marquess Conrad walked away, the small hill of beaten brats behind him were murmuring the same thing.

"Spartan!"

"Demon Trainer!"

"Wuwu~ my handsome face."

In the end, Colonel Cyril felt bad for them and healed them by giving them some pills before asking them to leave the hall to rest. After Cid Warlock and his group disappeared, Marquess Conrad and Colonel Cyril kneeled before the Queen.

Queen Titania said, "He left you two behind to monitor me?"

"No, your highness. We are here to serve you," Colonel Cyril said.

Marquess Conrad said, "Please give us orders."

"Very well. Join me on the battlefield and fight in front," Queen Titania commanded.

The two said, "As you wish, Your Highness!"