

World Plot 1401

Chapter 1401 Second Red Star - Beast King, Leonhart

Now that the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress had arrived on the Beast Planet, the belligerent beastmen had at last discovered an entirely new battleground to attack. The former Federation Star is surrounded by a few massive warships. Its blue color has turned white, giving the impression that snow has covered the entire star.

The Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress saw the same black lion in the video, and it turns out that the King of the Beastmen is inside one of the biggest spaceships in the fleet that is floating above the federation star. His dull gray eyes had changed. They were now lighter and he had somewhat recovered his sense of reason.

He still has a great desire for battle, but he differs from the other beastmen in that he can speak.

The King of Beasts, Leonhart, stared at the white star before his eyes. "Isn't this the human star? How did it become white when I remembered it as blue?" he mumbles.

"My King, aren't we going to descend yet? My fists are as itchy as my teeth."

"Is there even something worthy of fighting in the human star? Didn't most of their warriors die before? It's better to head to the Hive Star instead!"

The Beast King Leonhart said, "No. I can feel a strong individual there. One... no, two as powerful, no, maybe more powerful than I exist in there."

The spaceship's interior abruptly became silent upon hearing this. A few minutes later, the entire audience erupted in joyful laughter. It appears that nearly all of the beastmen heard what their monarchs had to say, and rather than being afraid, they will be more eager to face off against stronger foes.

"Hahaha~ this is great news! The best one this month!"

"King, let's go. I want to fight already."

"Kakaka~ I can't wait to fight against the strong. The stronger they are, the better."

Beast Kin Leonhart also had an excited smile on his face as his eyes glowed a brighter shade of gray.
"Shall we descend then?"

The entire fleet of the Beast Race had entered the human star, led by Leonhart, the king of beasts. The inhabitants of the Federation Star were unaware of the impending peril that was set to strike them.

Federation Star, North Region...

Leng Jun flees to the sky, gazing at his fully grown Chuchu, after running away from the south. He felt as though all the weight in his heart had lifted sufficiently for him to breathe when he saw him awake and well. The corner of his eyes had gone red and he was holding back his emotions, but his demeanor had progressively changed.

Away from the Ice Forest, home of the Ice Elemental Wolf King, the two of them touched down. Leng Jun attempted to embrace Chuchu as soon as they landed, but his hands went through Chuchu.

With shock imprinted on his face, Leng Jun asked, "Why... Why can't I touch you, Chuchu?!"

The Fire Elemental Viper King, Chuchu, looked at his master with a sad gaze and said, {A'Jun, this is merely my soul. I no longer have any physical body for me to materialize in your world.}

"How can I help you gain your material form? Is there a way for you to gain another body? Right, that person said that in the Upper Realm there is a way to recreate a body. We should go to the Upper Realm, Chuchu?" Leng Jun said.

{A'Jun, only Gods are able to ascend to the Upper Realm. We are currently only in the migration stage. Unless you become a god, it is impossible to leave this world of yours.}

Leng Jun recalled what that man told him before: "Chuchu, that man said that you can only wake up once you absorb divinity. Did you know why you woke up?"

{I don't know. When I was sleeping, I suddenly felt a powerful aura enter my soul. Not only did it repair my injuries, but it also strengthened my soul. I don't know who gave me that power. If your words are right, then it must be divine energy that woke me up. I just don't know who gave it to me,} Chuchu, the Fire Elemental Viper King, said.

Leng Jun asked, "Is it not because of the energy we absorbed from that mysterious spring?"

{Definitely not! That spring only has the purest element of ice; there is no divinity at all. Also, that creepy power only gives you a quarter of whatever you eat. Just one Elemental King's energy core was enough to wake me up! Whoever told you about this kind of thing is not a good person!} Chuchu said.

Leng Jun said, "I also know that he isn't a good person, but he knows the way for me to wake you up. That is enough for me to sell my soul to him. I will sacrifice anything just to wake you up. Likewise, I am willing to do anything just to recreate your body."

{A'Jun, I'm alright. I can be reborn in the Spirit World. There is no need to listen to that evil thing!}

The atmosphere in the area turned tense. "How long will it take?" asked Leng Jun.

{Huh?}

"How long will it take for you to be reborn if you return to the Spirit World?" asked Leng Jun but his face looked a bit angry for a reason. This faced his frightened Chuchu as he was guilty of saying that it was a lie.

{I... It shouldn't... take long...}

"Chuchu, you're lying. I saw your memories in that dimension. When your parents died, they were never reborn, especially if their bloodline was extracted. You gave me all of your bloodline just to save my life. There is no way you can be reborn. Please don't lie to me!" Leng Jun said.

This outburst of him made him unable to hold back his tears as he stared at Chuchu.

Chuchu was taken aback to see that Leng Jun was crying. He was unsure of his next course of action. Even though he had lied, he never intended for Leng Jun to execute a heinous deed in order to have his body replicated. Since the Ice Elemental Octopus King was an evil elemental, he did not mind too much that he had caused his death.

As for the Ice Elemental Nine-Tailed Fox King, he gave up his energy core without a struggle. True death does not exist in this case. The Fox King was not dead. He could have gone back to the Spirit World and recreated his body, so he did not lose his bloodline. The Penguin King, on the other hand, is considerably younger than him.

Leng Jun is not interested in it because the energy in its core is insufficient. In addition, it assists them in locating the energy spring that separates them from one another.

{A'Jun, don't cry. It's my fault. But there is no need to do this. If you are stained with too much karma, your ending would not be good. I just want you to live a peaceful and happy life.}

Leng Jun, "..."

{I will help control the fire elements in your body so you can retain a human body as long as you don't wield your elemental qi. Don't you want to see your father and your comrades?}

Leng Jun said while staring at Chuchu, "My happy life includes you, Chuchu. So, don't ever disappear from me again."

{Okay. I will stay by your side, A'Jun.}

After their reunion, they set out to return to the house they could still remember. Chuchu assisted Leng Jun in mastering the fire components within his body, to the point where standing next to him was no longer considered to be hot. Nor did the snow beneath his feet melt. Leng Jun appeared more human at this point, but for the reddish hair and monstrous eyes.

Chuchu, on the other hand, decides to constrict and remain at Leng Jun's shoulders.

There were numerous hidden entrances to the underground sanctuary. Walking down the old underground tunnel that connects to the underground Sanctuary where the humans dwell, Leng Jun and Chuchu used one of the ones that was furthest from the sanctuary, making sure that no one was following them. Leng Jun was hesitant to knock on the door or enter the code to open it before the heavy metal door.

Upon seeing his hesitation, Chuchu couldn't help but look at his master with worry. {Aren't you going to enter, A'Jun? If we don't go in, those we had hunted for would go to waste}

Leng Jun said, "Chuchu, do you think they would be afraid of me? After all, I am no longer human."

{Didn't you meet your foster father before? Was he scared when you met him at that time?}

"No, but... he is my father. He had more tolerance and trust towards me. But those who live instead are humans whose families died due to the apocalypse, and some of them died because of elementals," Leng Jun said. An obvious hint of fear can be seen flashing within those red-orange irises.

Despite his pupils looking inhuman due to them becoming vertical, one can still see the hidden kindness within them.

{If you don't try meeting them, how would you know? Regardless of the result, won't I be with you?} Chuchu comforted me. Though he wasn't close to other humans or elementals, he had seen Leng Jun's relationship with his foster father and the other survivors.

However, Leng Jun was unaware that nearly all entrances leading to the Deep Haven had cameras installed after he broke away from the facility. Old Serge is in charge of this, and he still longs for his son to return and see him. Leng Jun was unaware that the guards on duty had spotted and documented his figure as soon as he showed up at the gate.

He was first unrecognizable to them because of the color of his hair and eyes.

At the surveillance room, the guards on duty today were about to switch shifts with the next group that night.

"Yawns, our shift is almost over."

"Remember to remind the next group to recharge the cameras."

"I know. These cameras are extremely useful. Thanks to them, we would know if an elemental noticed one of our entrances, and we could destroy it on time."

"Actually, there is another reason. You've heard about what happened to Captain Leng, haven't you?"

"Did they say he is out on a mission to look for other survivors? I wonder if he is still alive."

"That's a lie."

"Really? How did you know?"

"I heard something happen to him. They said that he merged with his elemental and is no longer a human. That's why he can't come back to live with us anymore."

"For real!? So, is he a human or an elemental?"

"Maybe both. But the Old Leader said that he is still our ally."

"Don't you remember those prey that appeared above our territory before? They said they were all hunted by Captain Leng for us."

"Doesn't that make him our savior then!?"

"Yes, that's why if you catch someone on the camera who looks like the captain, we should report them right away."

THUD!

There were at least four men on guard duty. With two to three of them talking to one another, the other was too sleepy to join the fun. But this sleepy man was stunned when he raised his head and looked at his monitor. He didn't know if he was too sleepy, but when he saw the monitor in front of him, he truly saw a young man pulling carts of dead mutated animals.

Every single one that can be eaten was piled up on a small hill with this one young man that looks similar to their Captain Leng pulling it effortlessly with a single hand. There is also a translucent figure of a red viper wrapped around his neck.

"Captain Leng? It's the captain!"

"What!?"

"It's really him. Call the Old Leader! Tell them that Captain Leng is here!"

"Yes, Sir!"

Chapter 1402 Second Red Star - Reunion and the Beast Race Invasion

Deep Haven's Meeting Hall

In actuality, Old Serge had assembled every seasoned hunter at the base. The food supplies that Leng Jun previously sent are going to run out. A new squad is about to be formed, one that will venture on the surface in search of additional food and seed for the base.

Fortunately, they were able to cultivate some artificial land even below earth. Not much was sown, but enough was for the base to plant some vegetables. Solar panels powered the fake sunlight; they were charged every morning. It is, after all, the same sun they recognized, even if it is unable to melt the heavy layer of snow and ice on the surface.

Old Serge looked thoughtful as they discussed the food issue. With Leng Jun, their strongest elemental, no longer with them, the risk of going hunting outside has increased threefold. This time, the hunting crew was led by Jeremy, Leng Jun's second-in-command.

"Jeremy, you will be the captain for this hunting team. Do you agree?" Old Serge asked.

Jeremy responded, "I agree, but... don't call me captain. Only Leng Jun is worthy of such a title. I will try my best to bring as many people back alive. I can only promise this much. I am not as strong as Captain Leng after all."

Sigh~

"Child, don't pressure yourself too much. Maybe Xiao Jun will come back one day."

An elder or two attempted consoling Jeremy. He and Leng Jun were known to be close brothers. If anyone felt bad about leaving Leng Jun behind that day, it would be him. It would probably be Jeremy who carried the most sense of guilt in his heart.

Old Serge said, "There is no need to go to the ice forest. Didn't they say that the Octopus King is dead? We can try going to the shallow waters of the sea to get some seafood. There is no need to venture deeper into the sea."

"But what if the Octopus King isn't dead? Didn't they say that the Octopus King is the cruelest of all Elemental Kings?!"

"At the shallow waters, as long as one is alert, they could immediately escape to the land. Regardless of whether the Octopus King is dead or not, at least it's safer in the seas than on the land. The scouts near the Ice Forests territory had increased a lot."

"That's right. It's getting harder and harder to survive because of this. This damn apocalypse!"

As everyone in the hall is worried about how they will feed themselves for the next month, one of the guards on duty today came running in, panting. "He is here!" He was yelling many times, perplexing people with his incomprehensible speech. The only people who seemed to take offense at what their allies had stated were Old Serge and Jeremy.

Regarding Jeremy, he headed to the surveillance room and bolted out of the hallway.

As soon as Jeremy arrived in the surveillance room, he immediately ran towards the monitor and shouted, "Where is he?"

"Jeremy, Sir! He used the farthest route to reach this place. The password of that door hasn't changed at all but for some reason Captain Leng didn't want to go inside."

"North Door Z820. Unlock it for me! I'm going out!"

Jeremy left the surveillance room, heading to North Door Z820. As soon as he saw a younger version of Captain Leng, he knew that it was definitely him. He had heard everything from the old man, especially the details about Leng Jun himself.

Outside North Door Z820

Leng Jun made the decision to depart first and make some arrangements on his end because he was undecided about seeing the base personnel. Just picturing how those same folks who used to smile at him would now stare at him icily has him in a frenzy. He decided not to meet them this time, as though he could not take it anymore.

"Chuchu, I think. I am still not ready. Let's leave first," Leng Jun said.

Chuchu, who already felt the presence of other summoned elementals coming over, told Leng Jun, {I think it's a bit too late to leave now.}

"What do you mean?" asked Leng Jun.

But before he could respond, a nearby metal door abruptly opened, and before he knew what was going on, someone leaped onto him and gave him a strong hug. It was Jeremy, who ran outside in spite of the below-freezing weather despite having forgotten to wear heavy clothing.

Jeremy said, "Jun-ge! You are finally back! Don't run around this time! We don't care if you are no longer human. Our elemental told us about your situation. We understood everything about it."

"Okay. Calm down. Let go of me," said Leng Jun.

A little while later, Old Serge and the others also stopped by, just after Jeremy arrived. They are obviously overjoyed by Leng Jun's surprise reappearance and content that he is back. Well, the residents of Deep Haven still recognize Leng Jun despite the fact that he no longer has the appearance of a middle-aged uncle, with his hair turning reddish and his eyes no longer looking like human eyes.

"Welcome home, son," Old Serge said.

After Jeremy, Old Serge gave Leng Jun a hug as well. As opposed to their previous encounter, in which he burned his palm simply by grabbing his son. He might give him the same hug as previously. Leng Jun felt the remorse that was hidden in his heart when he saw his father's burn scar on his hand after he had allowed his father to hug him.

Leng Jun said, "I'm home. Both Chuchu and I..."

"Yes, you guys are back. Let's go inside. You can tell us what happens when we are all inside," Old Serge said.

Now that he was back, Leng Jun experienced what it was like to be at home. He was content with Chuchu, but he felt obligated to take care of the base and his foster father. The human race may have diminished significantly, but as long as there is hope, there will be a future for them. Leng Jun shared his surface adventure with all of them.

What had happened in the south, with the other survivors under the Ice Elemental Penguin King's protection, how he had encountered the four Ice Elemental Kings on the surface, and how he had vanquished the Octopus King.

They waited a while to listen to Leng Jun's account of his adventures outside the base because there was a lot to discuss. It might be concluded from his stories that they at last understood the superficial reality of the situation. They had no idea that a ruler of the ice element would support humanity. Moreover, learning the genesis of the apocalypse was unexpected news.

The opening of the base treated Leng Jun the same as before and even teased him with his changes. Like how he suddenly looks a few years younger or his unique hair color and eyes. Everyone wasn't afraid of him and was even welcoming. As for the ones he hunted, the men in the base had long carried them over. That day, a huge feast was prepared to welcome Leng Jun and Chuchu back to Deep Haven.

Without those in the underground knowing, their planet itself was in chaos. The trespassing entrance of the Beast Race into the world had caused almost everyone on the surface to be shocked. The elementals were the first to notice the invasion from the other race. Fleets from outer space descended from the sky to the land. The moment these spaceships land, Beastmen warriors pour out of them.

Each eye of these beasts was glowing with excitement and madness. They look around, trying to find the source of strong energy surges within the area, and raid it as before.

A lot of worlds on their way to this planet had suffered from this race. The only thing that gives the other race relief is that they only attack warriors. They don't care about weaklings, and they would even choose to ignore them. The warriors who lost to them would die miserably.

The first ones to notice the invasion of the Beastmen are the Elemental Kings. As for the Elemental Emperor at the center of the Federation Star, it kept sleeping after eating something that made it evolve to its current state.

At the Ice Forest, the sleeping Ice Elemental Wolf King, who was taking an afternoon nap just now, abruptly stood at its feet while looking at the sky. He suddenly gave out a loud howl that echoed throughout the whole North Region. It's a call to summon all of his underlings and make them prepare for a fight.

HOWLS~

Under this call, all ice elements within the North Region had run back to the forest to return to their territory. Even those who were sent out had heard this roar from their king and also hurriedly returned to their place. Their investigation is not yet finished, but since they were all summoned, there is no other choice.

The Wolf King said, "Prepare for war! The planet is being invaded. Our opponents are the Beast Race. Don't hesitate and rip them apart!"

Aroooooo~

In the far south, the newly relocated glaciers are still under renovation after the little penguin suddenly stopped eating and ran out of his little castle. The Zookeeper Uncle, the humans, and the other elementals under this little penguin king were all surprised by his actions.

After looking at the sky, the Ice Elemental Penguin King was panicking as it ran around in a circle. Obviously, it is thinking of a way to save its people.

The Zookeeper Uncle stopped the penguin king, who was about to get dizzy, from running in circles.
"Little King, what's wrong this time?"

{Run. No, we need to hide. Hide underwater. Invaders. Some races had invaded this planet. They all have scary auras.

We must run away.} The Little Penguin King tried to explain as much as he could, but the vocabulary of this little one is quite limited.

But the moment everyone heard about the invasion, all of their faces turned white and pale. If it's before all their sentinels and guides are still alive, then they might have a way to fight back. Unfortunately, not only had they lost most of their soldiers, but after suffering from the Frozen Apocalypse for years, the human race had indeed gotten weaker.

There is no way they could fight against an interstellar race that came to invade them.

The Zookeeper Uncle asked, "Little King, when will they arrive on this land exactly?"

{A week at most or maybe less. Father, we need to hide somewhere. They all smell like beasts, yet their auras are weird.}

"The Beast Race? Not only didn't they help during our predicaments, they are even invading our planet!"

"There is nothing on this planet for them to salvage anymore! Those damn beasts!"

"Enough! Don't waste any more time. Complete the repair as soon as possible! Gather as many resources as possible within three days. We will live underwater until the situation calms down," the Zookeeper Uncle said to his comrades. "Little King, order your elementals to help as well."

{Okay, father. But... Aren't we going to inform Brother Hybrid? Didn't he say that there are more humans out there?} asked the Ice Elemental Penguin King.

The Zookeeper Uncle said, "I will send a message to all possible living bases in the world. That's all we can do right now. Little King, we must save ourselves first."

{Okay, father. I understand.}

In the west region, in the ice mountains...

The slumbering soul of the Ice Elemental Ninetailed Fox King had opened its eyes from its rest. It sways its nine tails, covering the whole west region with thicker fog, almost hiding everything within it. A lot of illusionary formation was used to hide the whole Ice mountain.

The Ice Elemental Ninetailed Fox mumbles, "It has finally come, the beginning of chaos and endless tragedy. Whether that child will save the world or not will depend on his heart. I just hope he doesn't lose hope after losing everything after gaining it."

Chapter 1403 Second Red Star - Cid Warlock's Decision

The news of the Beast Race's invasion of the Federation Star had reached the Hive. The Zerg King Cid Warlock and the other halflings felt their hearts disturbed when this news reached them. The human race had abandoned them and the federation had betrayed them. Even the fact that the Federation Star used to be their home cannot be forgotten.

That is the planet where they were all born and their attachment to it might be less than that of the Hive Star. However, they couldn't help but still feel pity for the former star they used to live in.

"The Beast Race had finally attacked the Human Race," reported Lucas to everyone in the throne hall.

Kian said, "I wanted to say that I don't care even if the human race perishes, but... I don't know why I am feeling melancholy about this."

"It is normal. That is the planet we are born into, but also the planet that abandoned us," Roan said.

Solan looked at their Zerg King, Cid Warlock, who hasn't spoken a word since learning about the situation on the Federation Star.

They could see Colonel Cyril Bailey and Marquess Conrad Silver peering at Cid Warlock not too far away. They have never publicly expressed their opinions on matters that are exclusive to the royal family, despite the fact that the two of them are stronger than him.

The Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress assigned them the responsibility of advising Cid Warlock, although Cid Warlock made the majority of the decision.

Since Cid Warlock is the crowned Zerg King of the Zerg Race, they delegated all decision-making authority to him in this scenario involving the entire race and another race. The Zerg Emperor and the Zerg Empress are the only people who may disagree with his choice, but they have avoided politics ever since he assumed the throne as King.

Zerg King Cid Warlock asked his Marquess Silver and Colonel Bailey. "Teachers, if I truly wanted to get involved with this issue, would you stop me?"

"Your Majesty, we are only here to guide and help you protect the Hive. Aside from that, we will not get involved with things that pertain to the throne. All decisions are yours to make," Marquess Silver stated.

Cid Warlock asked, "Then is it possible for me to hear your opinion, at least for this issue? If I wanted to help the Federation Star, would it be possible?"

"The answer to that question is undefined. The result will depend on his majesty's decision. My advice is that before your majesty plans to help the Federation, you should gather the alliance first. Convince the officials and nobles by providing them a reason to accept. List down all merits for saving the Federation Star and say the clear advantage of personally making a move.

But never forget that his majesty is now the king of the hive and your priority shall always be for the better good of the hive," Colonel Cyril Bailey suggested.

Cid Warlock and the Zerg King, together with his closest allies, were in disbelief. They believed that these two, following Cid Warlock, would be the most senior officers and would oppose salvaging the Federation Star. However, Colonel Bailey believes that aiding humanity is a good concept. They were perplexed as to how they were able to say these things and felt like anomalies in this world.

Solan asked, "You are truly okay with the idea of us helping the human race? Don't the Zerg race hate all humans?"

"No. Hate is an emotion given to those who are closely involved with you. Our decisions all lie with the words of the Emperor and the Empress, and this is above all well-being in existence," Marquess Silver said.

Colonel Bailey added, "As long as the Hive isn't destroyed, we won't be personally getting involved with this situation. So, just do what you wish to do as a king and the leader of the Hive."

"Thank you. I will do my best to keep the hive safe no matter what," Cid Warlock finally decided after hearing the opinions of the two beings that serve the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress.

Colonel Cyril Bailey and Marquess Conrad Silver have distinct positions. They held a position of authority themselves, thus they did not need to bow down to the kings and queens. Cid Warlock and them vary primarily in that the former is the heir apparent, while the latter works directly for the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress. These pairings are beyond even Zerg King Cid Warlock's ability to control.

He is free to ask for assistance, but the couple must decide whether to accept it.

He was relieved to hear that they would not interfere with his choice regarding the Federation Star. To save the human species, Cid Warlock now just needs to persuade his bureaucrats and ministers to support his proposition. The people responsible for the tragedy involving the two races have long since passed away. After the Zerg Race defeated the humans in the previous war, they had all perished.

Additionally, it marked the start of the human race's decline. Because they believed they had nothing left to steal, the Zerg Race refrained from invading the Federation Star.

In the throne hall that afternoon. The leaders of the alliance, the nobility, and military personnel were called to order once more. The current Zerg King Cid Warlock is in charge of this conference. Saving the Federation Star was the Zerg King's suggestion. It is to be expected that there is far more opposition than there should be.

Fortunately, Cid Warlock had prepared this meeting well, providing them with a list of benefits and reasons to save humanity.

Although the Zerg race was essentially opposed to this, several alliance leaders have made an exception for it. Regarding the cause, it appears that a portion of their population were married to humans, and those individuals desired, if nothing else, to assist their partners in saving their home planet.

Additionally, the Beast Race, their alliance's principal adversary at the moment, is one of their opponents. Agreed were many who want an early end to the war.

Fighting aboard the Federation Star is, at least, preferable to letting the conflict impact their home worlds. After all, nobody wanted the protracted conflict to have an impact on the natural resources of their own planet. Many of the attendees agreed to this suggestion because assisting the human species would entail fighting on the Federation Star.

The debate on this issue lasted for three days. Only after three days did the nobles and military in the Hive somehow agree to help the humans. It might be against their hearts, but thinking about the children and how the human race will owe them made the Zergs feel that it's acceptable. Three days later, the Zerg King, Cid Warlock, announced this issue to the Hive.

Remarkably, fewer unanticipated riots occur than Cid Warlock and his associates had anticipated. After they looked into it, several halfings in the major city also believed that by saving the human race, they would owe the Zerg race something, which would reduce the likelihood of a war between the two races. If they could prevent it, who in their right mind would start a war?

On the seventh day, when all preparations were done, with Cid Warlock leading the fleet, they headed to the Federation Star to join the war. As for Marquess Silver, he stayed in the hive to guard their planet. But Colonel Bailey joined Cid Warlock because they couldn't allow the protagonist of their planet to die.

If something happened to Cid Warlock, it would be hard for them to leave the hive when the time came.

The Ice Elemental Penguin was somewhat off in his judgment. On the sixth day, the Beast Race had launched the first invasion on the Federation Star. The Beast Race arrived to the planet where humans dwelled after only a few days of preparation for those who reside on the Federation Star.

Since most beastmen had thick fur covering them, the bitter cold and never-ending winter had no effect on their constitution.

What affected them the most was the change in terrain. The last delegation the beast race sent to the federation was when the three old marshals were still alive, and that was countless years ago. It also happened before the Frozen Apocalypse struck the planet.

The map they have with them is hardly useful due to the amount of snow and how frozen every waterscape is. Furthermore, many villages and cities had long since vanished as the apocalypse started. Because of the frequent blizzards and hailstorms that the surface has experienced, maps are therefore the most worthless tool available. The Federation Star was no longer under human control.

Now all remaining humans had taken to hiding underground, and elementals created during the Frozen Apocalypse ruled over it.

A few spaceships had landed somewhere along the eastern coast, and beastmen emerged from them. Beast King Leonhart was the first to go down among these beastmen. For a considerable amount of time, the eastern sea had been frozen, at least on the surface. They eventually enter the region blanketed in a thick layer of pure white snow, with Leonhart leading his race.

When the Beast King Leonhart turned to look around, he beheld a vast expanse of white landscape. There were a few gaps in the thick blanket of white that nature had left on the ground as a result of their weight squashing the cold snow beneath their feet.

"There is barely any scent left on this planet. Only the scent of the snow lingers strongly in this place. Our sense of smell won't be useful on this planet. Use your other senses to find presence on this land," Leonhart, the King of the Beast, commanded.

Insight is another sense of presence that the Beast Race possessed. It can detect changes in body temperature, heartbeats, and even the faint sound of breathing. After all, breathing is a must for survival. For the time being, the dense terrain keeps these beastmen from seeing humans below ground. It is not the same for the elementals that dwell on the surface.

It is to be expected that the first creatures these beastmen find with their insight are the underwater water elementals. There are hundreds of times more water elementals in bodies of water than there are on land. The beastmen were all shocked as they felt the presence beneath their feet. They are being stared at by at least a thousand pairs of eyes in the water.

But for some reason, they aren't interested in those under the seas, as they didn't find someone worthy enough to fight under the sea. The Ice Elemental Octopus King is dead; if he weren't gone, these beastmen would have stayed in this region to fight until they killed the Octopus King.

The beastmen, whose insight was active, said:

"Wow! There's a lot of them, but most are weaklings."

"Should we kill them all? I don't feel any interest in me, though."

"No need. Leave them be. I found a strong one at the ice forest not too far from here. You can enjoy as much as you can there," King Leonhart said.

"Hahaha~ what are we waiting for? Let's go!"

At last, the Beastmen move from the east toward the north. They strolled slowly but unencumbered on the frozen terrain. A group of enormous animals, led by a black lion, make their way through the intense snowfall to the initial site of their battleground. They are unstoppable in their search for adversaries who will make their blood boil.

It was as though they had been tasked with wreaking havoc everywhere since the day the Beast Race consumed something they shouldn't have.

Chapter 1404 Second Red Star - Situation on the Beast Star I

The end is near for those who reside on the human star due to the beast race's descent on the Federation Star. The north, which is governed by the Ice Elemental Wolf King of the Ice Forest, is the Beast Race's first objective. Nobody knows when the people who are buried beneath the dirt will become aware of the impending catastrophe above them.

On the other hand, on the Beast Star, the planet is under the rule of the beast race. With the help of the God of Destruction, System Yue had established a connection with the star's database. The present Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress of this age only descended to the land of the animals once their descent was approved.

The majority of Beast Race fighters fled their home planet in search of conflict, bloodshed, and war. Slaves, halfings between humans and beasts, some cubs of beastmen, and elderly people who were hardly able to move were among those left behind.

There was no fuss when the Zerg Emperor and Zerg Empress descended since everyone who was there to see them were hiding in their homes. Nobody was visible wandering about outside the openly imprisoned slaves. Although the couple senses their presence inside the residences, nobody comes out for whatever reason.

The people hiding know the two men as the Zerg Royalty right away since they have insect wings on their backs and they appear inhumane. Ultimately, only members of the Zerg Race's royal tribe are capable of having such an enormous wingspan and otherworldly beauty. The stunning couple was being observed by the creatures inside the dwellings.

"Why is the Zerg's royalty here? Look at how big their wings are. These aren't ordinary insects."

"What should we do? There aren't any warriors on our planet right now!"

"How can they all leave?! They leave only children and the elderly."

"There is no way we can defend this star on our own!"

"If only they didn't eat something weird! That gray-eyed wild boar, they shouldn't have eaten them!"

"I warned them not to eat it! They didn't listen, and this happened!"

The people who were hiding inside were whispering to one another, not realizing that the Zerg Empress was listening to everything they said outside the home. A small cub, who had been starving the entire time, suddenly emerged to seek food. A young black lion cub is rubbing his tummy, indicating that he is hungry and protesting.

It appears that the adults were unaware that the young cub had left the house.

The young lion cub was scratching his stomach as he prepared to search the forest for food because he was too lightheaded from hunger. Who would have imagined that while leaving, he would run into Empress Titania?

When Empress Titania felt a light something brush against him, she peered down and noticed a starving cub. Titania saw that the cub was going to pass out and grabbed him before he could fall.

"A cub?"

The Zerg Empress glanced at the child cradled in his arms. He scowled more the longer he gazed. Not only is the little cub underweight, but there are also indications of mistreatment, which gives the Empress a chilly appearance. The only time he feels less icy is when someone puts a warm palm on his face.

Emperor Augustus said, "Let's feed the little ones first. I can feel a lot of younger souls in the area. They are all in a similar state."

"Hm, yeah, prepare the ingredients from the small world. Ask Roi and Reine to help you with it," said the Zerg Empress.

[Yes, Lord Hei.]

[Ahno. Can Yue eat too?] asked System Yue.

With his lips a bit curled with mischievousness, Empress Titania responded, "Of course. Let's eat together like before."

After that, the couple got ready to make a feast. with every ingredient sourced from their tiny, well-manicured space, which is teeming with naturally occurring resources. They could extract materials at any time from the infinite universes from which they originated. Zhi Yue assumed a human shape to tend to the little lion cub while it was cooking.

The pair continued to cook indifferently to the many onlookers, showing little concern for other people.

The beastmen had all emerged from hiding to observe them from a distance as the aroma of the cooking filled the air. Being members of the Zerg royal family, the two were considered enemies of their own race. Still, these beastmen have nothing but food on their minds right now.

They had never caught anything from their planet, especially wild beasts like boars and rabbits, which they regularly ate, out of fear that they would become like the warriors of their tribe. It is impossible to eat even their own produce, which was exposed to that unidentified energy. Everyone who had eaten had turned into war maniacs, wreaking havoc throughout the place and wherever they were.

They simply want to wreak havoc everywhere and do not give a damn about the rationale.

Using enormous pots and pans, Titania Ambrosia and Augustus Kaiser prepared enough food to feed a whole tribe. New beastmen emerged as the aroma of the cooking food spread and new dishes were prepared. There were beastmen cubs among them whose circumstances resembled those of the young lion cub, but they were not mistreated in the same way.

Empress Titania's cold eyes sweep through the crowd, making them tremble, yet when his eyes land on the children, his eyes soften with tenderness.

"Come. It's time to eat. Don't be afraid. We won't hurt you," said the Zerg Empress to the cubs.

The adults tried to pull them back, but some had run out before they were caught. These little cubs ran towards Empress Titania and held on to his legs, asking for food.

"Beautiful brother, can we eat yet?"

"Gege, I'm hungry."

"Is it not ready yet?"

The Emperor, who was looking after the pot of corn soup, glanced at Zhi Yue, who was holding a bowl of soup and was about to eat, but suddenly stopped when he saw his Milord staring at him with an expressionless face.

Zhi Yue realized right away that he wanted him to untangle the brats from his wife. As a result, he is only able to set down his soup dish next to the young lion cub and stands next to the enormous pot of corn soup that the Zerg Emperor left behind in order to see how the beggar chickens that they buried beneath the bonfires that they built is doing.

"Lord Hei, I will help serve the soup to them," said Zhi Yue.

Empress Titania said, "Serve some bread as well while the main course is not yet cooked."

"Yes," Zhi Yue said as he stared at the little cubs and said, "Little ones, fall in line, and this brother will give you soup. Be careful when you drink. It's hot."

"Yes, Little Gege~" the little cubs collectively said.

An older beastman came toward the pair, seeming a little scared. He swallowed their spit and still could not resist staring at the warm-looking bowl of corn soup. The silent man staring through the bonfire with his back to them actually gave them more fear than anything else, yet he gave off a terrifying air.

"Esteemed Highness, I am the eldest among the beastmen in this tribe. The name is Naoyu. Please feel free to call me Lao Nao. May we know why the Zerg Royalty has come over to our humble place?" said the old beastman.

Empress Titania smiled playfully as he turned to see, but every beastman saw the cold depths in his silver eyes. The beast scurried, scared, as though the color of these eyes sent a dreadful feeling deep within them. They could not help but shudder in his presence. A few beastmen trembled with fear as they gazed at the Zerg Empress.

"Gray! His eyes are gray!"

"He is affected by that weird energy as well!"

"Ah! Hide! He is here to kill us all!"

The Zerg Empress Titania cast a bewildered glance at the fleeing beastmen. The old beastman, identifying himself as Lao Naoyu, is nearby him, eyeing the Zerg Empress intently. Additionally, he realized that the gorgeous Zerg in front of him had eyes that resembled those of those insane beastmen.

But upon closer inspection, the eyes of this Zerg royalty show that they are not stained gray as previously thought, but rather a clear silver tint that glows like a bright moon.

Lao Nao shouted, "Calm down! This esteemed being's eyes aren't gray, but silver. I heard that in the Zerg Race, there is an insect tribe born with silver eyes. This is a unique feature of that tribe and allowed them to wield ice elements as their own. The Royal Tribe of the Apollo Butterfly bloodline."

Empress Titania looked a bit impressed that such a beast person knew some information about the Zerg Race's royal tribes.

"Old man, you are quite well informed," said the Zerg Empress.

The beastmen, Lao Nao, asked politely, "Is this gentleman here from the Royal Tribe, the Apollo Butterfly Tribe? If so, why are your wings different from what this old man learned?"

"It's because I had undergone evolution and awakened my monarch bloodline. My Apollo Butterfly bloodline mutated and merged with the monarch bloodline, giving me a pair of white-colored monarch wings," Empress Titania answered. "I am now the Zerg Empress of the Zerg Race."

He also pulled over his husband with a smile and happily introduced himself.

"This is my husband, the Zerg Emperor, Augustus Kaiser."

With a pale face, Lao Nao gazed at the stunning couple and instantly went to his knees. Even the beastmen who had just been attempting to flee had bowed and kneeled. After all, the people who were referred to as the emperors and empresses of their race were revered as gods, regardless of their race.

This implies that the two men in front of them are the insect race's gods, and the only thing the mortals of the Beast Planet could do was bow down in terror and awe.

"We greet the Zerg Emperor and the Zerg Empress!" The beastmen in the area collectively greet each other.

Emperor Augustus remained expressionless and just looked at his wife and helped him with his stray hair, gently pushing it to the side. "The beggar chicken is cooked. Tell them to dig it themselves. I serve our meals. Wait for a while."

"Um, I'll wait for you and eat together," said Empress Titania, who brought out a small table for them. He also left the rest of the work to his husband.

The Zerg Emperor shifted his head away from his wife and met the kneeling beast race in front of him with a blank expression. He considers these mortals to be no more than ants, thus he truly does not feel like spending his time assisting them, but he is forced to do so because of his wife.

Emperor Augustus spoke, "Stand up. There are chickens under the bonfire. Dig them yourselves. There is also rice and other dishes; you share them among you. Prioritize the children. After all, without them, my Empress wouldn't care about you at all."

With permission, the beastmen rose to their feet and looked over to the side where the Zerg Empress sat. They observed him giving the cubs some candy to savor while looking at them with a tender gaze. If the Zerg Empress had ignored the hungry cub that ran into him, no one would have held him responsible.

He does not need to take care of mortals who are not members of his race because of how high he has been elevated.

Nonetheless, the Zerg Empress decided to feed them since he liked kids. all in the interest of their cubs, who were most impacted by the circumstances of their world.

The Zerg Emperor reminded them, "Serve yourselves. We can talk later."

Following his remarks, he leaves with enough food to feed three people and personally tends to his wife, who gives him a warm grin and adoring gaze. Lao Naoya was astounded by what he was witnessing. A person who is willing to serve others, such as the Zerg Emperor, will fall so passionately in love with someone that he will sacrifice all for them.

He mumbles at the scene, "The world is bigger than it seems, but the heavens are wider. There are a lot of things in existence that one wouldn't expect."

Chapter 1405 Second Red Star - Situation on the Beast Star II

Beast Planet

The Zerg Empress and Zerg Emperor fed the tribe, filling not just their bellies but also their hearts with the feast. Ever since the day their soldiers were forced to consume something they should not have, these beastmen have not eaten right.

The beast race that was left behind in their own world had undergone significant alteration because at that time, their nourishment came from both their farm and the animals they hunted in the wild.

The beast race had momentarily reverted to normal after one proper meal. Zhi Yue was now playing outside with the beast cubs, laughing and running all over the place. Titania, the Empress, had always enjoyed observing kids. He also had his own children, but they were all in Vearth, the Upper Realm, and he could only see them for brief periods of time when he was awake.

His waking hours have increased since a portion of his soul came back to him, but he still can not stay awake as long as he would want. Lao Naoya cordially welcomed the couple to his modest residence. While traveling, the Zerg couple approach a cage containing half-human, half-beast halfings that were trembling with hunger.

Empress Titania stood at the cage as if he had seen something, but at the same time, it looked like he pitied these halflings.

"These people... are they halflings?" asked the Zerg Empress to the elder of the beast tribe.

Lao Naoya responded, "Yes. They are deserters from the Federation Star. In exchange for them staying on the Beast Planet, they choose to become slaves. Is Your Highness interested in them? We can no longer feed them in fear they would also go crazy. So, they were left here to die."

The old beastman's words are cold, but this is the reality of the halflings on the Beast Planet. At least they weren't caught and executed like when they were living on the Federation Star.

Empress Titania looked at her husband and said, "My love, do you think Little Cid would like these guys?"

"Hm, he might accept them, but they can't live in the Hive like the other halflings. They can only stay on Eden Planet under Cid's ownership," said Emperor Augustus.

The Zerg Empress asked, "So, are we going to bring them back with us?"

"If you wish to, then we can bring them back," answered the Zerg Emperor, obviously indulging his beloved in everything he wanted, leaving Lao Naoya, this old beastman, once again dumbfounded.

Empress Titania said, "Then let's bring them back." He turned his head and looked at the old beastmen and said, "Old man, I am willing to pay a sack of rice per person, three carts of meat, three carts of vegetables, a cart of common herbs, and a cart of fruits for all of your slaves. How is this price?"

All of the beastmen surrounding them, even the old beastman and the slaves, were shaking with anticipation. They were unable to consume any food from their world. However, the items they brought in from outside must be as safe to eat as the food they had previously eaten. They simply could not believe that the race they detested would be the one to come to their aid when they needed it most.

The beastmen expressed gratitude to the couple in front of them by bowing down. They thanked the gods in front of them for their goodness, unable to contain their tears.

The Zerg Empress said, "Stand up. This is an exchange, and I am not giving these resources for free. I will be taking these slaves for payment. There is a child at home. He is also a halfling. He lost almost all of his comrades during the purge, and only a few of them survive.

We plan to give these slaves to them as a gift."

As instructed, the beastmen got to their feet. Suddenly, one of the enslaved slaves in the cage was shocked by what the Zerg Empress had stated, particularly regarding the Halfling, who became a Zerg because half of his ancestry was Zerg. The man who talked is slender and robust, clearly with military training. He is part human, half wolf.

"Excuse me, Your Highness! Is that halfling you mentioned before called Cid Warlock?" The slave half-beastmen wolf asked.

A beastman nearby thrashed him with a stick because he had defied the rules of what slaves are allowed to do. These beastmen feared that all the other slaves their benefactor had given them would be null and invalid since this one had displeased him.

When the man was struck with the stick, the Zerg Empress showed no signs of distress. He has no concern for his own well-being because, to him, he is both a human and a beast, not an insect. Other than that, he is merely a gift that a child of his race can receive. In his eyes, he is just an object.

"Oh~ don't beat him. If you kill him, my gift for the child will get less," said Empress Titania.

Even the Zerg Emperor made a move and waved his hand, a wisp of black flame destroying the stick that was used to beat the slave who had just spoken. "My wife's gift. Don't destroy it."

Hearing the Zerg Emperor speak out instead of letting his wife speak terrified the beastmen. Lao Nao even personally pulled away the beastman who was beating a slave just now.

"Stay back. Didn't you hear what the esteemed gods had said?! Don't beat the slave anymore," Lao Naoya said.

The beastman backed backward, scared. He watched as the black flames emitted by the Zerg Emperor struck the thick stick he was holding, turning it to dust. Had he held onto the stick, he too would have burned to ashes in an instant.

The Zerg Empress peeked inside and saw the halfling that spoke out just now, trembling in pain while on the ground. He is covered in black bruises and complained to his husband, "My love, it's not moving anymore. This one seems to know Little Cid. If it dies, Little Cid will be unhappy."

"Don't be sad, baby. It won't die," said Emperor Augustus.

He waved his palm again, and this time, the warm golden light that fell onto the shivering halfling on the ground replaced the black flame. The halfling's bruises and wounds had healed under everyone's eyes, and he sat up looking healthier than before, his countenance bewildered.

Such an event surprised everyone, with the exception of Zhi Yue and the Zerg Empress. They were all astonished since they could not help but view the scene as though they were seeing a miracle. It never occurred to them that the Zerg Emperor was able to heal.

After healing the slave, the Zerg Emperor looked at his wife, saying, "There, it is alive. Baby, where is my reward?"

The Zerg Empress laughed heartily at this and then leaned down to kiss his husband on the lips. The crowd was astounded by this scene and gasped in shock. They even have to see the Zerg Emperor grinning when he receives his desired recompense.

Tun Shizhe watched this sight with a neutral expression, hiding in the crowd amidst all the presences. He has never experienced jealousy and rage to the same extent as he does now. He himself feels that the God of Destruction is not the Hunluan he knows and loves, even though he just saw him as Hunluan's incarnation.

Nevertheless, Tun Shizhe was irritated to witness his other self contentedly living his life without regard for his past or origin and did not even realize his jealous face at the time. The Zerg Emperor cocked his head to appear as though he was feeling him, but naturally, he was unable to determine his precise location. He then turned his head back to look at his lover.

Lao Naoya invited the two gods to his place and talked about the slave and the payment. After the final list of payments was finalized, the Zerg Empress ordered Zhi Yue to return to the small world and gather all that was on the list.

Thankfully, there are Roi and Reine to help him gather everything, and it only took a few hours for all that is on the list to be gathered and taken out by their masters.

While waiting for the resources to be gathered, the Zerg couple asked Lao Naoya about the situation on the Beast Planet. The old beastman told them everything, especially about the unique feature of that wild boar that caused all of their warriors to become mad about war.

Lao Naoya said, "No one knows which is the source of that weird energy that caused one to go mad. After all, it wasn't just our race who had gone bad, but also almost all of the animals and bugs in the forest ended the same way. There is one feature that made them different from the others: gray eyes."

"Anyone whose eyes had turned gray will end up like the rest of the warriors. They couldn't control themselves from fighting and destroying things. They even killed each other for the same reason."

"Even our Beast King was affected. He was the first one to start the massacre in our tribe and also the one who had gathered the other affected warriors looking for a battlefield beyond this world."

"You said that the wild boar you caught was from the forest? Which forest is it?" asked Emperor Augustus.

Old Naoya said, "Your Majesty, are you planning on going to the forest? Please think twice! The animals in there had all gone mad. They would attack anyone at sight until they were killed."

"Don't worry about it. I am here, aren't I? There is hardly anyone that can defeat me," said the Zerg Empress.

It was only then that the old beastman remembered that the female Zergs were the ones with strong fighting skills within the Zerg race. The beautiful bug in front of him is the most powerful warrior since he is the Zerg Empress of the Insect Race. Lao Naoya instantly became calmer, realizing that the person in front of them had the power to completely destroy the group if he so desired.

They would have long since forgotten the terror that this Zerg Empress is capable of if it were not for remarks just now.

Lao Naoya said, "Then, please ask the slaves to show you the way. We truly cannot come over to that forest as our scent greatly attracts wild animals."

"That is alright with me. We are planning on going alone anyway," said the Zerg Empress as he saw Zhi Yue coming over, and there was a commotion heard coming from the outside.

The three of them came out and were welcomed by the excited beastmen surrounding the carts of vegetables, fruits, and herbs, as well as the few hundred sacks of rice that Zhi Yue had taken out of the small world.

Zhi Yue approached his masters and said, "My lords, everything had been prepared. Everything on the list is right here."

"Good work, Yue," the Zerg Emperor said.

Empress Titania said, "Old man, this is the payment for the slaves. You can handle the rest."

As for the Zerg Emperor, he approached the cage where the halfling slaves are locked in and spoke, "We need one or two of you to come with us and show the way towards the forest. It will be dangerous, but you will be given freedom as long as you show us the way. Who among you is up for this task?"

"I will do it!" said the slave who was beaten up before.

As for the rest, the slaves looked at one another. Most of them have fear imprinted on their faces, as they witnessed what happened when the beastmen warriors had all gone mad after eating that meal that night. They also know that the source of the madness was that forest, where these two Zergs want to go. Most of them had lowered their heads, except for two.

One of them is the halfling wolf from before and the other is a silent but handsome young man with jaguar ears on his head. He didn't speak a word and just raised his hand.

The Zerg Empress looked at the young man, who seemed to be in his teens. "Are you sure you want to come with us? The danger in the forest is something the adults even fear."

The young man didn't say a word but just stared at the Zerg Empress fearlessly. On the other hand, a lot of beastmen recognized the young halfling and whispered his identity to Lao Naoya to be passed on to the Zerg Empress.

Lao Naoya said, "Your Highness, you must bring this young slave. He used to live in the forest before those wild animals had gone mad. He can definitely show you a safer route. It's just that he is mute and can only communicate by writing on your hand."

The Zerg Empress and the Zerg Emperor stare at the young halfling even though he is trembling under their gaze; his eyes were firm as he stared at them. This kind of courage at such a young age is admirable. Empress Titania glanced at his husband, who, in return, gave him a nod. This means he agreed to bring this young child with them.

The Zerg Empress said, "Okay. We will bring these two with us."

Chapter 1406 Second Red Star - Situation on the Beast Star III

Star Rainforest

It was claimed that this was the Beast Planet's largest forest. According to legend, the majority of the beast race's planet is made up of terrain that is covered in big, wide greenies that resemble green stars. With its abundance of greenery and unknown hazards, the Star Rainforest was home to a variety of wild species.

There have been tales circulating that the star rainforest is home to a diverse range of species, some of which have mutated to become larger than typical animals.

In this rainforest, even the trees are enormous. The tallest is equivalent to a three-story structure. The star rainforest's presence and quiet immediately announced an unsettling atmosphere as soon as they arrived at the entrance. The God of Void was irritated by Zhi Yue's quick reflexes and his grasp of a corner of his Lord Hei's clothing, and he was powerless to stop it.

His wife is clinging to two obnoxious brats, and there is another tail that follows him everywhere.

His anger grows the more he sees these brats. If it were not for his sweetheart holding his hand, he would have flung them far from his Jing'er. Zhi Yue is tugged by the small, silent jaguar, who also writes something on his hand.

{Why is the Zerg Emperor glaring at us?}

Zhi Yue glanced around as soon as he sensed what the small halfling jaguar was saying, and he saw Milord's piercing gaze. He gave a start and instantly decided to ignore it.

He said to the young cub, "Pretend not to see. He is just annoyed that we are sticking to his wife."

Upon hearing those comments, the small jaguar halfling paused to reflect before releasing the Zerg Empress's sleeves that he was holding. But before he could lower his hand, his smaller hand was seized by a soft, somewhat cool hand. He met the Zerg Empress's kind gaze when he looked up.

"Don't let go, little one. It's dangerous for you to get separated from me," said Empress Titania.

He treats the cubs with kindness, as one might anticipate, especially the ones who have not grown to adulthood. The Zerg Empress held the small jaguar's hands. He stared at it for a moment, then the corner of his mouth turned up a little. They were standing in front of the Star Rainforest gate, having just arrived. They could feel the many eyes hiding within the jungle, staring at them.

The other halfling wolf stepped forward and said, "This is the first entrance of the Star Rainforest. We can't go straight ahead as there is a nest of wild brown bears near this entrance."

"Is there no other route?" asked Emperor Augustus.

Though mere brown bears wouldn't be hard to kill, with the effects of chaos energy on them, those ordinary brown bears had most likely mutated to be closer to a monster's strength. With two burdens on them, unless they use divinity, it would be a bit dangerous.

The Wolf Halfling said, "The other routes would also require us to pass the habitat of the king python and wild boars."

"We should choose the wild boars' route then! Pigs are cuter compared to snakes and bears!" said Zhi Yue.

The mute jaguar-halfling youth tugged on Empress Titania and wrote something on his hands. The Zerg Empress waited for the little one to finish writing.

"You want to use the Python route? You want me to freeze their nest for a while and force them to sleep. As long as we aren't too noisy, we can walk through that route?" said the Zerg Empress. He was asking the little one beside him, who kept nodding his head as an answer.

Zhi Yue asked with confusion, "Do snakes even hibernate?"

"Snakes don't hibernate, only warm-blooded animals. They hibernate over cold seasons. They become less active, eat less, and sleep more. But they can still wake up to eat if they are truly hungry. What this brat said is considered the safest route.

At least we don't have to fight as long as we are careful," explained the Zerg Emperor, but he asked his wife, "But if they were affected by Chaos energy, would they still be inactive as an ordinary snake, Jing'er?"

"They do. Among all the elements that can affect Chaos aside from the same element, there is only ice, fire, light, and darkness, as these elements possess the strongest Yin and Yang properties and are the closest to the origin.

Ice and fire elements had weaker effects than light and darkness elements on Chaos Energy, but with the absolute element of fire and ice, it would be more effective than other elements," said the Zerg Empress. Though these words left the two brats bewildered, the Zerg Emperor immediately understood.

Emperor Augustus suddenly frowned as if he realized something he didn't expect and said, "Then when I was able to enter that area of your soul domain, it wasn't just you who pushed me down."

"Of course, I pushed you in, but the one who called you to that place is that fragment. Even after the death of Hunluan, the chaos had always sought its own destruction. Without its other half, do you think it will still want to exist?" said the God of Destruction.

He had no idea that, at that very moment, his words had caused two men's hearts to tremble. The two who were holding his garments at this very time had to release their grip as the Zerg Emperor swiftly grabbed his wife into an embrace. The unexpected closeness startled the Zerg Empress, but then he heard his beloved whisper.

"I will be with you until the end, whether in nothingness or for eternity."

A genuine smile appeared at the corner of the God of Destruction's lips, and he hugged his man back. "I know. I believe you, A'Xia."

The three light bulbs looked away in embarrassment as the two love couples were hugging, but one of them glared fiercely and angrily at the couple from a distance. It seemed that only one person had seen it with his own eyes before it abruptly vanished. Zhi Yue began to protest that they were wasting their time, which led to the couple's separation.

As a response, the Zerg Emperor struck Zhi Yue in the head with his fist.

Owie~

On one side the wolf halfling laughed at him, and on the other the small jaguar cub beside him was blowing on his swollen head like a good boy. After some time, the Zerg Empress decided to follow the halfling jaguar's advice. He watched the three nests of wild beasts and froze the entire forest entrance.

The brown bear would normally hibernate in the winter, but since this was not a true winter season—just a dip in temperature—it was not weak from the sudden cold. It is feeling a little sleepy, but it can still stay awake.

The sudden drop in temperature does not impact the wild boars. They snuggle close to stay warm because of the size of their group. The only race that progressively nods off as the temperature decreases is the snake race, who are extremely weak in the cold and experience great weakness throughout their body.

They were all fast asleep within a few hours. The group noticed enormous snakes wrapped around the trees above their heads, with a few tube limbs dangling feebly from the tree branches, as they walked by the pythons' habitat. This scene would probably cause those who are afraid of snakes to pass out. The gang eventually made their way through the entryway and into the Star Rainforest securely.

The Zerg Empress led the way as they began to move around. He was dragging his spouse along while holding onto Zhi Yue, the small halfling jaguar, and his clothes. The adult wolf halfling, for his part, trailed closely behind the others, alert in case danger came near their group.

Even if he fears that, as an adult, he must not cling to the Zerg Emperor or else the Zerg Emperor will kill him right there.

Zhi Yue asked, "Lord Hei, have you found what you are looking for? This place is creepy. How there are so many eyes looking at us, but don't dare to come out."

"It is truly weird. Before some entered the forest, they would instantly be surrounded by those mutated animals with gray eyes. How come no one is coming for us?" said the Halfling Wolf.

The Zerg Emperor saw that his wife was giving off a faint silver aura that scared every beast in the forest. He feels a lot of untamed animals fleeing from them. The God of Destruction did not use this aura at the entry for the same reason.

He wished to prevent the untamed animals from emerging from the Star Rainforest and wreaking destruction outside the forest, as this would undoubtedly result in many fatalities. Since the region is sufficiently large for them to flee, even if he makes the animals run, they would not be able to escape the jungle now that they are within.

The Zerg Emperor ignored the two brats and asked his wife, "Baby, have you found what you are looking for?"

"Found it. It's this way," said the Zerg Empress, leading them to the cliff whose depth cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Zhi Yue asked in surprise as he looked at the deep cliff before their eyes. "A cliff? Is what Lord Hei looking at under the cliff?"

"Look down. It's there," said the Zerg Empress. They all looked down and saw a small cluster of white, blue, and purple star flowers.

As soon as the Zerg Emperor saw those small, familiar flowers, he immediately understood the source of the chaotic energy that caused disharmony on this planet.

"It's Chaos flowers. How can it grow here?" said the God of Void with a frown as he noticed that the eyes peering at them had gotten closer.

The larger ones stared at them, but the weaker ones had already fled. The distance between them had shrunk dramatically the instant they got closer to the brink. This indicates that they are attempting to defend the star flower, which in Vearth is also referred to as the Chaos Flower.

Grrrrrr~ rooaar~ Caws~

Suddenly, a few massive animals like wolves, black bears, tigers, and even large eagles emerged to encircle their tiny party on land and in the air. The children and the mortals in their group were scared by this.

Emperor Augustus said, "They immediately appeared as soon as we found the flower. They don't want us to take it away?"

"Of course. This is also their source of power. Once it was destroyed or taken away, they would return to normal," said Empress Titania while placing the little jaguar halfling under his protection.

As for the other halfling, it tried to hide behind the Zerg Empress, but did dare to come over as the Zerg Emperor gave him a deadly glare. As for Zhi Yue, he is in front, ready to fight, even though he is a bit fearful thanks to the enemies' size and numbers.

"Lord Hei, what should be done?" asked Zhi Yue.

The Zerg Empress thought for a moment and stared at the young one beside him, trembling in fear.
"Since I can't take it away, My love, burn it to nothing!"

"Are you sure, Baby?" asked the Zerg Emperor.

"I'm sure!"

"Okay..."

With a snap of his fingers, the God of Void raised his palm to reveal a ball of black flames. It is Hell Flames, the fundamental component of all fire in the universe. The most intense and powerful fire in all dimensions. It has the power to consume even gods, leaving only ashes behind.

The massive wild creatures that surrounded them gave a tiny retreat when the black flames emerged, but they did not flee.

The God of Void noticed that none of the beasts had run away and said with a cold tone of voice, "Since you don't want to leave, then stay here forever."

The adult halfling wolf leaped on the Zerg Emperor and pushed him off the cliff, seizing the small cub that was clinging to the Zerg Empress, just as he was ready to burn down the entire region, including the cluster of chaos flowers at the edge of the cliff.

Everyone was taken aback, and Zhi Yue was in complete disbelief when he witnessed the Halfling wolf transform into a man with features resembling Milord's actual face.

"Ah! What is he doing?!" Zhi Yue shouted, "Ah! Who the hell is he!?"

Glaring at the man who was falling off the cliff with him, the God of Void was enraged. "Tun Shizhe, you again! I will kill you!"

"Heh~ I won't allow you to burn such a useful thing!" Tun Shizhe floated towards the side of the cliff taking away the cluster of Star Flowers. "Thank you for showing me the way, Jing'er~"

"Who the hell are you calling Jing'er!?" shouted the God of Void who unfurled his wings to chase after the bastard who flirted with his wife at the last moment.

Chapter 1407 Second Red Star - Under the Cliff.

The God of Void pursued his alter ego, who had taken the chaos-energy-filled star blossoms. However, Tun Shizhe was unaware that the Chaos Flower should not be exposed to direct sunlight. Being a Yin-type flower, its ideal growth environment is one that is infused with Yin energy.

As it blended with the world and fed the Beast Planet, the chaos energy contained in the Star Flower that Tun Shizhe had stolen had limited chaos energy.

Chaos Energy. It was an energy meant to nourish the world and become one with it, not to be consumed. It will not lead to insanity as long as chaos energy combines with the world. Those who consumed the exposed flower were unlucky because a bird ate it, and then another creature ate it, and so on, until the seed of chaos spread to all the rainforest's wildlife.

If the wild beast that was affected by it was eaten by humans, it would result in distortion of the mind until they went mad. That's the situation the beast race had undergone as they were affected by Chaos Energy.

The Zerg Empress spread his wings to grab the falling small jaguar halfling, while the Zerg Emperor had pursued Tun Shizhe. Regarding the cause for Tun Shizhe pushing the child off the cliff, it is clear that he was irritated by the youngster's overly strong attachment to the God of Destruction.

Although other children, particularly weak mortals, look down on the children of the God of Destruction, he may like them. He intended to murder the child to get rid of his irritation.

With a huge pair of white monarch butterfly wings on his back, the Zerg Empress flies down and catches the little one. He didn't choose to fly up as Zhi Yue expected and instead flew downward to the end of the cliff.

"Lord Hei, where are you going? Please wait for me too!" said Zhi Yue as he jumped off the cliff and followed the Zerg Empress. He didn't choose to follow the Zerg Emperor, as he is obviously out for blood. In fear that he will be in the way, he chooses to follow after the Zerg Empress to the depths of the cliffs instead.

Falling from the cliff...

Empress Titania flaps her wings as he descends, slowing the rate of descent. Compared to Zhi Yue, who is alone, they descend more quickly because they are now heavier than when they were just one person, especially with the small jaguar halfling in his arm. As they descend more into the cliff, the light surrounding them becomes less.

If one observed right from the beginning to the end, the little halfling had never shown fear, even after he was flung into the cliff to fall to his death. He didn't even scream, nor did his expression change. He was calm as he descended into the cliff, even after the Zerg Empress had caught up with him. All of a sudden, the supposed-to-be mute little one spoke.

An adorable, soft voice echoes in the darkness, asking the Zerg Empress, "Since when did the Lord notice?" the little jaguar halfling asked.

With a playful smile on his lips, Empress Titania responded, "Right from the beginning. At first sight, I already know what you are. I was born with Chaos Energy and had been extremely sensitive when it was involved. Even though you tried to hide it, it can never escape my senses. Moreover, when I release an aura of chaos energy before you are unaffected, aren't you?

My spouse shares everything with me, that's why Chaos energy had no effect on him. As for Yue, he is made using my essence. He wouldn't even realize the power of chaos as its existence is the same as air for him."

"The Lord's aura is too pure. I can't help but want to have more. Does the Lord already know what is under this cliff?" asked the little halfling.

The Zerg Empress said, "I have a guess, but it seems to be right."

Zhi Yue, who came after them, heard the little supposed-to-be mute halfling talking to his Lord Hei. He was so shocked that he looked at the kid in disbelief.

"Ah! You can talk! So, you are not really a mute. Were you pretending before? But why?" asked Zhi Yue.

The little halfling stared at Zhi Yue, who had bombarded him with questions. But it seems that the little halfling had no intention of answering any of Zhi Yue's questions; instead, he told the Zerg Empress.

"My lord, this one with you is a fool," said the little halfling.

Zhi Yue might not have heard the beginning of the conversation between the Zerg Empress and the little jaguar halfling, but he knew that at this moment, the one being called a fool was him. He is pissed that a pipsqueak called him a fool.

Zhi Yue fought back and said, "Who are you calling 'fool'? Based on my age alone, I can be called your grandpa!"

"Only your age increases, not your brain," retorted the little jaguar halfling.

Once they've reached the end of the cliff, what welcomes the three is a wide garden of starflowers, and unlike the ones that grew at the side of the cliff, these starflowers glow with a shade of silver like the God of Destruction's aura.

Moreover, these flowers had more vitality than those that were taken away by Tun Shizhe, this signifies that this is the real location and the source of the chaotic energy he felt.

Once their feet landed on the ground, the little jaguar halfling morphed into his beast form. It's a young adult black jaguar; the only difference is that his eyes glow with a light gray shade instead of gold. A few black jaguars came out of the dark shade of the cliff and approached the God of Destruction.

Surrounded by a few huge black jaguars, Zhi Yue was finally terrified and hid behind his Lord Hei, only under this man's protection does he feel completely safe.

Zhi Yue asked while hiding behind the Zerg Empress, "L-L-Lord Hei, what should we do now?"

"Nothing. They aren't here to hurt us," said the God of Destruction, who watched all the black jaguars with similar light gray eyes. Even though it wasn't as silver as his, the chaotic energy coming from them says it all. "You guys are familiar with the Mo Clan, aren't you? We've been looking for you all this time."

While these words left Zhi Yue confused, the black jaguars that surrounded them all suddenly bow down to his Lord Hei.

"We greet the Master!" said collectively the black jaguars before them.

All gods, especially those in clans, were familiar with those who served them. The God of Void has fire and dark elementals, as well as hell creatures, under his control. The God of Creation has angels and archangels as his servants. The God of Life and Death has grim reapers and saints under his command.

Hei Anjing, the God of Destruction and Chaos, has ice elementals and chaos creatures under his control.

These black jaguars happened to be born from chaos and exist to serve the Chaos Clan, which is the Mo Family. Just as soon as they were born, they were given the task of protecting the chaos fragment that hadn't completely merged with the worlds and galaxies. They got separated from the Mo Clan, who then stayed in the Upper Realm and lived there.

Looking at the creature that looks like a black jaguar in front of him, Zhi Yue was dumbfounded. "Lord Hei, are these guys with whom you're familiar?"

"They are the Mo Clan's familiars, not mine alone," said the God of Destruction. "You guys may stand up."

Zhi Yue was no longer afraid after knowing that these guys were familiar. "The Mo Clan's familiars are jaguars?"

"No, that is a form they took to blend into this world. Chaos summons can reshape themselves in any form they want," answered the God of Destruction.

As if showing this ability to Zhi Yue, the small jaguar in front of him once again morphs into a human. This time little one did choose the human form of a halfling but instead mimic Zhi Yue's human form, albeit younger, as the Chaos creatures can adjust their age accordingly. Seeing a younger version of himself, Zhi Yue was stunned.

He pinched the child version of his face as if he couldn't believe what was before his eyes.

"Wow, you really look like me!" exclaimed Zhi Yue.

The little one's expression was pissed as he could feel the tingling pain on his pinched cheeks. Regardless of this struggle, this childish adult doesn't let him go.

"Let go! Stop pinching! It hurts!" complained the young chaos child as he saw the childish adult in front of him smirking at him. He no longer hesitated and bit the hand of Zhi Yue, making two brats shout in pain.

CHOMP!

AHH!

Zhi Yue had no choice but to let go of the brat and say, "Brat! How can you bite me!?" He chased after the brat, who ran while laughing in the garden of Star Flowers.

"You don't let go I can only bite!" said the little chaos child.

The adults left the brats to play tag on their own. Meanwhile, the other chaos creatures had morphed into their human forms, and they are all adult chaos creatures. They approached the descendant of the Mo Clan and asked him to do something about the chaos flower. It was because of this chaotic energy that they could ascend to the upper realm.

The Zerg Empress said, "You want me to do something about these Chaos Flowers? I can help you. Do you wish me to take them away or merge with this world?"

"Master, please take it away. The mortals of this world are too weak to bear this chaos energy."

"Some of them had already gone mad and went to spread chaos. This will continue until they die."

"We didn't spread the star flower. Some birds took it away and brought it to the side of the cliff."

Sigh~

"I can take it away, but you have to protect me," said the God of Destruction.

"Of course, Master!"

"Please leave it to us!"

"We shall protect you with our lives!"

The intention of the God of Destruction was to take the chaos energy in the first place. That intention had gotten stronger when he saw Tun Shizhe appear in this world, clearly targeting this energy. Unfortunately, he can't give this energy away.

This is chaos itself. It was something that made even the gods and goddesses crazy. Also, he didn't want Tun Shizhe to evolve into a real, world eater, as this means that in the end, he will have no choice but to kill him. He might not have any attachments or feelings for this man, but he can be considered a part of his beloved.

The God of Destruction found the center of the chaos energy and sat in the middle. He activated his domain of destruction, and the whole forest was covered with a pure white domain. Inside this domain, his existence is absolute, and no one could ever defy him.

Surrounding him are the group of chaos creatures who have once again taken the shape of a black jaguar, except for Zhi Yue and the young chaos child.

The sudden descent of the god of destruction's domain can be felt by all the gods in this Beast Star. As expected, the God of Void and Tun Shizhe also felt it, even though they were already far away from the cliff. There is no way they would not recognize this surge of destruction.

Even all of the animals in the forest, who could only feel it instinctively, wanted to run away. Unfortunately, the domain of the god had frozen them on the spot. They couldn't even run away, so they stayed where there were, like statues.

Tun Shizhe mumbles in surprise, "This is...!?"

"Jing'er?" said the God of Void, who immediately flew back to where his wife was. He is afraid that something must have happened to his beloved for him to activate his domain.

Chapter 1408 Second Red Star - Crazy Tun Shizhe

There was a curtain of white covering the entire Star Rainforest on this particular day. It appears to be a massive dome that contains an all white environment. Under the authority of the God of devastation, this is the domain of devastation.

therein this domain, the God of Destruction will have total authority over you, irrespective of your status, and the only person with absolute authority therein is the domain owner. Nobody can possibly resist their orders.

The God of Void, commonly known as the Zerg Emperor, went into the domain and was not stopped. Clearly, the domain's owner had allowed this individual unrestricted access within. When the God of Void first entered the kingdom, Tun Shizhe was trailing him. Whatever powers he possessed, innate or acquired, none of them applied in this sphere.

Compared to the time the Beast World's Heavenly Laws attempted to contain his power, these limitations are more potent. Even the most powerful gods can become mortal due to the limitations of this domain.

Tun Shizhe understood that this individual was totally unrestrained inside the domain that the God of Destruction had activated as he observed the God of Void flying freely within it. This indicates that the domain owner has unfathomable faith in him. Giving this man his life and everything is the same thing.

The God of Void, who noticed the sudden change in speed of Tun Shizhe, couldn't help but turn around. There, he saw Tun Shizhe walking like an old man. Each footstep was as heavy as a mountain. Once he met the man's fierce glare, he realized that this domain had completely restricted him. It's the exact opposite of his current state.

Unlike Tun Shizhe, he felt more powerful inside this domain of his beloved.

Upon seeing the man, who hates walking as slowly as a turtle inside his wife's domain, the God of Void felt proud in his heart. This shows that his standing in his wife's heart is unparalleled, and this man who wears a copy of his face would never receive the same love he gets from his beloved.

He flew near Tun Shizhe and hovered around the man with a smirk on his face. "Hah, do you see the difference between you and me? In my baby's eyes, you and I are never equal. Jing'er only loves me," said the God of Void.

Hearing the taunts of the annoying gods flying around him, he raised his fist, wanting to punch the man, but the Zerg Emperor easily dodged his punch as he was moving too slowly compared to him.

"Tsk! What are you so proud of? You can only hide behind him when you are useless!" retorted Tun Shizhe.

The God of Void didn't mind his words and retorted back, "At least I have a wife to protect me in case of danger. How about you? You are so obsessed with a ghost that has been gone for eons~ Stupid fool!"

"Who the hell are you calling a ghost?! Hunluan is still alive! He is not dead! You bastard. I will kill you!" This time the one who lost his temper unexpectedly is Tun Shizhe. It seems that Hunluan is his sole reverse scale.

The God of Void didn't mind the man's rage. Instead, he ignored it and continued to stare at him like a fool.

"Hmp! I don't care about what you think about Hunluan. My wife had nothing to do with him anyway. Regardless of whether you believe that we are incarnations of the World Eater and Hunluan, those two are long gone. Only you who are obsessed with it will never be able to move on. As long as you stay away from my Jing'er, I won't care about what you do.

But if you keep stretching your claws to my other half, I won't hesitate to devour you when that day comes!"

The tone and hint of threat can be felt from his voice and words. Even so, Tun Shizhe just returned all of this warning with a cold gaze, as if he doesn't care what this man thinks.

The God of Void looked down on him before flying away to find his wife. Tun Shizhe looked at his fleeing back with black eyes flashed with purple shade. This signifies that the madness in Tun Shizhe is going out of control.

Before he had gone mad, Tun Shizhe took control of the madness within him, returning to a normal state as if he wasn't affected at all. This time his black iris resumed its crimson tint, and it looked at the direction the God of Void had left for. No one knows what he will do as he stands where he is at this moment.

On the other hand, under the cliff, a silvery glow was emitted by the garden of star flowers. This is the chaotic energy extracted from the flower. Seating at the center of the garden in lotus form is the God of Destruction. The chaos energy around him started to gather at the center, where he is. All of this energy entered his body and was refined by his soul.

Any traces of chaotic energy weren't left behind in the vessel but were all absorbed by his soul. Chaos energy is only capable of merging with the world and can be converted into a world in which all stars need to exist. All others who consume these star flowers will end up like the beastmen who ended up as warmongers.

When the Zerg Emperor arrived at the scene, the Chaos Creatures had all bared their teeth at him, yet the Emperor remained composed, ignoring their fierce stares and looking only at his wife at the center. Just as the group of black jaguars was about to jump on Emperor Augustus, the shadows of these jaguars temporarily bound them and allowed the Zerg Emperor to approach his wife.

The moment the shadows that restrained them disappeared, these black jaguars intended to attack the intruder once again, but this time Emperor Augustus chose to temporarily borrow his wife's ability to control chaos. Though complete control is beyond him, using this aura to push away the attack of the Chaos Creature can still be done.

The black jaguars felt a bit dizzy from the sudden familiar aura that pushed them away, then looked at the man with monarch butterfly wings who stood behind their master like a guardian, leaving them bewildered. On the sidelines, Zhi Yue, who was hugging a black jaguar cub, looked at this scene. He even heard the cub in his arms asking.

"Why can he use Chaos energy? He is clearly not a being born in chaos. He only has the power of gluttony in him. Who is he really?" asked the young Chaos child.

Zhi Yue lowered his head and looked at the cub in his arms. "Didn't you know? Milord is the other half of Lord Hei, your master. He is the Sovereign Ruler of the Void and said to be an incarnation of the original World Eater. The reason Milord can use Lord Hei's ability to some extent was because they shared lives.

Their souls are connected by the Trial of Marriage, allowing each other to wield the strength of the other person."

This explanation was well accepted by the chaos child, as he could feel the pure chaos energy that the God of Void emitted, which was enough for these chaos creatures to trust him as it was completely similar to the ones their master possessed.

They watched as all the chaos energy in the area converged at the center and entered the body of the God of Destruction. It is taking a bit of time for all of the chaos energy in the area to enter the soul of the master at its center.

During the meditation, a huge purplish-black dragon appeared with Tun Shizhe riding on it. The moment he saw the wide garden of star flowers, he felt scammed as he looked at the now-wilted chaos flower he had stolen before. He spotted the little jaguar and glared at him. Obviously realizing that he had been lied to by that little halfling, he never took it seriously.

"It's you! You are not a mortal! You dare lie to me, stupid brat!" shouted the enraged Tun Shizhe upon recognizing the current situation.

"It was you who stole things why blame me"

Tun Shizhe glares at the little jaguar and wants to kill the brat. Zhi Yue, who was hugging the cub, was affected, as he didn't know where to hit and felt terrified by the purplish irises of the man in front of him. His body froze unexpectedly, and he watched as the huge purplish dragon opened its mouth to bite him and the chaos child he was holding.

ROOAAR~

Zhi Yue screamed, "Are you for real!?"

CAWS~ ROOAAR~

But before they could even be harmed, Roi and Reine appeared in thin air, obviously called out by the God of Void from the small world he and his wife were in. Two divine creatures attacked the purplish dragon and destroyed it in thin air. This dragon is just a materialized form of the power of gluttony, and it doesn't have a real, physical body.

Tun Shizhe almost fell down on the ground full of flowers at first, but he was able to prevent such an embarrassing scene. His glare moved onto the God of Void, who made the move to save the two younglings.

The Zerg Emperor said, "I don't know what you did for you to be able to move. But you can't harm them; those two are under the protection of Jing'er!"

"So, what if I can move? Do you think I will harm him? I can kill you, but I will never harm Jing'er!" declared Tun Shizhe. His words annoyed the God of Void; it was as if this man was coveting his treasure.

The Zerg Emperor shouted, "Who the hell allowed you to call my wife by his name? You don't have any right to do so!" He restarted his fight with this annoying man.

After all, he never allowed others to call him Jing'er. This is an exclusive name for his wife, and he is the only one allowed to call it. Even his brother and his wife's family call his wife Xiao Jing or A'Jing, but not Jing'er. Now that a stranger and a man who only sees his wife as Hunluan's incarnation dare to intimately call his wife by her name, it is only right for him to go mad.

As the two clashed, the God of Void finally noticed how Tun Shizhe was able to move inside his wife's domain. The Domain of Destruction's origin source is the chaos energy of his wife. Tun Shizhe burns his blood essence, which is full of chaotic energy.

After all, the original World Eater, who is also the origin of Tun Shizhe, was born from Chaos itself. That's why in his body there is chaos energy itself, but unlike what the God of Destruction possessed, his aura isn't pure chaos energy and blood must be spilled to control it outside his vessel. This move is similar to draining his lifespan. But as a divine existence, Tun Shizhe's lifespan is long.

The backlash of this move is for him to become weaker for a few years.

"You must have gone crazy! Do you think blood essence can be replenished so easily!" rebuked the Zerg Emperor, who is clashing with Tun Shizhe.

Tun Shizhe sneered and retorted, "As long as I can get stronger, I will be able to revive Hunluan. As for the consequences of achieving it, I am even willing to offer my life!" He started devouring the chaos energy in his surroundings. Affecting the Zerg Empress, who is trying to refine the Chaos Energy in the area.

This angered the Zerg Emperor greatly, as he didn't know if it had any effects on his beloved.

"Your obsession with death is incomprehensible! If you want to die, this lord shall help you!" said the God of Void.

This time he is serious about wanting to kill Tun Shizhe; he activates the void and encloses his wife's domain within it. He changed his vessel to his real one and called on the hell creatures that live in the abyss. This time, the darkness was as if it were alive, moving, and merged with the white domain. The shadows were alive and surrounded Tun Shizhe.

Once they were near, they morphed into countless forms: humanoids, titans, hell beasts, etc.

"This is the second time I've seen the void descending to the mortal world," mumbled Zhi Yue.

Frightened, the young Chaos child murmured, "That's the void! It's horrible!"

Zhi Yue and the Chaos creatures were shocked as hell descended. They look up to see the terrifying God who called Hell on earth. But unlike the usual imagination of the King of Hell, this man is alluring, paired with his handsome and manly features and his dangerous aura, He is the perfect definition of a devil, especially with those pair of crimson eyes glowing brightly in the darkness.

"I wanted to see. How will you survive this time?" said the God of Void. With his hand gesturing downward, the creatures surrounding Tun Shizhe swarm towards him, dragging him in the darkness. He can only glare at the God afloat before him.

Giving the God of Void a deadly glare as he was dragged within the darkness, Tun Shizhe screams, "This... is far from... over!"

Chapter 1409 Second Red Star - The Beast King and the Elemental King of the North.

With Tun Shizhe dragged by the Hell Creatures at the abyss, the enraged God of Void had somehow calmed down. He sat beside the God of Destruction who is the center of the two domains meditating. He sighed in relief when he saw that his beloved was unaffected when Tun Shizhe tried to devour the chaos energy in the area.

The God of Void asked the other hell creatures in the darkness, "How is he?"

{Milord! He escaped but we were able to injure him badly. Some of us are eaten but overall it's alright. Do we need to chase him?}

"No need. Protect the vicinity of this domain. If someone else dares to intrude, kill them on the spot!" commanded the God of Void.

{As you wish, Milord!}

With the source of the chaos found, the God of Destruction took on his duties to control this power. He will remain to meditate in this world until all Chaos Energy is refined by him. The God of Void, Chaos Creatures, and Hell Creatures as his guards, and Tun Shizhe escaped for his life, he should be able to refine the Chaos Energy without disturbance until it was gone.

In the Federation Star...

The Beast Race finally reached the forest region in the north. They were able to enter the Ice forest unhindered, but it is only until they reach the center of the forest where the group of Ice Elementals under the command of the Ice Elemental Wolf King resides. With King Leonhart in the lead of these beastmen, they finally saw their target.

The Ice Elemental Wolf King stood at the rock formation looking down on them. His light blue fur glows under the moonlight as the snow hovers around him. As the proud king of the Ice Elemental Wolf Tribe, he never let his head down even when facing countless enemies.

{The Race of Beasts. You have a delicious scent of energy in you. Unfortunately, you mortals are incapable of refining such pure power. Only Gods are capable of doing so as it's a power that nourishes the world. Just where in hell have you got?}

The words of the Ice Elementals were converted in a language that even the beastmen could understand. It's the same when they speak to humans. So, when the Ice Elemental Wolf King spoke, all the beastmen before him had understood. The chaotic energy in their bodies made them fearless, all they had in mind as a priority is to fight. Fight until death and nothing else. They had never thought of survival.

King Leonhart spoke, "The dog speaks. Hm, you aren't an animal. Your aura and scent is completely different. The fragrance of snow. You are what they call Elementals."

{Oh~ this kitten is not completely insane. How rare~} retorted the Ice Elemental Wolf King.

The King of Beast, Leonhart, and the Ice Region Elemental King, Wolf King insulted each other with things they never wanted to be called.

{Who the hell did you call a dog!?!} rebuked the Ice Elemental Wolf King.

The Beast Leonhart retorted, "You did call this king a kitten! Who do you think you are!? You even call me insane!"

{Hah! Do you think your race is still sane? Not only have you caused disharmony everywhere, you can't even control your urge for blood and war. Only those who are affected by that untamable energy in your body would act how you guys had acted. Look at you kin. Do they look normal to you?} said the Ice elemental Wolf King making the Beast King turn to his people and saw their eyes bloodshot and fierce.

They wanted to jump on the ice elementals in front of them and were already on the very edge of being out of control. As soon as the Beast King saw his kin's state, he somehow believed this Ice Elemental Wolf King.

{Also, do you still think you are different from them? Except for the fact that you can respond to my words, your state is not much different from them.} stated the Ice Elemental Wolf King.

Beast King Leonhart looked at his claws which now revealed its sharpness, but he didn't control them to come out. Even though he couldn't see his eyes and face, he had the feeling that what the wolf king said was right. There is indeed something wrong with them and that it was something out of control and for some reason he gained a bit of rationality.

"Do you know how I can save them?" asked the Beast King Leonhart to the Ice Elemental Wolf King.

{No one can resolve it. Maybe only a God would be able to do so. But for your kin, it's already too late.}

"What do you mean?" The Beast King looked angry with the Wolf King's words, but sadly, he had no means to say anything back to him.

After saying these words his kin as if they had gone mad started attacking the Ice Elemental Wolf King. They were laughing like a madman as they tried to swing their claws wanting to cut their enemies into pieces.

"Kill. Kill. Kill."

"Formidable enemies! Must kill!"

The cheers of the beast race all ended up like this and except for the Beast King, almost all of them chanted the same thing. They had all attacked the Ice Elemental Wolf King making the latter summon its subordinates. From the snow under their feet countless Ice Elemental wolves had emerged, they surrounded the Beast Race and attacked back.

Except for the two kings in the area, the brawl between the beast race and the ice elemental tribes continues.

But the disadvantage fell on the Beast Race as Ice Elemental not only had an advantage thanks to the terrain and cold weather. The Ice elementals like other elementals don't die even if they are injured, it would heal instantly as long as there are ice elements in the area.

In the Ice Forest, no not just in the ice forest but in the Federation Star itself, ice elements are abundant making most of the elementals in this world undefeatable. Only an evil power like the Gluttony can devour anything with its power leaving not even a single bone in the end.

The two kings of each race stare at each other. One is imprinted with calmness and arrogance while the other is filled with controlled madness and anger.

Beast King Leonhart, upon seeing his kin getting badly wounded, bellowed at the Ice Elemental Wolf King, "Stop your subordinates!"

{Are you a fool? You invaded our world and now you are telling us to stop fighting back? I am wrong, you aren't sane, you are crazy in your own way. If you want them to stop you can only defeat me. Only then will my subordinates ease their actions!} said the Ice Elemental Wolf King.

Angered by the wolf's words, Beast King Leonhart finally attacked. He jumped above everyone else and landed safely at the rock formation where the Ice Elemental Wolf King resides. The two stood before each other and also started to fight.

{Hahaha~ I wonder if you can defeat me! The fox said, I will be able to get my goal this time!} said the Ice Elemental Wolf King as he laughed while exchanging some attacks with the Beast King, Leonhart.

The King of Beast, Leonhart said, "Your goal in life is to find someone to defeat you. Are you too arrogant?"

{If you are able to defeat me I might be able to tell you the way to find answers to your questions. If you fail then you can only die under my feet!}

"Hmp! I will smash your face on the ground!" declared the Beast King.

BOOOM!

Their exchange of moves instantly caused the rock formation they were standing too to crumble under their attacks. Those who were below were all affected but the two kings had no intention of paying attention to how dangerous their opponent was. The war on the Federation Star finally began.

The fight between the Ice Elemental Wolf King and the King of Beast, Leonhart had caused too much tremor on the land. That the human race that lives underground was greatly affected by the shockwaves of their actions. With the ground continuously shaking, the foundation of the underground sanctuary was continuously being affected and some cracks started to appear on it.

In the underground, Deep Haven's Territory.

The buildings created underground started to shake, scaring the females, elders, and younglings living in the underground sanctuary. Sounds of fearful whimpers echo in the place and the men of the territory are doing their best to keep the pillars of their last sanctuary intact.

Rumbles~

The land continues to shake. Some children hugged their parents and said,

"Mommy, are we going to die?"

"N-No... no! we will survive. We will definitely be!"

"Dad, I don't want to get buried alive! Wuwu~"

"Pack your things! Pack everything. Stop crying. Everything will be alright!"

Countless conversations of this content are happening within Deep Haven. Old Surge and the other elders and Elementalist including the hybrid, Leng Jun, were watching the video of the drone they let fly on the surface. Their faces turned grim and terrified as they saw the monstrous battle between the Ice Elemental Wolf King and a huge black lion.

The conversations in the surveillance room were all in disbelief at the scene before. Unfortunately, the scene on the monitor is nothing but the truth. There are indeed monsters on the surface fighting above their heads.

"Isn't that the Ice Elemental Wolf King of the North Region!?"

"Who the hell is capable of fighting that monster!?"

"A huge... black lion? Is that a beast or..."

With their eyes, they saw the huge black lion morphed into his human form revealing the familiar face of the King of Beast, Leonhart. People like Leng Jun and Old Serge immediately recognize them as they were there when the former old marshals signed an alliance treaty with this beastman.

"The King of the Beast Race, Leonhart Reiner," said Old Surge, who is a former general of the Federation.

Leng Jun also couldn't believe what was happening. "Why the hell is he in our star? Why is he fighting with the Ice Elemental Wolf King!?"

Silence descended in the surveillance room at this question, as no one knew what was truly happening on the surface above Deep Haven and even beyond. After all, as the human race lost their authority on the land, they could no longer surveil the situation beyond their planet. They had become too weak to gain control of their own planet, much less learn the situation in the Interstellar world.

Old Surge broke the silence and said, "Maybe something is happening in the Interstellar world, and it got something to do with how the Beast Race appeared in here. But that isn't our priority. We need to move above ground. The underground is no longer safe."

"But where should we go? Is there any other place safer than in the underground?" a young man asked obviously looking dejected at the scene.

At this question, Leng Jun spoke up. "South. Go to the South. The Ice Elemental King of the South Region is the last ally of the Human Race. We can only find the Ice Elemental Penguin King and seek his protection."

"South? It will be a long journey and... not everyone can go. Old men like me can only stay here. We can go on such a long journey in such extreme cold weather," said Old Surge.

Leng Jun spoke to Chuchu, "Chuchu, are we able to keep a certain area warm in the long term?" he asked while looking at the Fire Elemental Viper King's soul on his shoulders.

Chuchu, the Fire Elemental Viper King, wanted to tell the despairing truth, but in the end, he chose to lie.

{I can do it! With my domain, I can keep a certain area at a normal temperature. But I have to rest a few hours a day, and in those few hours, you must find a way to keep warm!}

At these words, Leng Jun and the rest all smiled. This is the last spark of hope, Chuchu, this kind of Fire Elemental Viper King has given to the Human Race. All of this is because of his feeling of one mortal called Leng Jun.

Leng Jun tried to hug the soul form of Chuchu. Despite knowing he couldn't touch him, he still did so. "Thank you, Chuchu. You are really my savior!"

{I will keep A'Jun safe no matter what!}

Chapter 1410 Second Red Star - Migration and Sacrifice

Federation Star

Underground Sanctuary, Deep Haven...

After learning that the south region is safer than here in the north, the humans living in Deep Haven had all decided to leave. At first, the elders declined to leave this place as they couldn't bear to once again become the burden of their children and families. But after learning that Captain Leng Jun had a way to keep them warm during the journey, they all decided to leave together.

They would at least try their best to not slow down everyone.

The package for each family and individual is minimal. Mostly food and some basic necessities. The base also distributed thick animal wool winter jackets, thick pants, and boots for the journey. A sled was also created for carrying the elderly, children, or many others who might get injured on the way. Everything was basically done efficiently and fast.

Humanity's unity had been once again tested in this perilous situation. While everyone was about to head out, the whole hideout started to crumble, as if it had been hit by something large and powerful. Those who were in the surveillance room were panicking as they saw the scene of the huge Ice Elemental Wolf King falling above the land that was just directly above Deep Haven.

His falling impact had caved in the thickest metal that surrounded the underground facility. He was rammed directly by the enraged beast king and ended up in such a sorry landing.

BOOOOOM!

Those who were inside the underground facility were terrified by such a scene. The tall ceiling above their heads had bent down, caving in. They were quite lucky that a hole wasn't made. But with the Ice Elemental Wolf King above their heads, there is no way they would be calm.

Old Surge command: "Everyone, Run! Meet in the location we had decided."

Those young men who were strong enough had carried away the elderly men and women. The ladies carried any children they could see in their line of sight and escaped before the hole was made above their heads.

Leng Jun wanted to leave with his father but was told to leave. "Xiao Jun, you go as well!"

"N-No! I can also fight!" exclaimed Leng Jun, who looked terrified at the scene of separation before his eyes.

Old Surge reprimands, "Only you know the way to the South and find the Ice Elemental Penguin King. You are a soldier yourself. Go now! We will block the enemies. Xiao Jun, this is an order!" the foster father of Leng Jun said.

At this point, the corner of Leng Jun's eyes turned red. He looked at his old father and his old comrades. These are all former, proud soldiers of the Federation. They are the only remaining sentinels and guides that are alive after the apocalypse has arrived. Those who had awakened as an Elementalist lost all their abilities as sentries.

Those that didn't awaken like his father, Old Surge, maintain their physical abilities and mental abilities, as well as their quantum abilities. Their existence in this world is the rarest since the apocalypse descended.

Old Surge pats his son's head and bumps their foreheads. "Xiao Jun, you are now the new leader of the base. Also, I forgot to tell you before. Welcome home... and goodbye!"

BAAAM!

{Hoh~ So this is where the ants are hiding! The underground indeed fits you, damn parasites!} The Ice Elemental Wolf King said.

A hole was made above their heads, and before the Ice Elemental Wolf King could peer within, the old sentinels had summoned their quantum beasts and jumped on the Elemental King, making him dodge away from the base. Old Surge didn't hesitate as he stepped forward; following right behind him are his few subordinates that have lived on with him until now.

They had once again lifted their weapons and fought for the future of the younger generation.

"Boss, we need to go!" said Jeremy.

Leng Jun struggles, but his subordinates have forcibly carried him and pulled him away. "Let me go! I told you to fucking let me go. Jeremy! You guys!"

"Sorry, boss! This is the last order from the old man!"

"Only for this time! Please forgive us; we won't listen to your orders, Captain!"

Jeremy had pulled away Leng Jun, who wanted to stop his foster father, but his confidants and subordinates didn't dare let him go as they escaped using the time bought by the elders with their lives on line. Their faces were covered with tears that immediately frosted as soon as they got to the surface.

Leng Jun can only watch his foster father and other uncles fight against two huge beings. They were like ants fighting an elephant, but despite that, they showed no fear as they fought against the Ice Elemental Wolf King and the Beast King, Leonhart Reiner.

There are some old soldiers who, upon seeing the approaching groups of ice elementals and beastmen, choose to self-implode and drag them to death. Even if the ice elementals didn't die under the explosion, at least the beastmen did. This also slowed down the chase of the ice elementals, as they needed time to heal themselves before being able to move.

The migrating humans only saw thick clouds of smoke and heard some explosions. Even though they didn't know what was happening behind them, they chose not to turn around and waste more time. They run towards the south to survive. This is the only way.

Leng Jun had finally calmed down when they'd reached the distance from the location of the Deep Haven. Jeremy and the others had no choice but to let him go, as his skin had once again turned hot enough to burn their hands. Thankfully, they immediately let go and only got a light burn.

In his despair, Leng Jun kneeled on the cold and snowy ground, which instantly melted the moment he lost control of his emotions.

ARGGHH~

Chuchu warned Jeremy and the other humans. {Stay away from him! He is about to awaken as an Elemental King!}

Jeremy and the others were shocked by such a delightful event. Even so, they couldn't feel happy about this news because of what happened in their former home and to their seniors. Jeremy noticed that the more intense Leng Jun's emotions are, the hotter his fire gets.

"Do you Fire Elementals need a strong emotion to evolve?" asked Jeremy.

The Fire Elemental Viper King said, {Yes. Fire involves all emotions in existence. The stronger the emotion, the hotter the fire can get. Rage is the strongest catalyst for our evolution. I also evolved as an Elemental King when I saw my parents sacrifice themselves to save me. This is something a fire elemental is inevitable to undergo to evolve.}

{All elements need to undergo such a point to evolve. The reason why there are fewer Elemental kings than low-tier elementals is also because of this. Those who failed to achieve evolution will die.}

Jeremy asked, "So for the captain to evolve into an Elemental Emperor and ascend to godhood, he will need to experience this for the second time?"

Fire Elemental Viper King, Chuchu didn't speak out the answer but nodded in agreement to Jeremy's words. The human called Jeremy thought deeply for a moment and said, "I think I understand now."

{Please don't tell A'Jun. Or he would hold back his evolution like I did.} Chuchu said.

Jeremy and his comrades promise not to tell Leng Jun a thing about this event. He had fallen into such a deep meditative state that he hadn't even heard the conversation between Chuchu and the rest. He had fallen into his deep consciousness for the second time. This time, Chuchu is no longer in this place, as he already exists outside.

After looking around the dark place that looked like the abyss, he recalled a few broken fragments of his forgotten childhood. Leng Jun watched the scene of his past as a child. When his foster father adopted him from the orphanage,. Live with Old Surge, happily eating their meals together and living quietly.

The two first separated when he started working for the special forces. He can barely go home once a year, and his foster father is busy in the military. They were able to reunite after his father was dismissed from his position after wanting to stop the old marshals from invading the Hive Star.

The Zerg race is a lot more resilient than the human race. In the first place, the insect race wanted to sign a peace treaty with them, but because of the arrogance of the old marshals, the human race became the enemies of the Zerg race and suffered from war almost every year. They lost a lot of soldiers; sentries had gone mad from spiritual contamination, and guides died under mental attacks.

It was a continuous cycle of never-ending war, blood, and battles.

Only when the Federation Star lost most of their soldiers in the last war did the Federation gain a short peace. But who would have expected this to be just a peace before the huge storm? The Frozen Apocalypse had descended on their world. In that disaster, more than half of the human race died, and they were replaced as the masters of the Federation Star.

Ice Elementals were born one by one until Elemental Kings and Elemental Emperors were born. It was at this time that the human race completely lost their place on the planet they were born into and could only live underground.

The human race is adaptable. Regardless of the limited population, they happily adapted to living underground. The Sentinel and Guides were replaced by Elementalists, allowing them to gain a foothold in this world. Elementals from another world were called upon this world, and those who had signed a contract will be able to call these otherworld elemental helpers.

These elements had once again helped the human race adapt further to the changes in the Federation. Even though they could live on the surface. These elementals had given them the ability to fight against the natural ice elementals on the federation star. Who would have thought that just after they had adjusted, the Beast Race would invade the Federation Star?

Though these beastmen didn't attack humans and targeted the Ice Elementals instead, the human race, which had been living underground, was dug out and is once again forced to escape under the sacrifices of their fathers, uncles, aunts, and senior soldiers. The human race had once again escaped from death and survived.

Within the subconsciousness of Leng Jun, he had re-watched his life like a movie, waiting for someone to arrive. As expected, his father, Old Surge, appeared. Like how Chuchu's soul appeared in this place after his death, his foster father had also arrived.

"Son, what is this place?" asked Old Surge.

Leng Jun stares at his foster father with bloodshot eyes. Upon meeting him here, he knew that he had perished in reality.

"Father, this is the place I told you about before. You..." Leng Jun couldn't tell his father that he was dead.

But he didn't say more for Old Surge to understand. "Tsk! To think I was only able to cut off an arm of that black lion's and stab the heart of the Ice Elemental Wolf King before death!" Old Surge said.

Though Leng Jun didn't know what would happen to an Elemental King after it lost its heart, the Beast King was at least crippled. As expected of his father, he is so proud of him.

Old Surge said, "So why did you appear here again? Don't tell me you died too! You foolish son!"

"I might not be dead. I also appeared here when I awakened as a hybrid elemental," said Leng Jun. "It's great to see my father here."

"Xiao Jun, as the future leader of humanity, you can't be too dense. That elemental of yours, Chuchu, was it? Don't make him do everything. Did you really think a soul had that much power? Watch over that child. He is too dependent on you.

Don't let Chuchu down!" warned Old Surge.

Leng Jun had a conversation with his father until his shape started to fade, which means he is about to wake up in reality.

Old Surge hugged his son for the last time and said, "Father can no longer accompany you to whatever the future unfolds. Just protect those who you wanted to protect and stay with them until the end. Be happy and live to the fullest. Son, this is all I want for you to achieve."

"Haha~ it sounds harder to achieve in this kind of world, though. Even so, I shall do my best, Father," Leng Jun said with a smile as he faded in the space he was in.

After Leng Jun disappeared, all emotions on Old Surge's face faded. A monotonous voice, which only the Autonomous heavens possess, resounds in the black room. It seems that the Heavenly Laws of the Federation Star isn't dead, but rearranging the plot of the world with the new chosen protagonist.

{World Error is under repair. Virus detected. Intruders who had not been included in the storyline had been thrown out. The new world plot had been uploaded. Reloading the new set of characters and the sequence of the world scenes. A new story has been uploaded.}

As long as one is a mortal, there is no way for them to go against the world, especially when the heavens are always watching.
