My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1973-The lab results were not out even after waiting a long time.

This was a new virus that had never been recorded before.

To be precise, it was a pathogen and not a virus.

That result shocked Mary and Rosalie.

Fortunately, Rosalie was professional and calmed down immediately.

There were many things to be done immediately. She had no time to waste.

First, they had to lock down the entire building where the emergency department was located and immediately interrogate everyone who had gone in and out of the building today. They should try to contact them and keep them in the hospital.

Second, they should immediately report to the Health and Epidemic Prevention Department and express the severity of the matter.

Third, all emergency room staff that had been in contact with the patient should be placed in separate rooms to wait and see if they were infected with the virus.

“Ask the laboratory to continue to work hard to find a way to test this pathogen. Once identified, all infected doctors and nurses are to be given anti-viral medication. If they’re seriously ill, come to me immediately, and I’ll perform dry needling right away.”

Rosalie was serious, unlike her usual self.

Mary nodded and immediately ordered the management team of the hospital. She arranged everything Rosalie had told her to do.

It was a race against time.

In the country, this sort of thing happened all the time in many hospitals.

As the director of the hospital, Mary was familiar with the protocols.

“So far, it seems my dry-needling can suppress the disease.” Rosalie looked at Byron, comforting him with her gaze.

Byron was in a trance upon looking at his wife.

He suddenly realized that he had underestimated his wife. She had so much energy in her tiny body.

“Honey, do you have to take any medicine now? Do you feel ill?” Byron looked at her with concern.

“I’m fine. I won’t take any medication for now. There’s no way this new pathogen is going to cause a serious illness immediately. It must have a long development period. I just occasionally feel like coughing. Besides, drugs aren’t good for the baby!” Rosalie looked less tense when she spoke to her husband. She stood up and held his hand.

Byron nodded, believing in his wife’s judgment.

Then, he suddenly felt an itch in his throat.

His heart skipped a beat. Was the virus so contagious and scary?

He had not come into contact with the patient. He had only been around Mary and his wife.

However, he tried to bear it and quickly drank a few sips of water, not wanting to cough and worry his wife.

Minutes passed, and Mary returned to the director’s office to update Rosalie on the situation.

As expected, the emergency patient’s blood contained a lot of bacteria, which could lead to multiple organ failure.

However, because of Rosalie’s dry-needling treatment, the bacteria were suppressed. Moreover, they had changed his blood, so his physical signs were stable.

“So, the effects of the current anti-bacterial drugs aren’t ideal. Almost all the doctors and nurses in the emergency room have been infected with the bacteria, but the symptoms are not serious. To completely suppress the reproduction of this pathogen, we must make targeted drugs!”

Mary reported everything to Rosalie.

Rosalie’s forehead creased, and she asked, “Mary, where did this patient come back from?” There’s no record of this pathogen in this nation, so we’ll try to post it on international forums and see if we can identify it. Perhaps this is not new and unheard of. It’s just that this is our first time seeing it in our country.”

Before Mary could understand what Rosalie meant, Byron knew what Rosalie wanted to do.

His face was a little cold, and he added, “Rosie means that the origin of the patient must be found out! Perhaps this isn’t an accident but a planned trap!”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1974-Mary was dumbfounded.

If even Byron had also thought of it, there was a high possibility of this being the reason.

This patient was deliberately brought into the hospital by someone, causing a major commotion in the hospital and widespread infection?

“So, if someone is doing this, what’s the purpose of them doing so?” In addition to the shock, she was puzzled.

Rosalie pondered and said calmly, ‘There are only two possibilities. One is to paralyze our hospital and make us suffer from the infection! We could even lose our lives. In the second case, the pathogen may exist internationally, but there’s no domestic way to treat it. After the spread, we’d eventually buy drugs from the international market.

However, the whole process is enough to cause a major issue in our hospital. We have to bear serious social impact, and it'll eventually lead to a downfall in the hospital's reputation."

"So, is that why you immediately considered posting it on international forums?" Mary was impressed that her best friend could think straight and decide decisively at times like this.

Rosalie nodded. Byron suddenly added, "Maybe that person's target is you!"

Byron looked at Mary.

Mary was even more amazed.

"You're the hospital director, and you have a great responsibility. If the situation is bad, you'll lose your job and may even be pursued for certain legal responsibilities. Of course, Rosalie would have to bear the consequences too. After all, she's still the boss of the hospital!"

Byron pondered and felt that person might be too afraid to hurt Rosalie directly. After all, hurting Rosalie meant looking for trouble, and Byron would target that person.

The only possible way to carry out that plan was through Mary.

"Anyway, for now, the most effective solution is to find the same kind of bacteria in international forums! I'll also try to contact some friends who work in laboratories abroad.

Mary, let's get to work!"

Rosalie endured the coughs, immediately took out her phone, and began to make international calls.

Byron pondered momentarily before calling Luther, asking him to check all recent flights. He ordered Luther to ask the airlines to find a way to get the patient's detail.

He believed that the outbreak was not domestic. It must have been an emergency transfer from abroad.

Over the next hour, more and more doctors and nurses suddenly felt an itch in their throats and began to cough.

However, since the hospital was closed for the day and there were no new patients, they had plenty of time to monitor the progress of their illnesses separately.

Everyone knew this was a fight against an outbreak.

However, Rosalie, the boss, and her dry-needling skills could prevent everyone from getting a severe illness. Thus, they were calm. They took it as an ordinary cold and rested.

At the same time, a building opposite the hospital was taller than the hospital building. One could see most parts of the hospital from there.

At this time, Beatrice used binoculars to look at everything going on in the hospital.

While waiting, the vehicle of the Health and Epidemic Prevention Department soon arrived at the hospital and directly closed the hospital gate.

Seeing this scene, Beatrice was slightly displeased and murmured, "It's strange. How did they manage to react so quickly? That's impossible. Did the patient die and put them on alert?"

Behind her, a figure stood there. Her perfume was so strong that it made Beatrice feel uncomfortable.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1975-Kelly was dressed in luxurious clothes and had a sneer on her face.

Noticing Beatrice's impatience, she said, "Maybe it's because they were unable to deal with it, so they called in the Health and Epidemic Prevention Department. However, they might not be able to handle it either!"

Beatrice lifted her head. Her expression gradually calmed down as she looked at the hospital gloatingly.

'This plan of yours is indeed brilliant. It's obviously smarter than how you used Chloe the last time. Rosalie and Byron are also inside. They might have been infected too! If they can't deal with this matter, your wish will come true as well."

Beatrice was surprised to know that Kelly was Wendy.

Moreover, Kelly had a past with her brother.

If Alistair had not sent her abroad, she would not have returned with capital to seek revenge.

'Yes. I guessed that Mary would look for Rosalie's help. That's why I set up this trap. It's not only to help you; I'm doing this for myself too. However, it's too bad that your brother refuses to work with me. He even refused to help me when I was in trouble." Kelly still held a grudge against Alistair.

No matter what, she lost her virginity to that guy.

Beatrice quickly explained on behalf of her brother, saying he had returned to the North and it might be difficult for him to help her.

"Everything in the past doesn't matter. The important thing is I'm back this time. I returned with Mr. Vanderbilt! This time, I feel delighted that I'm able to make Byron and Rosalie suffer too!"

After saying that, a pleased smile appeared on Kelly's face as she gazed at the hospital with hatred.

'Yes. This plan is perfect. Even if Byron investigates, he won't find any clues. That patient was registered to be treated in his home country. All we did was change the information and bring him to Mary's hospital."

Since they would not be exposed, Beatrice did not mind cooperating this time.

Most importantly, if this matter spread, Mary would lose her position as the hospital director. She might even have to be legally responsible for this matter. That woman would lose her confidence and might stop pestering Andrius.

Perhaps, Andrius might despise her then.

Thinking of that made Beatrice happy. She was taking revenge on Mary for forcing her to transfer to another hospital the last time.

In the director's office in the hospital...

Mary found clues on the international forum.

She quickly informed Rosalie, "A doctor posted something similar to the pathogen we encountered. Rosie, quickly come and take a look!"

Rosalie had made many international calls. She hung up and approached Mary as she looked at the computer screen.

Byron approached to take a look too. He looked at the photo and the pathogen report on the desk.

They did look the same.

"This is it! There was a new outbreak in Africa earlier this year. It hasn't been named yet. However, the drug for it has been developed by a pharmaceutical company in M Nation! They used to sell them to Africa in large quantities at high prices! This new bacterium is carried through the blood and can survive in the air for nearly an hour, so the probability of airborne transmission is also very high. The main target is the vital human organs, causing organ failure and death!"

Rosalie read through the report that was in a foreign language and told Mary about the details as Mary was not good at that language.

In the end, Rosalie furrowed and said, "H Land owns a company that has obtained the patent authorization from M Nation, which is the fastest channel to obtain it. Otherwise, the pathogen will develop rapidly and multiply in six hours. So, our solution is to get the drug from H Land as soon as possible. That's what the doctor said in the forum!"
