My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1986-“Lucian, Nox, are you alright? It must be painful.” Byron helped up the two boys. He looked anxious and worried as he watched the boys’ knees bleed.

He looked like he was ready to commit murder.

Estie came over as well to check on her two older brothers. When she saw both of them bleeding, her eyes immediately turned red. She was almost crying.

“Byron, don’t let those children get away!” Rosalie said as she ran. She felt like her lungs were about to explode.

Those children clearly did that on purpose. She saw it very clearly. There were four of them.

A sneak attack with four against two. What a terrible thing to do!

Byron had been keeping his eye on those four children. They were trying to escape and disappear into the crowd.

When his wife arrived, Byron immediately took action. He gave chase immediately toward where the four children had escaped.

“Mommy, come take a look at Lucian and Nox!” Estie shouted at her helplessly.

Rosalie’s chest tightened. She went toward Lucian and Nox, and crouched down to check their wounds.

Fortunately, their wounds were considered minor. They were bleeding because of the scratch. Rosalie immediately took out the wet tissue she had on her and did a preliminary handling of their wound.

“Does it hurt, Lucian, Nox?” She checked their wounds carefully to make sure that no sand or stone was stuck inside.

“Don’t worry, Mommy. It doesn’t hurt very much!” Lucian quickly said to stop his mommy from worrying.

Nox began to comfort Estie. "We're fine Estie. It's just some blood. There's nothing to be worried about!"

Rosalie immediately took out the first-aid kit from the car when she brought all three children to the car. She carefully disinfected their wounds and stopped their bleeding. After that, she poured some medicinal powder on their wounds.

The powder was specially concocted by her and was used to quickly stop their bleeding. She had concocted this medicine for emergency use as children tended to hurt themselves here and there. It was quite effective and did not leave any scars on them.

It was not long after that Byron returned with a dark look on his face. He had caught all four children and none of them had any hopes of escaping.

"Lucian, Nox. Take a look at them. Do you know them?" Rosalie gave those four children a deathly stare.

"We do!" Lucian and Nox nodded.

After that, they told their daddy and mommy that those four children were in the same class as they were.

Students may be able to pick whichever courses they wanted in the art school, but they would still need to be divided into different classes. These four children were in the same class as Lucian and Nox, and were Year One Sixth Class.

"I've asked around. Lucian and Nox have great results in all of their courses while these four children have the worst results in class. They were just seeking revenge because they were jealous of Lucian and Nox!"

Byron's voice was cold. He stared at the biggest child. He was the leader of the pack and his name was Zack Lundgren.

The parents of all four of the children were quickly contacted because of what had happened.

It looked like all four sets of parents knew each other quite well. They were joking amongst each other and seemed like they were used to their children causing trouble.

“You rascal, Zack, you must have bullied your classmate again. I always end up compensating so much money every month because of you, darn it!” Zack’s father acted quite indifferent about this issue.

The other parents had the same sentiment as he did. After all, Daniel Lundgren was a somebody among them.

Their children had no qualifications to enter such an art school. It was because of Daniel’s connection that they were allowed to study here.

When they appeared in front of Byron and Rosalie, Daniel saw how obedient his son was. Zack did not act like an arrogant brat as usual, and he was surprised about this.

“Did you hit someone again? Which kid did you hit this time?” Daniel snuck a look at how Byron and Rosalie were dressed from the corner of his eyes. It was obvious that they were rich, but this did not bother Daniel.

He had said those words out loud on purpose and had a smear of disdain in his tone.

Byron’s face immediately turned even darker. He immediately went in close toward the plump Daniel. His long, slender figure was a head taller than Daniel.

‘They hit my children! Children of the Lawrence family!’ His tone was filled with murder.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1987-Daniel was taken aback. “The Lawrence family?”

He had just been transferred over from the North and was still not entirely clear on the business connections here.

Moreover, he saw no connection between the famous Byron Lawrence of Lawrence Corporation and the person in front of him who looked too young to be Byron.

From Daniel's point of view, every businessman here would always try to get along with him.

However, the other parents immediately recognized the three children.

"Aren't those the three genius children we've all heard about that just started school here?"

"It should be them. A pair of twins and an adorable younger sister. It is them! We're done for. I heard their parents are not to be trifled with."

"The... The Lawrence family? The reigning family of Coast City, the Lawrence family?"

Those parents immediately look shocked with fright. There was fear in their eyes as they looked at Byron and Rosalie.

One of them quickly ran over and tugged at Daniel while blinking repeatedly as he crazily hinted at Daniel.

Daniel was taken aback. "What do you mean by the reigning family of Coast City?"

His eyes met with Byron's sharp glance almost immediately and Daniel's heart begin to thump with fear.

"By... Byron Lawrence? Mr. Lawrence?" Daniel was still in slight disbelief.

He ended up stammering.

Even though he was considered middle-management that was highly regarded enough by the school to give him some leeway, he was not at the level of being able to go head-to-head with Byron Lawrence of Lawrence Corporation.

He was in complete fright as his expression froze. He could not help gulping a few times.

"So, can you tell me why did your son attack two of my children?"

Byron said through clenched teeth very coldly.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Lawrence. My son is stubborn and naughty. I did a bad job of educating him. Darn it! I'll teach him a lesson immediately!" One of the parents snapped out of it and immediately went to his son and gave him a big slap.

The other parents caught on and quickly began apologizing.

"It was my son's fault, Mr. Lawrence. I'll get him to apologize to the two young masters immediately!"

"I didn't teach my son well, Mr. Lawrence, which is why he is behaving so terribly. Come over here quick and apologize to the two young masters of the Lawrence family! Are you deaf?"

Besides Zack, the parents of the other three children's parents immediately stopped being biased over their own children and began beating, slapping, and whacking their children's butts.

Those three children instantly cried and shouted from the beating. They could not understand why they were treated that way today. They had always turned out fine after bullying other children with Zack.

Zack was stunned as he watched this. He began to ask his father, "Dad, what's going on? All I did was push those twins. Why aren't you saying anything, Dad?"

"You little brat!"

Daniel finally understood what it felt like to be implicated in his son's doing. His son had always been a presumptuous bully and Daniel had finally gotten into trouble because of him.

He went straight toward his son and wanted to simulate the other parents by physically punishing him in public with a good beating as a way to appease the Lawrence family.

However, he did not expect Byron to stop him.

Rosalie had the same idea as her husband then. She clenched her teeth and said coldly, "Mr. Lundgren, I don't like this way of handling things. Are you planning to let this slide by punishing your children this way? Wouldn't my two sons get hurt for nothing this way?"

Daniel was taken aback. There was a complicated look on his face as his eyes filled with panic. He quickly said, "Yes, yes, you're right. We should apologize and compensate you for it! You must be the young madam of the Lawrence family. I'm so sorry. My son is just too naughty!"

"You don't need to apologize! And we don't need any compensation! Just punish these four children according to our way!"

Byron raised his hand and the other parents, who were creating a ruckus, finally quieted down.
