Chapter 1479 Ryder's Death

Despite being his friend, Sage disliked Austin looking down on the Northern Region War

God. He hoped Emmanuel would teach him a lesson one day.

After the discussion, Emmanuel and Mackenzie emerged from the guild.

Emmanuel received a call when they entered the car. It was a call from Alessandra.

"Mom, what's wrong?"

He thought Alessandra called him because she was concerned about Mackenzie and her child.

Nevertheless, Alessandra said anxiously, "Emmanuel, where are you? Son happened to Ryder."

"What happened to him again?" Emmanuel's heart sank instantly as he found Alessandra's tone unusual.

"Ryder… He…" Alessandra sobbed for a while before she said, "He is dead."

"What?!" Emmanuel's heart skipped as he froze in place.

He always considered Ryder his real brother. He couldn't accept the fact that he died so suddenly.

"Emmanuel, what happened?" Mackenzie asked as she noticed Emmanuel's unusual expression.

"My mom said that… Ryder was dead. Someone killed him."

It was difficult for Mackenzie to accept the truth. She couldn't figure out who one who killed Ryder, who had always been an honest man.

Emmanuel and Mackenzie quickly went to the scene. Apart from Alessandra and Roselynn, Ashton was also present as she was leading a group of police officers to investigate the scene.

Upon seeing Emmanuel, Ashton walked over to him. "Abellyn's statement and the testimony of the witnesses on the spot suggested that Ryder was killed by a guy named Yosef Harper. He was stabbed through the heart."

Emmanuel knelt beside Ryder's body. His eyes reddened as he clenched his teeth in anguish. “Yosef bore no ill will toward Ryder. Why would he do that?”

Ashton didn’t provide further explanation as she looked at Abellyn.

Abellyn shuddered involuntarily as she recollected the events at that moment.

Emmanuel’s face darkened while listening. He couldn’t believe that such a t happened.

The animosity between Yosef and him had escalated to an irreparable degree.

“Emmanuel, you must seek justice for Ryder,” Roselynn said while walking over.

While hailing from the same village as Yosef, her connection with him paled in comparison to her bond with Ryder. She could not let the culprit evade justice.

Emmanuel gritted his teeth and nodded.

Ashton then said, “The culprit has left the scene. Since he had the Onza Tanner Family defend him, it’s not easy to deal with him through legal punishment. For now, our priority is to find a way to arrest him.”

Emmanuel nodded. He forced himself to calm down as he looked this matter to you and the police to handle. Once Yosef is arrested, inf

He clenched his fists as tears welled up in his eyes.

He was in deep agony upon learning of this incident.

Yosef was a role model for the youngsters in the eyes of the villagers in Hero's Village.

He couldn't believe he killed someone from the same hometown.

He didn't know what would be the villagers' reaction when they knew about this incident.

Ashton also nodded. She was aware that it was difficult to resolve this matter.

She wasn't even able to arrest Blake before. From what she knew, Yosef was even more capable than Blake. No one could arrest him without Emmanuel's inv

"We should put away our emotions. Let's handle Ryder's affairs first."

Emmanuel sighed as he turned around.

Tia was looking at him with a complex expression.

“Tia, my deepest condolences,” Emmanuel said.

Tia nodded while remaining silent. She didn’t really feel sad. It was as if she just lost a common friend.

Although she and Ryder were married, they didn’t have an intimate relationship.

When she married Ryder, he was already paralyzed. He couldn’t even handle himself.

Furthermore, she didn’t give birth to Tommy.

Currently, Tommy lay confined to his bed. His biological parents kept vigil at h

She was willing to embrace the role of a widow, forever recognized as Emmanuel’s sister-in-law, if it meant securing Tommy’s happiness.
