

Y. Goddess 176

Chapter 176 My Mother Relaxing Day

The information given by Sebastian made me, Princess Anastasia and Hana immediately rush to the back garden.

A cloud of black smoke rose high, along with the smell of burnt meat. From a distance, I saw my mother holding her magic staff actively casting fire magic that burned the holes left by the rat colonies.

Seeing the holes from the rats' digs and emitting hot pillars of fire, I could feel that my mother wanted to burn down this back garden. Because winter had ended and this was the beginning of spring, my mother's activities had threatened the seedlings that would grow with poor soil quality like this.

I immediately rushed to my mother who was in Magic Maniac Mode that could not be disturbed at all. To wake up my mother who was in Magic Maniac Mode, I needed to give a hard push until her gaze shifted to me.

With one swing of my foot that stepped on the ground and pushed my body to shoot like an arrow, I gave a surprise with a small hug that was able to hit the switch button between my mother's Normal Mode and her Magic Maniac Mode.

Booosshhh!!

Leaving Princess Anastasia and Hana, I immediately sped off to prevent even greater destruction from the fire magic chant that looked like it was burning down this whole plant.

If it wasn't stopped immediately, it would make the quality of the soil in the back garden bad.

"Mama!!" with a shout from my mouth that screamed, I gave a push that was too big until my head touched my mother's body who was drowning in her Magic Maniac Mode.

Boonk!!

My head felt like it was hit by soft flesh after the push from my foot swing hit my mother's body.

"Huueekk!!" with her cute little scream, my mother's body was pushed until she fell face down on the ground.

Buugghhh...

Braaakkk...

Poommm...

My mother and I fell and rolled on the ground in the back garden, making the clothes we were wearing dirty with black soil that had been burned by my mother's fire magic chant.

Our bodies that were rolling on the ground immediately stopped after Pyra rushed to use her sword sheath to hold my mother's body which was rolling out of control.

"Marchioness Amagi, are you okay?" asked Pyra with her eyes still looking sleepy as usual.

"Haauuu... my head is so dizzy!" my mother grumbled with her eyes closed and holding her head as if she felt a headache in her head.

I, who seemed normal with all this, immediately stood up and cleaned some of the black dirt that stuck to my clothes. The stains from the black dirt were the result of the burning carried out by my mother after she found a rat's nest that had formed a colony in the back garden.

I felt that the small genocide carried out by my mother not only killed the rat's nest but also the shoots of plants that were hibernating because of the winter.

"This is truly an uncontrolled genocide," I said while standing calmly.

"Lily-sama, please do not do such a dangerous thing. Marchioness Amagi almost died from a sudden attack when she was crazy like that," said Pyra who was now hooking her sword sheath to her hip.

Her unkempt fiery red hair and her sleepy eyes looked like she was being hit by a busyness that made her more active than usual.

"Oh, sorry, I did not mean to do such a dangerous thing," I replied while giving a relaxed attitude to Pyra who was currently in charge of being the Head Maid.

For some unknown reason, my mother seemed to be playing around when she appointed Pyra as the Head Maid to make her work harder than usual.

"I don't have a problem with that, just please don't make Yulia complain again after she has been working normally lately."

"Just so you know, Pyra. Of the many Maids who work at Marquess Rommel's residence, only Yulia works casually as a personal Doctor and Maid who takes care of Marquess Rommel's family when they are sick. If it weren't for her who is relaxing right now, how could I possibly do something crazy and fun like this!" as if giving a fire of encouragement for my actions that shot like an arrow into my mother's body, I smiled at Pyra and got a click of the tongue in return from her.

"Tch! I had no idea that this was Lily-sama's hobby to make her mother suffer," Pyra replied with a slightly joking click of her tongue when replying to my seemingly casual and disrespectful remark.

With that click of her tongue, Pyra then carried my mother who was slowly recovering from her dizziness after falling and rolling with me.

"It makes my head spin like seeing our income report that has been suppressed by the Royal Capital's taxes lately," my mother grumbled as she tried to stand up straight with her balance crumbling.

"You should be more careful, Mama," I replied in a tone without any guilt.

Puukkk... Puukk...

With a light pat of my mother's hand on the clothes she was wearing, some dirty soil began to fall and showed how dry the ground was after receiving her fire magic attack.

The dry soil that was created after receiving her fire magic attack was only because of a colony of mice that had formed a nest in the back garden.

"This makes me think that it's more excessive than usual," I said in a soft tone while looking around me, black and dry land. Then several rat holes that were still burning with fire from my mother's magic attack were displayed before my eyes.

Besides the damage caused by my mother's magic attack, several Maids served as her Exclusive Maids looks scared.

I took a deep breath before glancing at my mother.

"Mama, isn't this too much to make this fertile land die because it was burned down by fire magic spell?" I asked in a relaxed tone and tried to see what my mother had done as a positive thing.

"I think that's too much," my mother replied with an awkward expression on her face who was now trying to stand up straight with the help of her magic staff.

By standing up slowly and looking around, I could see several groups of stealth slimes on duty to clean the air around here from the residue of the magic core that my mother had cast.

"Mom, you also know that all the magic energy chants we do create magic core residue pollution that makes some stealth slimes have to work to clean it up, right?" I continued asking while watching some stealth slimes trying hard to absorb my mom's magic core residue that was scattered in the air.

Thanks to the explanation given by Aiko, now I can assume that magic core residue is pollution that cannot be seen by the naked human eye. With the help of a group of stealth slimes who can see magic core residue, it makes the job of cleaning up the magic core residue done by them.

"I'm sorry about that, Lily," said my mom after cleaning the front of her clothes that were dirty from the blackened soil from being burned by her fire magic attack.

"Just think of it as if they are working overtime with this unplanned incident, right, Pyra?" I said while directing my gaze to Pyra who was standing holding back her sleepy eyes behind my mom's body that was covering her.

"Un!" with a short reply and a great feeling of laziness, I could only see her head nodding slightly.

After the situation became calmer, Princess Anastasia and Hana immediately rushed towards me.

The view of the back garden which looked like it was burnt, made me as one of the residents of this place feel embarrassed when showing the back garden that was filled with this burnt smell.

"Uh, sorry if this view makes your eyes feel uncomfortable after seeing it," I said to Princess Anastasia and Hana who were in front of me.

"Anastias-chan and Hina-chan, are you guys taking a walk with Lily?" said my mother who suddenly put on Marchioness Mode which became more elegant and wise all of a sudden.

With a greeting full of awkwardness because the back garden looked burnt, Princess Anastasia and Hana answered my mother's question by ignoring the back garden that had been damaged by burning.

"Y-Yes, we are taking a walk with Lily," replied Princess Anastasia with her elegant attitude.

"Yes, we were taking a walk with Lily to make sure that no forest pests had re-emerged around the Mansion and it seems that Marchioness Amagi has just destroyed a rat nest based on information provided by Sebastian. Is that correct, Marchioness Amagi?" To avert the gazes of those who had seen the destructive power of my mother's fire magic chant, Hana seemed to want to make what my mother had done seem like an unavoidable mistake.

"That's true, as you can see now," replied my mother with a smile and showed her hard work that had made a colony of rat nests into burnt meat.

Together with my mother who was showing off the results of her hard work, we were surprised by several rats that began to come out of their dug holes with their bodies half-cooked after being burned.

Cuuiitt... Ciittt...

Kaboommm!!!

Baaamm!!!

When the rats made a squeaking sound from their mouths that were dying and wanted to die peacefully, my mother immediately cast her Fireball magic quickly and then it was thrown until it hit the rat's body that was burnt until half-cooked.

"Ara~ it seems like there are still some rats that managed to survive after the entire back garden burned down. I have to make sure that these rats meet their end properly," with a smile that looked cold and had no feelings at all, I saw my mother trying to kill the rats that had formed a nest in the back garden like this.

I, who saw Mama's eyes turn dark without showing any light in her eyes could only remain silent.

"It seems like this will be a very troublesome day for Mama," I muttered a little while giving a small nod to Pyra who was standing silently behind my Mama.

"I understand, Lily-sama," before I gave further orders to Pyra, it seemed she already knew what I wanted to say.

"Marchioness Amagi," with soft words coming from Pyra's mouth, her dim eyes holding back sleep immediately opened wide.

"Allow me to help hunt your rat nest until they are all extinct along with the blood of their descendants," said Pyra with a serious expression on her face.

"Hmm?" hearing Pyra's words that deviated far from what I expected, it seemed I had triggered a misunderstanding of the order I was going to give Pyra.

Pyra with the fire of enthusiasm that threw away her sleepiness and laziness immediately filled her entire body with a large flow of magic. The sword sheath on her waist now resonated as if flowing a surge of magic energy that flowed throughout her body.

Seeing Pyra's sudden change, I could confirm one thing.

The orders I gave and what Pyra understood were different from each other.

It seemed like this was going to be another long day.