

Y. Goddess 184

Chapter 184 Chunibyou?

The report given by the stealth slime herd in front of me was a very dangerous military attack plan that had happened in the past. A secret that could be used to silence an arrogant noble family like this.

"This happened in the past, I didn't expect this family to dare to do something as cruel as manipulating the list of assets owned by the noble family and selling it at auction to fund their military budget," my father grumbled as he read the documents given by the stealth slime herd.

Because the documents given by the stealth slime herd were too many and would pile up at the main entrance of Marquess Rommel's Mansion, Sebastian and several other maids on duty immediately took them to a closed place like my private bedroom which was filled with piles of important papers like this.

"Not only did they manipulate the list of assets owned by the royal family and strengthen their military, they even expanded their territory by taking other areas through official wars approved by the King and Queen of the Aurora Kingdom," said my father while reading another report that had been obtained by the stealth slime herd.

"This is sensitive information that should be kept well because their family's future will be ruined if information like this is easily spread," my father continued with a complicated expression on his face.

With my father reading a sensitive report from the results of the infiltration and spying activities carried out by the stealth slime herd, it seemed that this opened up a wide opportunity for my family to blackmail them a little if they wanted to have a dispute with a neutral family like us.

I thought it would be a good thing if the problem could be resolved with threats and blackmail to keep quiet about what had actually happened.

With this much information, I was very sure that the finances of the Marquess Rommel family would always be in a prosperous figure without fear of experiencing losses that could be covered by giving a small blackmail to this noble family as a hush money for what they had done in the past.

"Father, isn't this similar to carrying out a rebellion for this kingdom?" I asked my father who was still stunned reading the report given by the stealth slime herd.

With a face that seemed to be thinking about something, my father even let out a mumbling sound after he was surprised by the information he had read.

"This has at least become a fraud and theft that deserves severe punishment from the King and Queen of the Aurora Kingdom directly," replied my father while thinking of a proper solution to use this information more wisely.

"No... no... this is more like falsifying royal assets, smuggling royal assets, laundering royal assets, and other crimes that are like carrying out a coup against the Aurora Kingdom."

"But because our family is currently in a neutral faction that doesn't care about anything that happens to the political turmoil in this kingdom. It seems like we have to keep this weapon until it can be used at the right time, Lily," said my father as if giving me a condition and military tactics used to control the movements of opponents that can still be tolerated like this.

I paid close attention to what my father was talking about and let out a small nod from my head.

"I understand, father. We have to use this weapon at the right time, right?" I said to confirm the reasoning of the lesson that my father had given me through his experience.

"Yes, for now, please keep this a secret from Mama so that she feels comfortable that a bad incident like this has happened in the past and made the future husband of her old family suffer from debt due to the war created by this noble family."

"Um..." with a small nod of my head, it seems that I got new information that I didn't know before. Information that Mama had become a victim in the actions carried out by this noble family.

It seems that I have to make special preparations if this family is going to do something against the Marquess Rommel family.

The information given by my Goddess about the twin boys of the noble family as a reincarnator has added to my burden to pay attention to what he is doing.

Unlike the Great Hero in the past who was summoned to make a better world because the Goddess of Destruction was doing something that made this world unbalanced, a reincarnator actually makes this world even more unbalanced after the memories of his old world were brought to this world.

I even read a note in a magic book left by another Great Hero that a reincarnator is able to bring a new path of development or the beginning of a new destruction.

The conflict between the Great Hero in the past and the reincarnators has led to the extinction of the reincarnators themselves with a small note left by the Great Hero in the past like, "Fighting chunibyou is easier than fighting a solitary forest sage."

I don't understand the meaning of the small note left by the Great Hero in the past, but I'm sure that chunibyou is the key to their success in fighting the reincarnators who started the beginning of the destruction in this world.

Now I have another question, where can I find a weapon or magic called "Chunibyou"?

[Oh, Lily-chan...]

[Can you calm down for a while?]

Suddenly my Goddess entered my mind to have a conversation.

Taking one of the paper reports containing the criminal acts of the noble family that was currently the focus of my family's attention, I pretended to read the contents of the report seriously to reply to the communication made by my Goddess.

I've been calm since earlier, my Goddess.

[No, you're not calm after hearing the wrong otherworldly term in its meaning.]

"Huh?" I muttered a little while putting on a confused face.

Did I misunderstand something?

What is it about?

With various questions starting to appear in my head, it seems like I've made a small mistake that made my Goddess communicate directly to me through the voice in my head.

[You know, Lily-chan...]

[Actually, the meaning of the word Chunibyou is a syndrome that requires polite language for a polite and structured explanation.]

[But to put it crudely, Chunibyou is a mental illness that makes everyone who sees it feel... a little strange... uhh... amazed... or disgusted depending on their beliefs.]

[The point is that chunibyou is not a weapon or magic book that Lily-chan is imagining.]

I didn't know that chunibyou was this complex.

[It's not that complex either, it's just that they are in an abnormal category if the chunibyou disease relapses in public.]

A disease that relapses in public?

Isn't that a dangerous weapon like the one that can be caused by the appearance of Elder Lich which spreads a plague that can reach a wide scale?

[No, that's not what I mean.]

[Uhm, why does it feel so difficult to explain an otherworldly vocabulary to Lily-chan who doesn't know any otherworldly vocabulary at all?]

I can feel that my Goddess is currently struggling to make me understand a vocabulary that comes from another world.

If this disease called chunibyou spreads rapidly, I don't know what to do to avoid the damage caused by a disease from another world.

Can the healing magic performed by a Saintess like Hana eliminate a disease that comes from another world?

[Lily-chan, you don't have to think hard like that because chunibyou disease only happens to someone who has never experienced puberty and feels ashamed of their chunibyou actions.]

[In other words, it's a normal disease to make themselves have a delusion that feels like they are the main character in a storybook.]

Hearing the explanation given by my Goddess, it seems like I'm starting to understand this chunibyou disease. A disease that makes my body shiver when I hear it as if I want to avoid a disease that can make me feel ashamed when I realize my behavior that plays like the main character in a storybook.

Brrttt...

With my body shaking a little like that, I want to make a determination where I have to avoid people who like to be the main character in their own stories.

[It's a shame, but Lily-chan is the perfect woman to be the main character villain who can destroy the storyline of people suffering from chunibyou.]

[Like a romantic story where childhood friends who fell in love with each other and once promised to marry each other but Lily-chan stole the bride and loved Lily-chan more than her childhood friend who had promised to marry after growing up.]

I stood still after hearing the strange words that echoed in my head.

A strange statement from the story that my Goddess was making up by involving me in the main story.

Is there a romantic story with a plot like that?

A story where a woman snatches the bride who is about to marry her childhood friend. Wouldn't that end up being a strange story and not suitable for the general public to read?

With this new information, at least I have to take a precaution where these documents will be the main weapon when this noble family dares to step on the pride of the Marquess Rommel family.

My actions that were pretending to read the report paper that contained sensitive information were interrupted by the arrival of Sebastian who was knocking on the door of my private bedroom.

Toookkk...

Toookkk...

Kraakkk...

With gentle and slow movements, Sebastian entered my private bedroom which was filled with report papers from the results of the infiltration and spying carried out by the stealth slime swarm.

"Good evening, Lily-sama."

"Good evening to you too, Marquess Rommel."

With his respectful attitude as a Butler who worked under the orders of the Marquess Rommel family, Sebastian gave a polite salute to inform something.

"Dinner preparations are over, it would be better if Lily-sama and Marquess Rommel rest for dinner first before continuing your important work. I will make sure no one enters Lily-sama's private bedroom which is filled with important documents like this," said Sebastian while glancing at Noel who followed Sebastian behind him.

Sebastian gave a small code to Noel to make her act as a guard and supervisor of my private bedroom which contained important documents.

"It's already night? Even though I just found an interesting scandal that could make that noble family lose all ownership rights to their iron mines and gold mines," said my father who didn't realize that the day had quickly turned to night.

Just like my father, I also just realized when the day had turned to night after being immersed in an important conversation with my Goddess along with my gaze reading an important report from stealth slimes herd.

If only the report of their infiltration and spy activities weren't as interesting as this. Maybe I would have locked myself up until I became busy.

"It seems like it's time for dinner and to discuss that important matter, Father," I said to persuade my father to have dinner soon.